Dear Lilian,

Effects of modes of train operation on disabled passengers

Thank you for your response of 16 October. I note the Committee has now published both my letter and the report and draft guidance documents on its website.

As outlined in that letter, the Department recognises there are some limits to the report's robustness and so will not be publishing it as a definitive assessment of the effects of different modes of operation on disabled passengers. However, I am happy to make it publicly available with that caveat.

I am therefore placing a copy of the report, draft guidance and my cover letter in the libraries of both Houses.

Yours sincerely,

Chris Heaton-Harris MP
Minister of State for Transport
