Tax Consultation Tracker

You have previously suggested that the government produce a regularly-updated consultation tracker, to provide tax professionals with information on tax policies under development. I wrote to you on 23 November setting out that the Government recognised this would be a useful tool, and were exploring this with tax professionals and other interested parties.

I therefore wanted to bring to your attention that we have published such a tracker today, with a link available from the Spring Statement page. I am sure this will prove helpful for all those wanting to engage with tax policy-making and support our aims of more extensive and open consultation, in the context of the new tax policy-making cycle.

I am grateful for your and the Treasury Select Committee's advocacy for and constructive engagement on this matter.

As ever,

Mel
