

Sipsmith House of Commons Gin

Inadvertently born by Royal Decree and shaped by Acts of Parliament, British gin has an inextricable link with Westminster. With this history in mind, we're very proud to introduce a special-edition gin, hand crafted exclusively for the House of Commons.

Our Head Distiller, Jared Brown - a member of the Worshipful Company of Distillers - loves nothing more than hunting through historical records in the hope of turning up cocktail lore and antique recipes, and this case was no different. What he found was rather extraordinary: in 1736, even at the very height of the Gin Craze, he uncovered a reference to a special, parliamentary gin.

This exclusive London Dry Gin recipe is inspired by this 1736 reference.

Showcasing the glorious notes of black pepper, chamomile and rose petal, in addition to a number of our famed London Dry botanicals. Served with a wedge of lime this not only bursts through your G&T, it captures the very essence of the House for which it was created.

Soft and floral, with sweet clementine on the nose, this is a smooth and beautifully rounded gin with notes of elderflower, and lychee followed by warm black pepper spice.
