From Andrew Miller MP, Chair

Tony Gallagher
Editor
Daily Telegraph
111 Buckingham Palace Road
London
SW1W 0DT

14 October 2013

Dear Mr Gallagher,

My Committee contacted your publication earlier this year in an attempt to gather your opinions on the matter of the communication of climate science and its impact on climate change policy.

Despite the obvious topicality of the subject and the distinctive contribution of the Daily Telegraph to the public debate, we were unable to persuade you to join your colleagues from other publications.

We are determined to consider the whole spectrum of newspaper coverage of climate change. Given the extent of coverage the Telegraph provides to climate issues, I would presume you would want my Committee to understand your position on the issue. I believe that the evidence on which you base your coverage would enhance the information from which the Committee will produce its report. I ask that you send someone that could give us insight into the role of the Telegraph in communicating about climate.

I hope to hear in the next week that you have notified the clerk of my committee of the name of the person who will attend the Committee meeting on 6 November.

Yours sincerely,

Andrew Miller
Chair