As you may be aware, the Transport Committee has conducted a number of inquiries in recent years on the cost of motor insurance. As part of this, we recently called for evidence on the Government's proposals to reduce the number and cost of whiplash claims (<http://www.parliament.uk/business/committees/committees-a-z/commons-select/transport-committee/inquiries/parliament-2010/whiplash1>).

A number of witnesses (for example, Aviva and Keoghs) have suggested that the Solicitors Regulation Authority should prohibit solicitors from offering inducements to claimants. Could you let us know your position on this issue?

We would be grateful if you could reply by Friday 14 March.

Chair of the Committee
