27 Secondary Legislation Scrutiny The Chairman of Committees moved that a Select Committee be appointed to scrutinise secondary legislation.

(1) The Committee shall, with the exception of those instruments in paragraphs (3) and (4), scrutinise—

(a) every instrument (whether or not a statutory instrument), or draft of an instrument, which is laid before each House of Parliament and upon which proceedings may be, or might have been, taken in either House of Parliament under an Act of Parliament;

(b) every proposal which is in the form of a draft of such an instrument and is laid before each House of Parliament under an Act of Parliament, with a view to determining whether or not the special attention of the House should be drawn to it on any of the grounds specified in paragraph (2).

(2) The grounds on which an instrument, draft or proposal may be drawn to the special attention of the House are—

(a) that it is politically or legally important or gives rise to issues of public policy likely to be of interest to the House; (b) that it may be inappropriate in view of changed circumstances since the enactment of the parent Act; (c) that it may inappropriately implement European Union legislation; (d) that it may imperfectly achieve its policy objectives.

(3) The exceptions are—

(a) remedial orders, and draft remedial orders, under section 10 of the Human Rights Act 1998;

(b) draft orders under sections 14 and 18 of the Legislative and Regulatory Reform Act 2006, and subordinate provisions orders made or proposed to be made under the Regulatory Reform Act 2001;

(c) Measures under the Church of England Assembly (Powers) Act 1919 and instruments made, and drafts of instruments to be made, under them.

(4) The Committee shall report on draft orders and documents laid before Parliament under section 11(1) of the Public Bodies Act 2011 in accordance with the procedures set out in sections 11(5) and (6). The Committee may also consider and report on any material changes in a draft order laid under section 11(8) of the Act.

(5) The Committee shall also consider such other general matters relating to the effective scrutiny of secondary legislation and arising from the performance of its functions under paragraphs (1) to (4) as the Committee considers appropriate, except matters within the orders of reference of the Joint Committee on Statutory Instruments.

That, as proposed by the Committee of Selection, the following members be appointed to the Committee:

L Bichard
L Eames
B Eaton
L Goodlad (Chairman)

APPENDIX

PRIVILEGES AND CONDUCT COMMITTEE - 1ST REPORT 2012-13

REGISTRATION OF INTERESTS

Introduction

1. On 9 November 2011 the House agreed the 10th Report from this Committee of session 2010-12.1 The House thereby agreed to include the following additional requirement in respect of interests registered under category 1 (directorships):

   “Members must register under this category the precise source of each individual payment made in relation to any directorship and the nature of the work carried on in return for that payment, except where disclosure of the information would be contrary to any established professional duty of privacy or confidentiality.”

2. A new edition of the Guide to the Code of Conduct, incorporating this change, was printed later in November, and copies are available from the Printed Paper Office and online.2

3. The Registrar of Lords’ Interests subsequently wrote to 94 Members of the House who appeared to fall within the revised rule on directorships. His subsequent discussions with some of those Members highlighted a number of areas of uncertainty around the application of the new rules. In accordance with paragraph 22 of the Code of Conduct, he therefore sought further guidance from the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct, and the Sub-Committee in due course agreed a report providing the guidance requested. The Sub-Committee’s report was considered by this Committee on 12 June, and is annexed to this Report.

Issues

4. Compliance with the rules set out in the Code of Conduct and the accompanying Guide to the Code of Conduct is the responsibility of individual Members, each of whom, at the same time as taking the oath of allegiance, signs a personal undertaking to abide by the Code.3

5. The purpose of the Code is “to provide the openness and accountability necessary to reinforce public confidence in the way in which Members of the House of Lords perform their parliamentary duties”.4

6. It follows that all Members have given a personal undertaking to be open in registering all interests that may be relevant to their parliamentary work. The test of relevance is an objective one: any interest that “might be thought by a reasonable member of the public to influence the way in which a Member of the House of Lords discharges his or her parliamentary duties” must be registered.5

3 Code of Conduct, paragraph 5.
4 Code of Conduct, paragraph 3(b).
5 Guide to the Code of Conduct, paragraph 33.
7. The changes agreed by the House in November 2011 reinforced these well-established principles. For instance, the House agreed to the inclusion of an additional sentence in paragraph 8 of the Guide, emphasising the “general obligation upon Members to bear in mind the underlying purpose of the Code ... namely, to provide ‘openness and accountability’”. The underlying problem these changes sought to address was the possibility that Members of the House, by setting up private companies, and registering their interest in those companies under category 1 (directorships) might be able to avoid the requirement to disclose the sources of their income, which would exist in respect of any interest they had registered under category 2 (remunerated employment).

8. The guidance now prepared by the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct helpfully clarifies the remaining areas of uncertainty. It does not propose any further amendments to the Guide: indeed, it is neither possible nor desirable to define every term in the Guide, or to draw up precise and unambiguous rules covering every possible eventuality. Each set of circumstances is different, and should be judged on its merits. Moreover, the House of Lords is self-regulating rather than rule-based, and ultimately it is the responsibility of individual Members to act on their personal honour, and in accordance with the underlying purpose of the Code of Conduct.

9. We draw special attention to the transitional arrangement recommended in paragraph 21 of the Sub-Committee’s report. The changes agreed in November 2011 established the principle that Members should not enter into contracts for the provision of services by them if they could not disclose full details of such contracts, including the names of their personal clients. But this had the unforeseen effect of creating a potential conflict between Members’ duties of disclosure under the Code, and contractual obligations which some Members may previously have entered into, entirely legitimately, to protect the confidentiality of particular clients. Since 9 November 2011 the duty of disclosure has been clear; but it would not be appropriate for the House to force Members to breach contractual obligations entered into before that date.

10. The Sub-Committee has therefore proposed, as a transitional measure, that the changes to paragraph 46 of the Guide agreed by the House on 9 November 2011 should be deemed not to apply to Members already subject to confidentiality clauses in contracts agreed prior to 9 November 2011. This transitional measure will remain in force until 31 March 2013, to give Members reasonable opportunity to renegotiate or renew such contracts in such a way as to enable them to comply with the rules agreed by the House.

Conclusion

11. The Registrar will draw upon the guidance annexed to this report in advising Members on the registration of relevant interests. We consider that it will also be helpful to Members for the guidance to be published. We accordingly make this Report for information.
Introduction

1. In October 2011 we reviewed the Guide to the Code of Conduct for Members of the House of Lords. One concern which we examined was that Members who set up private companies controlled by themselves or those close to them (registered under category 1 of the Guide (directorships)) were able to avoid the requirement to make the full disclosures that have to be made under category 2 (remunerated employment etc.). With the exception of public affairs advice personally given by them to personal clients (which must be registered under category 3), these Members were not required to register any income paid to their company in respect of services personally provided by them, such as consultancy work or speaking engagements, nor to name their personal clients.

2. We therefore recommended that the disclosures required under categories 1 and 2 should be brought into line by revising paragraph 46 of the Guide as follows (new words added in italics):

   46. In this category, and in others, “remuneration” includes not only salaries and fees, but also the receipt of any taxable expenses, allowances, or benefits, such as the provision of a company car. Members should register the name of the company in which the directorship is held and give a broad indication of the company’s business, where this is not self-evident from its name. Directly remunerated directorships of companies which are not trading should be registered. Members must register under this category the precise source of each individual payment made in relation to any directorship and the nature of the work carried on in return for that payment, except where disclosure of the information would be contrary to any established professional duty of privacy or confidentiality.

3. On 9 November 2011\(^1\) the House agreed the Report from the Committee for Privileges and Conduct containing our recommendations.\(^2\) The Registrar of Lords’ Interests wrote to 94 Members of the House who appeared to fall within the revised rules because their register entries indicated that they held a controlling interest in, or were a director of, a private company.\(^3\) In seeking to apply the revised rules on company directorships, the Registrar identified a number of issues on which he sought the guidance of the Sub-Committee. We consider that, although registration of interests is the responsibility of each individual Member, we should provide as much clarity on the scope of the revised rules as possible. We therefore set out below our views on the issues which have arisen.

General considerations

4. We consider that it is helpful to draw attention to those parts of the Code of Conduct which set out the principles on which our recommendations are based. The following points are of particular relevance in this context:

   • In discharging their parliamentary duties, Members draw substantially on experience and expertise gained outside Parliament.\(^4\)

\(^1\) HL Deb, 9 November 2011 col 240.

\(^3\) A copy of the Registrar’s letter is appended to this report.

\(^4\) Para 2 of the Code.
The purpose of the Code is to provide the openness and accountability necessary to reinforce public confidence in the way in which Members perform their parliamentary duties.\(^1\)

In the conduct of their parliamentary duties, Members shall base their actions on consideration of the public interest, and shall resolve any conflict between their personal interest and the public interest at once, and in favour of the public interest.\(^2\)

5. We do not believe that the applicable rules should be so restrictive that they unreasonably prevent Members from earning a living or gaining outside experience and expertise. However, this must be balanced against the need for Members to register their interests openly and transparently. The House and the public have a right to know for which clients a Member is acting: Members should accept this as one of the consequences of the privilege of sitting and voting in the House. Members who cannot, or who do not wish to, abide by the revised rules may take leave of absence.

6. We recognise that one consequence of the revised rules and of our recommendations for further clarification is that a small number of Members may now decide to take leave of absence, as others have done in the past, rather than provide a more detailed entry in the Register of Interests than has so far been required. This may result in the loss of some expertise currently available to the House, but we consider that it is a loss which should be accepted in the interests of openness.

Recommendations

The source of each individual payment

7. The revised rules require “the source of each individual payment made in relation to any directorship” to be registered. The rules are intended to apply where remuneration is paid to a company of which a Member is a director in respect of personal services provided by that Member to third parties. We emphasise that it is only payments made for services personally provided by an individual Member which must be registered: there is no requirement to register the names of all the clients of a company.

8. In the case of a company which is wholly owned or run by a Member, it is not difficult to determine whether that Member has personally provided the relevant service. However, in the case of a private company with even a small number of employees, a Member who is a director of that company may not be providing personal services to each of the company’s clients, or indeed to any of the company’s clients. Where there is no contact between the Member and the client, we do not consider that the Member is required to register the name of that client: the need for openness is served by inclusion in the Register of a broad indication of the company’s business.

\(^1\) Para 3(b) of the Code.
\(^2\) Para 7 of the Code.
9. We recognise, however, that a grey area exists between cases where personal services are provided for a client solely or largely by the Member concerned, and cases where a Member has little or no contact with a particular client. For example, a Member, as director of a private company, may seek to agree a contract with that client and be present at introductory meetings but leave the detailed provision of the company’s service to an employee or other director. It is not possible to define precisely in the rules when it is necessary to register the source of an individual payment. If a complaint alleging failure to register were made against a Member, the Commissioner for Standards would need to determine what was required on the facts of the individual case.

10. It is not straightforward in all cases to distinguish clearly between personal and non-personal clients of a Member. We stress that payments made to a company should be registered if they arise wholly or in part out of the activities of the Member. However, we do not consider that it is desirable to clarify the meaning of the term “individual payment” by means of a further amendment to the Guide.

11. In this context we specifically draw the attention of the House to the need for Members to be open and accountable in the way in which they perform their parliamentary duties and to have due regard to whether a reasonable member of the public might think that his or her actions had been or would be influenced by the relevant interest.

12. Members are required to indicate “the nature of the work carried on” in return for each payment. There is a concern that the provision of detailed information about the nature of the work carried on might provide an advantage to commercial competitors of the Member’s company. The reason for the revised rules on company directorships was to bring them into line with the rules under category 2 (remunerated employment etc.). We note that, under category 2, Members have registered information on their work by reference to speaking engagements, being a member of an advisory board or being a senior adviser. Such broad indications of the nature of the work do not provide sufficiently detailed information to place commercial competitors at an advantage.

13. We do not consider that it is desirable to clarify the meaning of “the nature of the work carried on” by means of a further amendment to the Guide. We confirm that this rule does not require the registration of detailed and extensive information. In this context, we would expect entries under category 1 (directorships) to be broadly similar to those made under category 2 (remunerated employment etc.).

14. The revised rules require each payment to be registered “except where the disclosure of information would be contrary to any established professional duty of privacy or confidentiality.” This has given rise to questions concerning what is meant by “any established professional duty” and, in particular, the extent to which confidentiality clauses inserted in contracts are covered by the exception.

1 Para 3(b) of the Code.
2 Para 12 of the Code.
15. We consider that established duties of confidence are those which are generally recognised within the profession concerned. We note that paragraph 59 of the Guide specifically refers to Members who have clients in a professional capacity and lists accountants, doctors and lawyers as examples. This list is not exhaustive: teachers, social workers, bankers and journalists, for example, may also owe professional duties of privacy or confidence which are well established and recognised. It is not possible to provide a comprehensive and exclusive list of such duties.

16. We do not consider that it is desirable to clarify the meaning of “any established professional duty of privacy or confidentiality” by means of a further amendment to the Guide. It would be better to determine in each particular case whether such a duty exists.

Confidentiality clauses

17. There is a distinction to be drawn between a duty of privacy and confidentiality and a confidentiality clause included within a commercial contract for the provision of, for example, financial, management, technical or public relations advice. Although the use of confidentiality clauses is widespread in some sectors, they differ greatly in scope and have no generally recognised form: it is for the parties to each contract to agree a clause and to determine its scope. Accordingly, it is not unreasonable to expect Members to avoid agreeing contracts which could place them in breach of the revised rules.

18. Established professional duties of privacy or confidentiality cannot be created by means of a confidentiality clause in a commercial contract. We stress that Members should not undertake work if to do so would place them in breach of the Code of Conduct. Members should not allow companies of which they are directors to enter into contracts for their personal services where it would not be possible for them to disclose the nature of the work or the name of the client, if to do so would place them in breach of the revised rules contained in paragraph 46 of the Guide to the Code of Conduct.

19. The reasoning above does not apply in the same way to Members who were subject to existing confidentiality clauses at the date on which the revised rules were agreed. It would be unfair to place Members in a position of having to be in breach of either their contractual obligations (which were entered into quite properly at the time) or of the Code of Conduct; the only other option for a Member in such a position would be to take leave of absence.

20. Rules should not be retrospectively applied, and we therefore accept that, as a transitional measure, Members who are subject to contractual obligations of confidentiality predating 9 November 2011, and which remain in force, should not be bound by the new rules. However, this transitional arrangement should be time-limited (we suggest until 31 March 2013), and Members should in the interim, in the interests of openness and transparency, make every effort, short of breaching their contractual obligations, to comply with the revised rules. When these contracts are renewed or renegotiated, Members should ensure that any conditions of confidentiality which would put them in breach of the House’s rules are amended or excluded so as to allow them to comply with those rules.
21. As a transitional measure, we recommend that the changes to paragraph 46 of the Guide agreed by the House on 9 November 2011 should be deemed not to apply to Members already subject to confidentiality clauses in contracts agreed prior to 9 November 2011. This transitional measure should remain in force until 31 March 2013, to give Members reasonable opportunity to renegotiate or renew such contracts in such a way as to enable them to comply with the rules agreed by the House.

Company forms and limited liability partnerships

22. The purpose of the revised rules was to close a loophole through which Members who were individually employed by a small number of clients could avoid disclosure of the names of those clients by setting up a private company. The corporate veil should not be allowed to disguise the reality of payments being made to a particular Member. We note that in law there are a number of different types of company defined for different purposes, including, for example, for the purposes of tax law and corporate governance. We do not consider it necessary for the Code of Conduct to differentiate between different types of company by size, control or whether they are publicly listed. Under the revised rules, individual payments should be registered whatever the size or ownership of a company.

23. The revised rules contained in paragraph 46 of the Guide do not apply to limited liability partnerships (LLPs). These are bodies corporate, but they do not fall under category 1 (directorships), as they are not defined in law as companies. If a Member is a partner, the partnership should be registered under category 2 (remunerated employment etc.). In the light of the fact that the purpose of the revision made to paragraph 46 was to bring category 1 into line with category 2, it is not necessary for any further amendment to be made to the rules in order to bring partners of LLPs into line with directors of companies.

24. We confirm that the obligation to register “sources of remuneration” contained in category 2 of the categories of registrable interest set out in the Guide to the Code of Conduct (remunerated employment etc.) applies to partnerships, including limited liability partnerships (LLPs).
Annex: Letter from the Registrar of Lords' Interests to all Members of the House who have registered as directors of their own private companies, 8 December 2011

As you may know, the House agreed on 9 November 2011 to a recommendation from the Committee for Privileges and Conduct relating to registration of interests by Members of the House who are directors of their own private companies. The report of the Committee for Privileges and Conduct has been published as HL Paper 212, and is available on-line and in the Printed Paper Office.

The purpose of this letter is to explain the change to the rules on disclosure and to ask you for the additional information that is now required.

Stated briefly, the change to the rules brings the information required to be registered under category 1 (directorships) into line with the information disclosed under category 2 (remunerated employment). It is no longer enough to register that you are a director of your own company. You must in addition register the following information:

(1) Each individual payment exceeding £1000 in the course of a calendar year made to or received by your company for work done personally by you (you do not need to state the actual amount);

(2) The nature of the work carried out by you in return for that payment;

(3) The name of the person who made the payment (except in cases where disclosure of the information would be contrary to any established professional duty of privacy or confidentiality).

I would be grateful to receive the information by Friday 27 January 2012.

I enclose a form which you may wish to use to supply the information required; and a pre-paid envelope for your reply.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you would like further information or help.

APPENDIX

PROCEDURE COMMITTEE - 1ST REPORT 2012-13

Assistance in the Chamber

1. We have considered a request from Baroness Campbell of Surbiton that she be allowed to call upon an assistant both to provide practical and personal help in the Chamber or Grand Committee, for instance in managing papers or taking notes, and, on occasions when she is unable to complete a speech, to read out the text of that speech on her behalf.

2. Standing Order 12, which dates from 1707, states that “When the House is sitting, no person shall be on the floor of the House except Lords of Parliament and such other persons as assist or attend the House.” The Report of the Committee of Privileges on which this Standing Order was based made it clear that this prohibition should apply to “all Persons, except the necessary Attendants of the House”.1 These “Attendants of the House” are the staff of the House—clerks and doorkeepers—whose work in supporting the House as a whole requires them to be on the floor of the House while the House is sitting. Thus Standing Order 12 prohibits the admission of a member’s personal assistant (such as a researcher), and we are clear that this general prohibition should be maintained.

3. Baroness Campbell of Surbiton was nominated by the House of Lords Appointments Commission in 2007 on the basis of her work in the field of equal rights for those with disabilities, including as a Commissioner of the Disability Rights Commission. The nomination was made in full knowledge of the progressive nature of her own disability. The House has an excellent record in supporting disabled members, and it is right that it should do everything possible to enable Lady Campbell to continue to draw on her experience and knowledge in contributing to the work of the House. Her condition is such that she already needs a high level of support, and this level will increase further as time passes.

4. The concept of a “reasonable adjustment” or “reasonable accommodation”, a modification to the physical environment or to working practices made in order to assist a disabled person to participate equally in normal activities, is familiar in domestic and international law.2 Such an adjustment may be made in response to special circumstances affecting a particular individual. In Lady Campbell’s exceptional case, not agreeing to her request for personal assistance in the Chamber would limit and ultimately prevent her from taking part in the work of the House. Moreover, the nature of the assistance she requires is such that it is more appropriately provided by her carers, rather than by other members or by staff of the House. Her request that her assistant be on hand to provide her with personal and practical help is therefore, in our view, a reasonable one in the circumstances.

1 Lords Journal, volume 18, p. 306.
2 The concept of “reasonable adjustment” was set out in the Disability Discrimination Act 1995; “reasonable accommodation” is defined in the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, which was ratified by the United Kingdom in 2009.
5. The same principles apply to Lady Campbell’s request that her assistant be authorised to read out speeches on her behalf. Hitherto other members of the House have finished reading speeches which Lady Campbell has begun. However, we do not consider it appropriate that she should continue to be required to seek the help of other members in order to be able to participate in the work of the House. We therefore conclude that this request too is a reasonable one in the circumstances: her words, when she cannot herself deliver them, should be spoken by an assistant, employed by her and whose presence will not be recorded in the Official Report.

6. In agreeing to Lady Campbell’s requests, we are grateful for her assurances, made in person to the Committee and in a subsequent letter to the Chairman of Committees, that she will use her judgement in deciding when to make use of these adjustments, so as to ensure that other members of the House are not inconvenienced or inhibited. In particular, she has indicated that she will not consider bringing an assistant into the Chamber at times when it is full, such as during oral questions.

7. In conclusion, we emphasise two further considerations: first that we regard these measures as reasonable adjustments in light of Lady Campbell’s exceptional circumstances; and, secondly, that the general principle contained in Standing Order 12, as set out in paragraph 2 above, will continue to apply. Any further request for such adjustments would be considered afresh, in light of the specific circumstances of the individual case.

8. We therefore recommend that Standing Order 12 be dispensed with to the extent necessary to enable Baroness Campbell of Surbiton’s assistant to enter the chamber of the House, or any committee of the House, in order to provide her with necessary practical and personal help, and to read out the text of speeches on her behalf.

Divisions

9. In the last two years the average size of whipped divisions has increased very considerably. In the 2009–10 session the average number of members voting in whipped divisions was just under 200; in 2010–12 this rose to almost 380. Larger divisions have caused long queues to form in and around the chamber and the lobbies. This has in turn resulted in divisions taking significantly longer.

10. The size and lay-out of the chamber and lobbies, and number of members voting, mean that there is limited scope to speed up divisions. However, we are persuaded that giving tellers discretion, once both tellers and both clerks are in place, to start counting members through the lobbies, rather than waiting for the question to be repeated after three minutes, would help to reduce the length of queues. In the event of either the contents or the not contents not replying when the question is repeated after three minutes, the division would be cancelled as at present.

11. We recommend that tellers be given discretion, once two tellers and two clerks are in place, to start counting members through the division lobbies.
APPENDIX: Procedure Committee – 1st Report 2012–13

House of Lords Business

12. We have considered a number of proposals from the Clerk of the Parliaments to make savings by reducing the number of pages printed in House of Lords Business. We have agreed the following changes, which will take effect when the House returns in October:

- The full lists of “Motions for Balloted Debate” and “Questions for Short Debate” will be printed weekly, rather than daily.
- Any new motion falling under “Other Motions for Debate” will be printed on the day it was tabled, but the daily printing of the full list of Other Motions for Debate will be discontinued.
- Lists of members voting in divisions will no longer be printed in House of Lords Business, but will continue to be printed in the Official Report and the House of Lords Journal.

13. Up-to-date lists under all these headings will continue to be published in the daily online version of House of Lords Business. However, it is expected that the reduction in printing described above will yield a saving to the House of around £50,000 per annum.

Tuesday 3 July 2012

17 Banking Standards A message was brought from the Commons that

The Commons have made the following Order,

(1) That a Committee of this House be established, to be called the Parliamentary Commission on Banking Standards, to consider and report on—

(a) professional standards and culture of the UK banking sector, taking account of regulatory and competition investigations into the LIBOR rate-setting process;

(b) lessons to be learned about corporate governance, transparency and conflicts of interest, and their implications for regulation and for Government policy;

and to make recommendations for legislative and other action.

(2) That Mr Andrew Tyrie be Chair of the Commission.

(3) That Mark Garnier, Mr Andrew Love, Mr Pat McFadden and John Thurso be members of the Commission.

(4) That the Commission have leave to join with any committee appointed by the Lords to consider the said matters.

(5) That the Commission may hold meetings under the provisions of paragraph (4) of this order at any time after the Lords has agreed to appoint a committee.

(6) That the Commission shall, except as provided for in this order, follow the procedure of a select committee of this House.

(7) That the Commission shall have power—

(a) to send for persons, papers and records;

(b) to examine witnesses on oath;

(c) to appoint specialist advisers;

(d) to invite specialist advisers (including Counsel appointed as specialist advisers) to examine witnesses;

(e) to adjourn from place to place;
(f) to sit notwithstanding any adjournment of the House; and
(g) to report from time to time.

(8) That the Commission shall have power to appoint sub-committees to consider matters specified by the Commission within the terms of this order and a sub-committee shall have—
(a) the powers in paragraph (7)(a), (b), (e) and (f); and
(b) the power to invite specialist advisers appointed by the Commission (including Counsel appointed as specialist advisers) to examine witnesses;

and the quorum of a sub-committee shall, subject to paragraph (12)(b), be one member of this House.

(9) That the Chair may report to the House an order, resolution or Special Report as an order, resolution or Special Report of the Commission which has not been agreed at a meeting of the Commission if he is satisfied that he has consulted all members of the Commission about the terms of the order, resolution or Special Report and that it represents a decision of the majority of the Commission.

(10) That the quorum of the Commission shall be two members of this House.

(11) That, whenever this House shall stand adjourned other than to the next day, any report, Special Report, order or resolution agreed to by, or evidence taken or received by, the Commission, including any under paragraph (9) of this order, may be published or printed under the authority of this House, shall be deemed to have been reported and shall be reported when this House next sits.

(12) That, when the Commission operates under the provisions of paragraph (4) of this order, the following provisions shall apply—
(a) the quorum of the Commission shall be two members of this House and two members of the House of Lords;
(b) the quorum of any sub-committee shall be one member from either House; and
(c) the power of the Chair to report under paragraph (9) may also be exercised with the Chair’s agreement by a member of the Commission who is a member of the House of Lords.

(13) That the costs of the Commission shall be assessed by the House of Commons Commission from time to time and shall be paid by Her Majesty’s Government for the credit of the House of Commons (Administration) Estimate.

(14) That the Commission shall report on legislative action no later than 18 December 2012 and on other matters as soon as possible thereafter.

(15) That a message be sent to the House of Lords to desire their concurrence.

The House adjourned at 11.27pm until Tuesday 17 July at 2.30pm.

8 Electricity and Gas (Smart Meters Licensable Activity) Order 2012 Lord Marland moved that the draft Order be referred to a Grand Committee. The motion was agreed to.

9 Local Authorities (Mayoral Elections) (England and Wales) (Amendment) Regulations 2012 Baroness Verma moved that the draft Regulations laid before the House on 12 June be approved. The motion was agreed to.

10 Banking Standards Lord Strathclyde moved:

1. That the Commons message of 16 July be considered and that a Committee of five Lords be appointed to join with the Committee appointed by the Commons as the Parliamentary Commission on Banking Standards, to consider and report on:

(a) professional standards and culture of the UK banking sector, taking account of regulatory and competition investigations into the LIBOR rate-setting process;

(b) lessons to be learned about corporate governance, transparency and conflicts of interest, and their implications for regulation and for Government policy;

and to make recommendations for legislative and other action;

2. That, notwithstanding the provisions of Standing Order 63(2), the following members be appointed to the Committee:

Bp Durham L McFall of Alcluith
B Kramer L Turnbull;
L Lawson of Blaby

3. That the Chairman of the Commission be appointed by the House of Commons;

4. That the Commission shall, except as provided for in this order, follow the procedure of a select committee of the House of Commons;

5. That the Commission have power:

(a) to send for persons, papers and records;

(b) to examine witnesses on oath;

(c) to appoint specialist advisers;

(d) to invite specialist advisers (including Counsel appointed as specialist advisers) to examine witnesses;

(e) to adjourn from place to place;

6. That the Commission have leave to report from time to time and that the Reports of the Commission shall be printed, regardless of any adjournment of the House;

7. That the evidence taken by the Commission shall, if the Commission so wishes, be published;

8. That the Committee appointed by the House of Lords have power to report to the House any decision of the Commission reached pursuant to paragraph 9 of the Commons resolution of 16 July;

9. That the Commission shall have power to appoint sub-committees to consider matters specified by the Commission within the terms of this order and a sub-committee shall have:

(a) the powers in paragraph 5(a), (b) and (e); and

(b) the power to invite specialist advisers appointed by the Commission (including Counsel appointed as specialist advisers) to examine witnesses;
10. That the quorum of the Commission shall be two members of each House;

11. That the quorum of any sub-committee shall be one member from either House; and

12. That the Commission shall report on legislative action no later than 18 December 2012 and on other matters as soon as possible thereafter.

The motion was agreed to and a message was sent to the Commons.

11 Future of defence equipment and support Lord Astor of Hever repeated as a ministerial statement the answer given to an Urgent Question in the House of Commons.

12 Justice and Security Bill [HL] The bill was further considered in Committee, beginning with amendment 53. Amendments were considered. The House resumed.

13 Designation of Features (Appeals) (England) Regulations 2012

The Grand Committee reported that it had considered the draft statutory instruments.

14 Education (Exemption from School Inspection) (England) Regulations 2012 (SI 2012/1293) Baroness Hughes of Stretford moved that this House regrets that the Education (Exemption from School Inspection) (England) Regulations 2012 (SI 2012/1293) are both unnecessary and counterproductive as they would undermine the principle of all public services being inspected on a regular basis; undermine the professional oversight that is an essential part of good school governance; and run the risk of damaging children in cases where schools that have not been inspected then go into decline. After debate, the motion was withdrawn.

15 Justice and Security Bill [HL] The bill was further considered in Committee, beginning with amendment 67A. The House resumed after amendment 68.

The House adjourned at 10.32pm until Wednesday 18 July at 3.00pm.

10 Local Government Finance Bill The report stage was continued, beginning with amendment 71. Amendments were agreed to. Amendments 98A and 103ZA were disagreed to (see divisions 1 and 2). The report stage was adjourned.

11 National Health Service (Clinical Commissioning Groups) Regulations 2012 (SI 2012/1631) Lord Hunt of Kings Heath moved that this House deprecates the fact that the National Health Service (Clinical Commissioning Groups) Regulations 2012 (SI 2012/1631), involve the exclusion from membership of a Clinical Commissioning Group of (1) a member of a local authority, and (2) a registered nurse or a secondary care specialist if employed by a body which provides any relevant service to a person for whom the Clinical Commissioning Group has responsibilities. After debate, the motion was disagreed to (see division 3).

12 Local Government Finance Bill The report stage was continued, beginning with amendment 103A. Amendments were agreed to. The bill, as amended, was ordered to be printed. (HL Bill 44)

The House adjourned at 10.42pm until Wednesday 17 October at 3.00pm.

Select Committee Report

1 Secondary Legislation Scrutiny
The following Report from the Select Committee was made and ordered to be printed:
11th Report, on the following instrument:
Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Short Selling) Regulations 2012. (HL Paper 52)

Public Business

2 European Defence Agency A question was asked by Lord Anderson of Swansea and answered by Lord Astor of Hever.

3 Small and medium-sized enterprises: late payments A question was asked by Lord Cotter and answered by Lord Wallace of Saltaire.

4 National Health Service: access to Accident and Emergency services A question was asked by Baroness Gardner of Parkes and answered by Earl Howe.

5 Taxation: international companies A question was asked by Lord Harries of Pentregarth and answered by Lord Sassoon.

6 Trusts (Capital and Income) Bill [HL] Baroness Anelay of St Johns signified the Queen’s Consent. Then, after debate, the bill was read a third time and passed. The bill was sent to the Commons.

7 Bovine tuberculosis Lord De Mauley repeated a ministerial statement made in the House of Commons.

8 Infrastructure (Financial Assistance) Bill Lord Newby moved that the bill be now read a second time. After debate, the motion was agreed to and the Committee was negatived. Then, Standing Order 46 having been dispensed with, the bill was read a third time and passed.

9 Statement of Changes in Immigration Rules (HC 194) Baroness Smith of Basildon moved that this House regrets that notwithstanding welcome but limited measures to ensure the deportation of foreign criminals and tackle sham marriages, and notwithstanding the importance of greater protection for the taxpayer, the Government have not demonstrated that the specific minimum annual income requirement which has been introduced through the Statement of Changes in Immigration Rules (HC 194) is the most effective way to protect taxpayers and deliver fairness for UK citizens who wish their spouse or partner to settle in the United Kingdom. After debate, the motion was withdrawn.
10 Official Secrets Act 1989 (Prescription) (Amendment) Order 2012
Forestry Commissioners (Climate Change Functions) (Scotland) Order 2012 (Consequential Modifications) Order 2012

The Grand Committee reported that it had considered the draft Orders.

Grand Committee Business

The Grand Committee met in the Moses Room at 3.30pm.

Official Secrets Act 1989 (Prescription) (Amendment) Order 2012 Lord Ahmad of Wimbledon, on behalf of Lord McNally, moved that the Grand Committee do consider the draft Official Secrets Act 1989 (Prescription) (Amendment) Order 2012. The motion was agreed to.

Forestry Commissioners (Climate Change Functions) (Scotland) Order 2012 (Consequential Modifications) Order 2012 Lord Wallace of Tankerness moved that the Grand Committee do consider the draft Forestry Commissioners (Climate Change Functions) (Scotland) Order 2012 (Consequential Modifications) Order 2012. The Committee adjourned. The Committee resumed. After debate, the motion was agreed to.

Cyprus A question was asked by Lord Sharkey and, after debate, answered by Baroness Warsi.

Housing: park homes A question was asked by Baroness Scott of Needham Market and, after debate, answered by Baroness Hanham.

The Committee adjourned at 6.07pm.

Papers

All statutory instruments laid before the House are accompanied by an Explanatory Memorandum presented by command of Her Majesty, unless otherwise indicated.

Command Papers

The following papers were presented to the House by command of Her Majesty:

1 Communications—Government response to the First Report of the Communications Committee on Broadband for all.

The following instruments were laid before the House for approval by resolution:

2. (1) Draft Civil Legal Aid (Merits Criteria) Regulations 2012
    (2) Draft Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Act 2012 (Amendment of Schedule 1) Order 2012 laid under the Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Act 2012.

Negative Instruments
The following instruments were laid before the House:

2. (1) Civil Legal Aid (Immigration Interviews) (Exceptions) Regulations 2012 (2683)
    (2) Civil Legal Aid (Family Relationship) Regulations 2012 (2684)
    (3) Civil Legal Aid (Prescribed Types of Pollution of the Environment) Regulations 2012 (2687) laid under the Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Act 2012.

4. Plant Health (Forestry) (Amendment) Order 2012, laid under the Plant Health Act 1967. (2707)

Papers not subject to Parliamentary Proceedings
The following papers were laid before the House:

2. (1) Report and Accounts for 2011 of the General Medical Council
    (2) Statistics for 2011 of the General Medical Council on Fitness to Practise laid under the Medical Act 1983.

Repetition of House of Commons urgent questions

1. The Committee has considered the procedure for repeating answers given to House of Commons urgent questions (the equivalent to private notice questions, or PNQs, in the House of Lords). This procedure is described in paragraph 6.36 of The Companion to the Standing Orders:

   6.36 When the answer to an Urgent Question tabled in the Commons is, by agreement between the usual channels, to be repeated in the Lords, it is usually repeated in the form of a statement, synchronised with the answer in the Commons, and not taken by way of a PNQ in the Lords.

2. Since the election of the current Speaker in June 2009 the number of urgent questions granted in the House of Commons has increased substantially,1 as has the number of repeated answers taken as statements in this House. Earlier House of Commons sitting times now mean that such statements are normally taken immediately after oral questions on Tuesday to Thursday each week, and this has led to significant disruption of the main business before the House.

3. In light of these considerations, we believe that it would be appropriate to adopt, on a trial basis until the end of the current session, a new procedure for repeating answers to urgent questions, combining elements of the existing PNQ and oral statement procedures.

4. We recommend that the following procedure for repeating answers to House of Commons urgent questions be adopted, on a trial basis, until the end of the 2012–13 session:

   • The answer given in the Commons will be repeated in full, as a statement;
   • It will then be followed by ten minutes of question and answer (as for a PNQ);
   • The existing rules on the conduct of PNQs, set out in paragraph 6.35 of the Companion, will apply;
   • The first question will normally be asked by the Opposition front bench, unless the usual channels have agreed otherwise.

5. If this recommendation is agreed, we will review the trial in spring 2013, with a view to making a further recommendation to the House on whether or not the new procedure should be made permanent.

1 From 2004 to 2008 between 2 and 11 urgent questions were asked each year; in 2011 40 urgent questions were asked.
Tuesday 30 October 2012

The House met at 2.30pm.

3 Human Rights
The following Report from the Joint Committee was made and ordered to be printed:

Private Business

4 Borough of Stevenage (Ferrier Road) Compulsory Purchase Order 2009 The report by the Chairman of Committees and the Chairman of Ways and Means in the House of Commons, pursuant to section 3(5) of the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act 1945, that no petitions had been presented against the Borough of Stevenage (Ferrier Road) Compulsory Purchase Order 2009 was laid before the House and ordered to lie on the Table.

Public Business

5 National Health Service: women doctors A question was asked by Baroness Hollins, on behalf of Baroness Deech, and answered by Earl Howe.

6 International development A question was asked by Lord McConnell of Glenscorrodale and answered by Baroness Northover.

7 Universal credit A question was asked by Lord Touhig and answered by Lord Freud.

8 Justice and Security Bill [HL] A question was asked by Lord Clinton-Davis and answered by Lord Wallace of Tankerness.

9 Welfare of Wild Animals in Travelling Circuses (England) Regulations 2012 Lord De Mauley moved that the draft Regulations laid before the House on 12 July be approved. The motion was agreed to.

10 North Wales abuse allegations Lord Taylor of Holbeach repeated a ministerial statement made in the House of Commons.

11 Financial Services Bill The report was received. Amendments were agreed to. Amendment 3A was disagreed to (see division list). The report stage was adjourned.

12 Housing Benefit (Amendment) Regulations 2012 Lord Freud moved that the draft Order laid before the House on 28 June be approved. Then Lord McKenzie of Luton moved, as an amendment to the original motion, at end to insert “but this House regrets that the measures under the draft Regulations to introduce size criteria restrictions to the calculation of housing benefit for working age claimants living in the social rented sector are blunt and take no account of whether alternative accommodation is available; will result in cuts to the incomes of some of the poorest in society; fail to provide sufficient safeguards to protect the most vulnerable claimants and ensure that they are not pushed into poverty and homelessness; will not achieve their aim of tackling under-occupancy; and will risk costing more than they will save.” After debate, the amendment was withdrawn. Then the original motion was agreed to.

13 Benefit Cap (Housing Benefit) Regulations 2012

14 Financial Services Bill The report stage was continued, beginning with amendment 7A. Amendments were agreed to. The report stage was adjourned after amendment 25.

The House adjourned at 9.21pm until Wednesday 7 November at 3.00pm.

PRIVILEGES AND CONDUCT COMMITTEE - 2ND REPORT 2012-13

THE CONDUCT OF BARONESS CUMBERLEGE

1. Annexed to this report are reports by the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct and the Commissioner for Standards relating to a complaint against Baroness Cumberlege.

2. The Commissioner has dismissed the complaint, and we therefore make this report for information.

ANNEX 1: REPORT FROM THE SUB-COMMITTEE ON LORDS’ CONDUCT

1. The Commissioner for Standards has submitted the attached report dismissing a complaint made against Baroness Cumberlege.

2. The complainant alleged that Baroness Cumberlege did not declare during debates on the Health and Social Care Bill last session an interest in an alliance bidding for contracts for the new clinical commissioning groups to be created by the bill.

3. The Commissioner found Baroness Cumberlege not to have breached the Code of Conduct as she had made appropriate declarations during debates.

4. We recommend that the Committee for Privileges and Conduct should make a report to the House on this case.

ANNEX 2: REPORT FROM THE COMMISSIONER FOR STANDARDS

Summary of the complaint

1. On 26 June 2012 Mr Andrew Robertson wrote to me (appendix A) making a complaint against Baroness Cumberlege. Specifically, Mr Robertson alleged that Baroness Cumberlege had breached paragraph 10(b) of the Code of Conduct by failing to declare during debates on the Health and Social Care Bill her interest in an “alliance” led by PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC) which was tendering for contracts for the new clinical commissioning groups proposed under the Bill.
2. I wrote to Baroness Cumberlege on 10 July 2012 (appendix B) advising her that I was initiating an investigation on the basis of the above complaint. I subsequently met Baroness Cumberlege, at her request, on 18 July 2012, to explain the investigative process and the relevant rules and guidance agreed by the House.

Key facts
3. Baroness Cumberlege wrote to me on 20 July 2012 (appendix C), setting out the facts from her perspective.
4. Baroness Cumberlege runs a small commercial organisation entitled Cumberlege Connections. This company works almost entirely with the NHS and is primarily a training company. Baroness Cumberlege said the company does not engage in lobbying or public relations activities. Her involvement with Cumberlege Connections is registered in the Register of Lords’ Interests. The complainant acknowledges that fact. However, he suggests that the involvement of Cumberlege Connections in a wider “alliance” should also have been declared during debates on the Bill in accordance with the rules on declarations of relevant interests.
5. I suggested to Baroness Cumberlege that it would be helpful if she provided examples of her recent participation in the House with regard to declarations of interest. In her response she provided extracts of her last five contributions. She accepted that she only declared her interest twice, both occasions being during debates on the Health and Social Care Bill. She did not make such a declaration during her other three interventions, which were on oral questions, though she says that on all three occasions her interventions could not have benefited her company in any way.

Findings
6. I am clear that Baroness Cumberlege has properly registered her interest in Cumberlege Communications in the Register of Lords’ Interests. Anyone reading the Register would see that she has an interest in Cumberlege Connections. She has not registered the involvement of that company with a wider “alliance” led by PwC and I see no reason why she should do so. The complainant mentions that the “alliance” has recently won contracts worth some £1.61 million from the NHS. However, Baroness Cumberlege has stated that her company was not part of the winning bids, despite being part of the “alliance” for other bidding purposes.
7. I dismiss the complaint as I am satisfied that the involvement of Cumberlege Connections with the PwC-led alliance does not require additional registration or declaration by Baroness Cumberlege. She has rightly registered her directorship in Cumberlege Connections as a category 1 interest, and declared that interest during debates on the Health and Social Care Bill. In my opinion that declaration was sufficient to encompass any arrangements that Cumberlege Communications has entered into.
8. My investigation and Baroness Cumberlege’s response have revealed that on occasions she may have failed to declare a relevant interest when participating during oral questions. However, these omissions were not the subject of the complaint so I am not required to make a ruling on them. I have no doubt, though, that Baroness Cumberlege will redouble her efforts to ensure she always complies with her obligations under the Code of Conduct.

9. This case has highlighted the importance of declaring relevant interests and I would respectfully draw the attention of all concerned to paragraphs 86 and 90 of the Guide to the Code of Conduct.

10. Paragraph 86 highlights that in relation to voluntary participation in the proceedings of the House, members must recognise that the duty to declare relevant interests is broader than the duty of registration. Thus, members should consider the issue of declarations of interest on every occasion they consider speaking in the House or writing to a minister or public servant.

11. Paragraph 90 sets out the requirement to declare relevant interests at each stage of a bill’s progress, with an obligation on members to consider an additional declaration where such a step might be appropriate. The example used to illustrate appropriate circumstances is an interest which is tangential to the bill as a whole but nevertheless has a strong relevance to a particular amendment. Baroness Cumberlege declared her interest at the start of her speech during the second reading debate on the Health and Social Care Bill (HL Deb, 11 October 2011, col 1538) and during her first intervention at committee stage (HL Deb, 25 October 2011, col 745). However, I can find no evidence that she declared her interest during the report or third reading debates on the Bill, though she participated in them. Paragraph 90 of the Guide suggests she would have been well advised to declare her interests during her first contribution at those stages. That said, the fact that she made a full declaration at earlier stages of the Bill suggests to me that it was an oversight not to declare at report and third reading, rather than a deliberate omission.

12. I reiterate my finding that Baroness Cumberlege did not breach the Code of Conduct, but the complaint did highlight the importance of members making appropriate declarations, in accordance with the Code of Conduct and the Guide to the Code of Conduct.

Appendix A: Letter from Andrew Robertson to the Commissioner, 26 June 2012

I am making a complaint for Baroness Cumberlege under Rules of Conduct; in particular:

10. In order to assist in openness and accountability Members shall: (b) declare when speaking in the House, or communicating with ministers or public servants, any interest which is a relevant interest in the context of the debate or the matter under discussion;

Baroness Cumberlege is the sole owner, chairman and managing director of a company called Cumberlege Connections. The company runs training programmes across the NHS spectrum for consultants, GPs, NHS managers, Directors and chief executives. In addition to this service, part of their training programme covers ‘Politics, Power and Persuasion’, a tailored two-day programme which includes topics such as: ‘Managing the markets, the challenges of commissioning’, ‘who's who’, and ‘brokering deals with other independent sector providers’.

The Baroness has registered Cumberlege Connections and declared this interest, but did not say anything about the alliance she joined. This appears to be in breach of the rules.

While debating, voting and making amendments on the Health and Social Care bill in the Lords, she moved her company into an alliance led by PricewaterhouseCoopers that were tendering for and winning contracts for commissioning the new Clinical Commissioning Groups (CCGs), which were a key part of the bill. She joined the Alliance from at least November 2011 - http://www.kingsfund.org.uk/leadership/ccg-framework.html

The framework for the CCGs to choose from for their development is split into 4 separate areas called Lots. Each Lot has a series of ‘approved providers’, and falls into these categories:

- Lot 1 – Setting up and leading a high performing Clinical Commissioning Group
- Lot 2 – Working collaboratively and across boundaries - promoting partnership working
- Lot 3 – Managing and influencing local and national politics
- Lot 4 – Engaging and leading colleagues in primary care through distributed leadership - ensuring that the organisation is clinically led

PwC Alliance, of which Baroness Cumberlege’s company is a part, is listed in all four groups. The PwC alliance has won at least £1.61 million worth of contracts. NHS Barnet announced that the NHS Harrow Clinical Commissioning board had chosen PWC Alliance for their organisational development. PwC also worked with the North-East London cluster of CCGs.

When speaking in debates on the Health and Social Care bill after the date of her joining the alliance, Baroness Cumberlege failed to declare her interests in the alliance she had joined. The debates included topics on Clinical Commissioning Groups, in which she made amendments as well as debated on the topic.

Thank you for your time.
Appendix B: Letter from to the Commissioner to Baroness Cumberlege, 10 July 2012

I am writing to you in my capacity as the Commissioner for Standards. I have to advise you that I have received a complaint against you. Namely, that you have breached the Code of Conduct by reason of your failure to declare a relevant interest when speaking in the House.

I attach for your information a copy of the letter I have received from the complainant (Mr Andrew Robertson).

It appears on the basis of the complaint that you may have breached the following provisions of the 2010 Code of Conduct:

8. Members of the House:
   (a) must comply with the Code of Conduct;
   (b) should always act on their personal honour ...

10. In order to assist in openness and accountability Members shall:
   (b) declare when speaking in the House, or communicating with ministers or public servants, any interest which is a relevant interest in the context of the debate or the matter under discussion.

11. The test of relevant interest is whether the interest might be thought by a reasonable member of the public to influence the way in which a Member of the House of Lords discharges his or her parliamentary duties: in the case of registration, the Member’s parliamentary duties in general; in the case of declaration, his or her duties in respect of the particular matter under discussion.

12. The test of relevant interest is therefore not whether a Member’s actions in Parliament will be influenced by the interest, but whether a reasonable member of the public might think that this might be the case. Relevant interests include both financial and non-financial interests.

I would also draw your attention to the seven general principles of conduct identified by the Committee on Standards in Public Life and incorporated into the Code of Conduct.

I have conducted a preliminary assessment of the complaint and believe it is appropriate and in the interests of all concerned that I investigate it. Therefore, I now invite you to respond in writing with a full and accurate account of the matters in question. A response by 31 July 2012 would greatly assist me in investigating this matter in a timely fashion.

Appendix C: Letter from Baroness Cumberlege to the Commissioner, 20 July 2012

Thank you for your time and for your explanation of the process concerning complaints made against Members of the House of Lords.

In my case the complainant Mr. Andrew Robertson (of whom I have no knowledge), alleges that I should have declare an interest in joining an alliance for work commissioned by the NHS. In order for small companies to get onto national frameworks they join with others to provide a full set of skills which the commissioners of work require. (Attached the King’s Fund’s press release from which Mr Robertson quotes1)

The alliance in question is formed by a number of companies PriceWaterhouseCoopers, the Kings Fund, Common Purpose, Prac tive, Wragge and Co and my company Cumberlege Connections. Mr. Robertson does not complain about four of the five companies involved, only PriceWaterhouseCoopers. Disappointingly since joining the alliance Cumberlege Connections has not earned any income through the alliance.

Cumberlege Connections Ltd. is a small commercial organisation that works almost entirely for and with the NHS. It is a training company and does not get involved with lobbying or public relations activities. It specialises in ensuring that those working in the NHS understand how the NHS is constituted and how the management systems operate. With the new Health and Social Care Act it is important that those working in the NHS should understand what difference this will make to existing organisations and how the new bodies will operate. As a company we are well informed and specialise in informing participants of the political consequences including how to work successfully with local Government, understand the influence of the media, and work with patients and the public as services are changed. We strive to be open and transparent and have a web-site accessible to the public (print out given to you when we met). All our commercial activity is kept totally separate from the House of Lords, different e-mail address, stationery, a separate office, separate staff etc.

We began working in an alliance with the Kings Fund and Frontline about five years ago. Together we have run successful programmes for the East of England Strategic Health Authority (SHA); without Frontline but still with the Kings Fund we joined forces to design and deliver courses for South Central and the North West SHAs. We also work with Oliver and Co: in an alliance with David Thornton Co and the Faculty of Medical Leadership and Management, Warwick Medical School and others. Some of the programmes run for months, others for a day. Regardless of whom we are working with our offering is the same and provides for a niche contribution which is why people invite us to join with them.

You invited me to state the last five times I spoke in the House of Lords and to state whether I declared an interest. Out of the last five occasions twice I declared my interest. Both of these were in the context of the Health and Social Care Bill. It is in this particular context that Mr. Robertson has framed his complaint concerning involvement with the alliance. (Attached Hansard excerpts2) The three which I should have declared an interest were all during oral questions the content of which could not have benefited my company in any way. Nevertheless I know I should have mentioned my interest. I apologise and will ensure that in future before speaking I will draw attention to my statement on the register of Members’ interests.

PRIVILEGES AND CONDUCT COMMITTEE - 3RD REPORT 2012-13

THE CONDUCT OF BARONESS WARSI

1. Annexed to this report are reports by the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct and the Commissioner for Standards relating to a complaint against Baroness Warsi.

2. The Commissioner has upheld the complaint in respect of Baroness Warsi’s failure to register rental income in the Register of Lords’ Interests. Baroness Warsi has accepted the Commissioner’s finding and apologised; the matter has therefore been dealt with by means of remedial action and is now closed.

3. The Commissioner has dismissed the complaint in respect of her claims for overnight subsistence.

4. We make this report for information.

ANNEX 1: REPORT FROM THE SUB-COMMITTEE ON LORDS’ CONDUCT

1. The Commissioner for Standards has submitted the attached report upholding one part of a complaint made against Baroness Warsi and a self-referral by Lady Warsi.

2. The complainant alleged that Lady Warsi failed to register her interest as a recipient of an income of more than £5,000 from her property. Lady Warsi’s self-referral was in respect of allegations that she had improperly claimed for overnight subsistence allowance.

3. In accordance with paragraph 103 of the Guide to the Code of Conduct, the sub-committee agreed that the Commissioner might start an investigation on the basis of Lady Warsi’s self-referral. The sub-committee concluded that the time limit imposed by paragraph 111 did not apply with self-referral.

4. The Commissioner found Lady Warsi to have breached the Code of Conduct in respect of not registering rental income. Lady Warsi accepted this finding and the Commissioner agreed with her remedial action in the form of a letter of formal apology to the chairman of the sub-committee (which is reprinted as an appendix to the Commissioner’s report).

5. The Commissioner found Lady Warsi not to have breached the Code in respect of her claims for overnight subsistence allowance.

6. We welcome Lady Warsi’s acceptance that she breached the Code of Conduct and her apology for that breach. We do not consider that any further sanction is appropriate.

7. We recommend that the Committee for Privileges and Conduct should make a report to the House on this case.
Summary of the complaint

1. Following an article in The Sunday Times on 27 May 2012, Mr John Mann MP wrote to me later the same day (appendix A) making a complaint about the conduct of Baroness Warsi. Specifically, “her failure to declare her income in 2010” and “other aspects of her overnight claims in 2008”.

2. Mr Simon Danczuk MP also wrote to me on 27 May 2012 (appendix B), referring to media stories and asked me to investigate unspecified allegations. The clerk who assists me emailed Mr Danczuk on 1 June 2012 (appendix C) requesting that he specify particular matters that he would like investigated, and asking if he would provide evidence to support his complaint. Mr Danczuk did not make further contact and so I disregarded his letter.

3. The media coverage about Baroness Warsi resulted in several members of the public contacting my office, to express their views on the integrity of members and the sanctions imposed on those who broke the Code of Conduct.

4. On 28 May 2012 Baroness Warsi wrote to me (appendix D) inviting me “to examine the substance of the allegations” made against her.

5. I liaised with the Metropolitan Police Service on 1 June 2012; they said they were not conducting a criminal investigation into the allegations made against Baroness Warsi. Thus there was no bar to an investigation under paragraph 112 of the Guide to the Code of Conduct.

6. I sought agreement from the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct to initiate an investigation on the basis of Baroness Warsi’s letter of self referral. Paragraph 103 of the Guide to the Code of Conduct permits a member to request an investigation against him- or herself in exceptional circumstances. The Sub-Committee gave me their agreement and also endorsed my view that the time limit imposed by paragraph 111 of the Guide did not apply in the case of a self referral.

7. I determined that on the basis of both Mr Mann’s letter of complaint and Baroness Warsi’s letter of self referral there were two areas which required investigation. First, whether Baroness Warsi had failed properly to register all relevant interests in compliance with the Code of Conduct. Secondly, whether she had failed to act in accordance with the rules agreed by the House in respect of financial support for members.

8. Mr Mann’s complaint covered the alleged failure properly to register relevant interests and enabled me to review the situation from 26 May 2008. Baroness Warsi’s self referral enabled me to review her use of the “Members’ Reimbursement Allowance Scheme” without regard to the four-year time limit set by paragraph 111 of the Guide. However, I was only able to secure claims paperwork from February 2008 onwards. The House of Lords Finance Department had disposed of documentation from earlier months in compliance with its records management policy.

Key facts

Registration of interest

9. The first issue I investigated was the alleged failure by Baroness Warsi to register a relevant interest in the Register of Lords’ Interests. The Sunday Times article on 27 May 2012 claimed that Baroness Warsi owned a flat in Wembley. The paper stated that they conducted overt inquiries on 19 May 2012 and that on 21 May 2012...
Baroness Warsi “updated her entry on the Lords’ register of interests to state that she has a “flat in London NW from which rental income is received”.”

10. Baroness Warsi wrote to the chairman of the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct on 22 June 2012 (appendix E). In that letter she confirmed that she had altered her Register of Lords’ Interests entry on 21 May 2012. She outlined the background to that decision: she had contracted to purchase the Wembley flat in August 2007. She subsequently moved in to the flat in late March 2008 and continued to live there until June 2010. She stated that the flat was valued below the threshold for registration. In view of her status as a Minister of the Crown she sought advice on the letting of the flat and was advised that she could do so. The flat was let in late 2010. The flat generated an income of £6,937 but Baroness Warsi stated that this resulted in a net loss of £324 in the tax year 2010/11. In the tax year 2011/12 Baroness Warsi believed that what she described as the “net income” would be less than £5,000. She stated that the Guide is silent on the concepts of gross and net income and accepted that if one worked on gross income the flat should have been registered with effect from February 2011. Her letter included the following paragraphs—

Due to an oversight, for which I take full responsibility, I did not address the question of whether the property needed to be included on the Register of Lords’ Interests when the rent came to exceed the £5,000 threshold.

Throughout the process, I have endeavoured to ensure the relevant authorities have been notified at all times. The fact that I owned, and was letting out, the flat was known to Cabinet Office, the Leader of the House, and HM Revenue and Customs. As soon as I became aware that the flat was not included on the Register of Lords’ Interests, I immediately informed the Registrar.

Claims for night subsistence

11. The second issue which required investigation was the allegation that Baroness Warsi breached the Code of Conduct in relation to her claims for “Night Subsistence”.

12. In response to my letter of 7 June 2012 (appendix F) advising her that I was conducting an investigation on the basis of both her self-referral and Mr Mann’s complaint, Baroness Warsi provided me with a statement (appendix G).

13. The relevant chronology, based on her statement, is that Baroness Warsi was invited to accept nomination to the House of Lords in July 2007. She accepted that invitation and started to make appropriate domestic arrangements. She arranged to purchase a flat in Wembley, putting down a deposit and exchanging contracts on 31 August 2007. She was incurring expense as a result of that purchase from 31 August 2007, notwithstanding that she did not complete the purchase until 28 March 2008.

14. In the period between being introduced to the House of Lords and moving in to her Wembley flat in late March 2008, she stayed at various locations in London, including hotels and a spare room of Mr Naweed Khan at Birkbeck Road, W3 6BQ.

15. Once Baroness Warsi moved in to her flat in Wembley there are no allegations that she incorrectly claimed reimbursement of expenses arising from her parliamentary duties. Thus, the focus of my investigation was the period October 2007 to March 2008. However, as highlighted above the only available documentary record of her claims was limited to the period February to March 2008. This period is also when it is alleged that she incorrectly made claims arising out of her overnight stays at Birkbeck Road.
16. The guidance approved by the House and available to members which applied during the period in question is contained in the Members’ Reimbursement Allowance Scheme General Guide – Sixth Edition – January 2007.

17. It is necessary to quote extensively from that document and associated material both to establish exactly what guidance was available to members and also, where appropriate, to highlight deficiencies. Paragraph 1.1.1 of the General Guide states—

> Members of the House of Lords do not, in general, receive a salary in respect of their parliamentary duties. However, Members may be reimbursed actual expenses arising out of these duties, in accordance with the rules of the Members’ Reimbursement Allowance Scheme.

I would suggest that the above text is clear, in that members may be reimbursed actual expenses. Paragraph 1.2.1 states—

> All amounts paid in settlement of claims as detailed in this guide represent reimbursement of actual expenses arising out of unpaid parliamentary duty, rather than income from employment. Consequently, they are not subject to income tax, and need not be included on a tax return.

The above paragraph makes it clear that reimbursement of actual expenses results in the amount claimed being free from income tax. Paragraphs 4.4.1 and 4.4.2 state—

> Members whose main residence is outside Greater London may claim for expenses of overnight accommodation in London whilst away from their only or main residence...

> A Member whose main residence is outside Greater London and who maintains a residence in London for the purpose of attending sittings of the House may claim this allowance towards the cost of maintaining such a residence.

18. The General Guide to my mind is quite clear, in that members can reclaim actual expenses but in relation to maintaining a residence in London they can claim the allowance in its entirety. However, when I turn to form ME1 (August 2007 edition), which was the relevant form filled in by members, including Baroness Warsi, at this time to claim expenses, the picture becomes less clear. Note (i) in the “Quick Guide” which was printed on the reverse of form ME1 states—

> Night Subsistence – Members whose main residence is outside Greater London may claim expenses, within a daily limit of £165.50 (from 1 August 2007 to 31 July 2008), for nights spent away from their only or main residence for the purpose of attending sittings of the House a) where they have incurred expenses of overnight accommodation in London or; b) as a contribution towards the costs of maintaining a London residence in connection with their parliamentary duties. Claims can only be made in respect of days of attendance.

The word “actual” does not appear before “expenses” in the “Quick Guide”.

19. Baroness Warsi sets out her understanding of the Members’ Reimbursement Scheme in her statement. In particular she says, “I was informed during my induction about my entitlement to claim for overnight subsistence and other allowances ... I was told that it was accepted and standard practice to claim the full amount and to meet expenses from this. I was told that peers regularly found themselves out of pocket on a day by day basis and it was for this reason that everybody was encouraged to claim the full daily amount because the amounts claimed could be aggregated and averaged over a period of time.”
20. In response to Baroness Warsi’s statement, I wrote to her on 12 July 2012 (appendix H) seeking clarification on several points, including a request that she identify those individuals who provided the advice on “accepted and standard practice.” Baroness Warsi replied on 17 July 2012 (appendix I) and on this point commented—

I refer you back to paragraphs 7–9 of my statement. Lord Strathclyde, Baroness Anelay and other peers were involved in the induction process, as well as the House of Lords Finance Department. I cannot recall precisely which parts of the advice were received from which individual, but the overall advice I was given was clear and is detailed in my statement.

On the specific issue mentioned in para 8 of my statement, having worked all my life in the private sector, I thought it unusual that there was no requirement, nor any provision, to submit receipts. On this issue, I recall seeking advice from the Finance Department. I was told that no receipts, logs or records were required to be kept or submitted. Had I been required to retain such records, or been advised to retain such records, I would have done so.

21. I am conscious that this is not the first case to involve allegations that night subsistence was incorrectly claimed which has come before the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct. In particular, the report on The Conduct of Lord Clarke of Hampstead in March 2010 (Committee for Privileges, 4th report (session 2009–10), HL Paper 112) seems especially relevant as it dealt with allegations that a member claimed for more overnight expenses than he had actually incurred.

22. In that case the Sub-Committee acknowledged the widespread uncertainty about whether the scheme was a reimbursement scheme or one which provided flat-rate amounts. The Sub-Committee received evidence that advice, in very similar terms to that cited by Baroness Warsi, was received by the member in question. In essence, the Sub-Committee determined that paragraph 4.4.1 of the Members’ Reimbursement Allowance Scheme General Guide (quoted above) permitted members to claim for reimbursement of expenses. However, paragraph 4.4.2 and the Quick Guide could be interpreted to allow a member to claim a flat-rate allowance in respect of the costs of maintaining a residence in London. The Sub-Committee concluded that in all the circumstances it could not find the member personally culpable of breaching the scheme.

23. I found the Sub-Committee’s decision and reasoning of great assistance. My starting point in this case was that the scheme was a reimbursement scheme and I looked for evidence of expenditure incurred. However, it is clear that from 31 August 2007 Baroness Warsi took on financial commitments in connection with the purchase of the flat in Wembley. That flat was purchased for the purpose of attending sittings of the House. Thus, there is an arguable case that she was entitled to a flat-rate allowance in connection with her commitment to purchase and maintain a residence in London.

24. I pursued the allegations about her nights spent at Birkbeck Road by means of interviews with both the owner of those premises (Dr Moustafa (appendix J)) and the individual (Mr Naweed Khan (appendix K)) whom she paid for the disruption occasioned by her nights at that address. However, in the light of the precedent set in the case of Lord Clarke of Hampstead and Baroness Warsi’s evidence, I came to the view that she had not breached the Code of Conduct.
Findings

Registration of interest

25. I am satisfied that Baroness Warsi was in breach of the Code of Conduct by reason of her failure properly to register the Wembley flat as a category 5 interest: that is, a property from which an income of more than £5,000 a year is derived. This failure is contrary to paragraph 10(a) of the Code of Conduct. Baroness Warsi has accepted that she should have registered this interest when the income derived exceeded £5,000.

26. The Guide to the Code of Conduct is clear that property from which an income of more than £5,000 a year is derived must be registered. There is no mention of gross or net income, but I am clear that gross income is the correct test and would be understood to be so by a reasonable member of the public. Baroness Warsi has acknowledged her failure to comply with the Code of Conduct but has highlighted her registration of the same property with other bodies, including the Cabinet Office. I have accessed the relevant Cabinet Office records and can confirm that she fully registered the flat with them. Thus, Baroness Warsi was not engaged in any comprehensive scheme to obscure her property interests and it should be noted that her failure to register her rental income did not result in any financial loss to the taxpayer, or additional monetary gain to herself. Nevertheless, the Code seeks to promote openness and accountability and the absence of monetary gain does not absolve members of the requirement properly to register relevant interests.

27. I am of the view that Baroness Warsi’s letter dated 22 June 2012 to the chairman of the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct, together with her amended entry in the Register of Lords’ Interests, meet the requirement for remedial action as per paragraph 123 of the Guide. I respectfully recommend that no further action is required in respect of this breach.

Claims for night subsistence

28. In relation to the allegation that Baroness Warsi wrongly claimed night subsistence allowance, I am satisfied that she did not breach the rules of the scheme as it then was. I therefore dismiss this aspect of the complaint against her. The considerations which led me to this decision are as follows.

29. The scheme under which she made her claims was unclear—this judgement has been endorsed not only the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct but also by the Review Body on Senior Salaries in its Review of parliamentary pay, pensions and allowances 2007 (Cm 7270-1, in particular paragraphs 6.9 and 6.10). I am unable to differentiate between the case of Baroness Warsi and that of Lord Clarke of Hampstead, in which the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Interests (as it then was) did not find personal culpability, a view subsequently endorsed by the Committee for Privileges. In the case of Baroness Warsi, there is an arguable case that she was entitled to claim a “Night Subsistence” allowance towards the cost of maintaining a residence in London from the point where she took on contractual liability for her flat in Wembley and incurred financial costs by reason of paying a deposit. She has also put forward evidence of expenditure in relation her interim accommodation arrangements, even if some of that expenditure might not always be viewed as necessarily incurred. In any event, I cannot be satisfied that on the balance of probabilities that she breached the Code of Conduct.
30. I note that the House has agreed a new regime of financial support for members that is now in place. It cannot be satisfactory that any expenses scheme is widely perceived to be uncertain in its provisions. Thus, the current regime of financial support is, in my opinion, a major step forward. It is essential that members can operate under the financial support arrangements with confidence and that their operation command appropriate public confidence.

Commissioner for Standards

Appendix A: Letter from John Mann MP to the Commissioner, 27 May 2012
I am requesting an investigation into the behaviour of Baroness Warsi in 2007-08 with regard to her expenses.
Considering her failure to declare her income since 2010, an investigation is required into the other aspects of her overnight claims in 2008.
During this time the Lords had an overnight attendance allowance for sittings. This allowance was only payable for expenses necessarily occurred.
Having analysed the evidence from her landlord, it is clear that she never paid him. It is also significant that she does not identify which hotels she stayed in—citing two.
Considering that her expenses claim would constitute around 60 nights of hotel accommodation, her failure to identify the hotel indicates a possibility that she did not stay in hotels for the vast majority of this period.
If this is the case a clear fraud has been committed.
Any investigation on this is extremely simple: evidence of hotel payments for the appropriate dates and verification from the two hotels.
The second issue is her claim to have paid a special advisor for accommodation. Under HMRC rules, payments to a non landlord are not tax exempt and her advisor Naweed Khan would have had to declare this income in his income tax returns. Again this is verifiable. I have today written to HMRC on this matter.
You have a clear public interest duty to investigate: one minor discrepancy has undoubtedly occurred; one major issue remains unresolved.

Appendix B: Letter from Simon Danczuk MP to the Commissioner, 27 May 2012
Following stories currently in the media regarding Baroness Warsi and her expenses claims for accommodation.
I would like to formally ask you to investigate these allegations.

Appendix C: Email from the clerk assisting the Commissioner to Simon Danczuk, 1 June 2012
This is to acknowledge your letter to the House of Lords Commissioner for Standards, Paul Kernaghan, of 27 May 2012 about Baroness Warsi.
The Commissioner asks whether you would like to specify particular matters that you would like investigated, and whether you would like to provide evidence to support your complaint.
Appendix D: Letter from Baroness Warsi to the Commissioner, 28 May 2012
You will be aware of allegations in a number of newspapers this weekend that I made improper claims for overnight subsistence allowance in 2008 when staying in property owned by Naweed Khan, a member of the Conservative Party staff, and owned by Dr Wafik Moustafa.

I strongly reject any suggestion that my claims for House of Lords allowances were in any way improper. My claims reflected the fact that as a peer whose main home was outside London, I incurred costs when staying in London overnight to attend the House of Lords. These included payments to Naweed Khan for the inconvenience and additional expenses to which he was put when I stayed with him.

Nonetheless, in order to provide reassurance to the public that this matter had been considered dispassionately or independently, I would like to invite you to examine the substance of the allegations.

I assure that I, my staff and the Conservative Party will co-operate fully with any investigation.

Appendix E: Letter from Baroness Warsi to the chairman of the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct, 22 June 2012
I am writing to you in response to press allegations concerning the registration of my ownership of a flat in North West London. You may be aware that I wrote to the Registrar of Lords’ Interests on 21 May 2012 to enter this flat on the Register of Lords’ Interests, six days before its omission from the Register featured in the press. I enclose a copy of that correspondence.

I contracted to purchase the flat for £270,000 in August 2007, shortly after being appointed to the Shadow Cabinet and invited to join the House of Lords. The flat was in the process of being built, and I was not able to complete on the purchase and move into the flat until the end of March 2008. From then until June 2010, the flat was my London residence, where I stayed in order to enable me to undertake duties in the House.

Shortly after becoming a Minister in 2010, upon security advice, I moved to another address. Due to depreciation, the value of the North West London flat at that time was below the threshold for registration (and remains so: I have received professional advice that the property would currently sell for between £240,000 and £245,000).

After moving out in June 2010, and being informed that a sale of the property would result in a £30,000 loss, I sought advice from the Leader of the House of Lords on whether it would be permissible to let the property, and whether I would need to seek permission from any other Lords officials. The Leader suggested that as a Minister I should address these matters to the Cabinet Office, which I did, and obtained their agreement that I could let the property. Copies of this email exchange and the relevant entry on the register of Ministerial interests can be provided.

The property was first let in late 2010. At that time, both the value of the property and the income received were below the threshold for registration. In the tax year 2010/11, the net income derived from the flat, as included on my tax return, was a loss of £324, and the gross rent received £6,937. Although I have not yet submitted my tax return for 2011/12, I am confident that the net income from the flat will be less than £5,000. However, I appreciate that the guide to the rules is silent on whether the threshold for disclosure refers to net income derived or gross rent received. If it is the latter, then the flat became registrable in or around February 2011.
Due to an oversight, for which I take full responsibility, I did not address the question of whether the property needed to be included on the Register of Lords’ Interests when the rent received came to exceed the £5,000 threshold.

Throughout this process, I have endeavoured to ensure that relevant authorities have been notified at all times. The fact that I owned, and was letting out, the flat was known to Cabinet Office, the Leader of the House, and HM Revenue and Customs. As soon as I became aware that the flat was not included on the Register of Lords’ Interests, I immediately informed the Registrar.

I would sincerely like to apologise for any failure to disclose my personal interests in accordance with the rules of the House. If I can provide any further information please do not hesitate to contact me.

Appendix F: Letter from the Commissioner to Baroness Warsi, 7 June 2012
My letter to you dated 29 May 2012 refers.

Your letter to me dated 28 May 2012 invited me to investigate allegations that you had made improper claims for overnight subsistence. I liaised with the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct and advised you that they had agreed that I could start an investigation on the basis of your request. I subsequently received a letter of complaint from Mr John Mann MP (copy attached) in which he alleges that you committed the offence of fraud in relation to subsistence claims.

I now intend to investigate your claims for overnight subsistence during the period October 2007 to March 2008. I also feel that it would be in everyone’s interest for me to investigate relevant entries in the Register of Lords’ Interests connected with your accommodation needs/ownership. I note your own reference to newspaper allegations and the Sunday Times specifically suggested that your Register entries were not always accurate and up to date. In particular they highlighted income from a property you rented out in London.

Paragraph 111 limits my remit to complaints made within four years of the conduct complained about. However, the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct have agreed with my interpretation that the time limit does not apply to matters self-referred to me.

In addition to Mr Mann’s attached letter of complaint, I also attach for your information and ease of reference copies of your expense claims (February, March and April 2008), together with a copy of “Members’ Reimbursement Allowance Scheme General Guide Sixth Edition – January 2007”. Copies of your expense claims prior to February 2008 were not retained by the Finance Department. If you hold copies of the relevant documents, it would be helpful if you copied them to me.

I should advise you that I have also received a letter of complaint from Mr Simon Danczuk MP (copy attached). However, I have written to Mr Danczuk highlighting that his letter contains no specific allegations or evidence. I have invited him to consider resubmitting his complaint in a more appropriate form. I am not taking any further action on the basis of his letter to me.
It appears to me that on the basis of the complaint and of your own invitation that you may have breached the following provisions of the “Code of Conduct for Members of the House of Lords”—

8. Members of the House:
(a) must comply with the Code of Conduct;
(b) should act always on their personal honour ...

9. Members of the House should observe the seven general principles of conduct identified by the Committee on Standards in Public Life. These principles will be taken into consideration when any allegation of breaches of the provisions in other sections of the Code is under investigation:
(a) Selflessness: Holders of public office should take decisions solely in terms of the public interest. They should not do so in order to gain financial or other material benefits for themselves, their family, or their friends.
(b) Integrity: Holders of public office should not place themselves under any financial or other obligation to outside individuals or organisations that might influence them in the performance of their official duties.
(c) Objectivity: In carrying out public business, including making public appointments, awarding contracts, or recommending individuals for rewards and benefits, holders of public office should make choices on merit.
(d) Accountability: Holders of public office are accountable for their decisions and actions to the public and must submit themselves to whatever scrutiny is appropriate to their office.
(e) Openness: Holders of public office should be as open as possible about all the decisions and actions that they take. They should give reasons for their decisions and restrict information only when the wider public interest clearly demands.
(f) Honesty: Holders of public office have a duty to declare any private interests relating to their public duties and to take steps to resolve any conflicts arising in a way that protects the public interest.
(g) Leadership: Holders of public office should promote and support these principles by leadership and example.

10. In order to assist in openness and accountability Members shall:
(a) register in the Register of Lords’ Interests all relevant interests, in order to make clear what are the interests that might reasonably be thought to influence their parliamentary actions ...
(c) act in accordance with any rules agreed by the House in respect of financial support for Members or the facilities of the House ...

13. Members are responsible for ensuring that their registered interests are accurate and up-to-date. They should register any change in their relevant interests within one month of the change.

In essence, the allegations against you suggest that you claimed overnight subsistence when either you had no basis for your claim, or that you claimed more than was appropriate. In addition, you failed to register your interests in an accurate and up-to-date manner as required by the Code of Conduct.

I now invite you to respond in writing with a full and accurate account of the matters in question. A response by 29 June 2012 would assist me in expeditiously progressing my investigation.
Appendix G: Statement from Baroness Warsi, 22 June 2012

I, SAYEEDA WARSI, the Right Honourable the Baroness WARSI, of the House of Lords, the Palace of Westminster, London WILL SAY:

1. I make this statement pursuant to my referral of 28 May 2012 to the Commissioner for Standards in the House of Lords, and which is set out in my letter to the Commissioner on that date. The matter which I have referred is my stay in part of a property occupied by Naweed Khan, at the relevant period a member of the Conservative Party staff, and which was owned by Wafik Moustafa. I occupied part of that property from time to time around February to March 2008. This statement is therefore confined to that period. This statement is also provided to the Commissioner for Standards for only one purpose, which is set out above. It, and the media on which it is produced, remain my property and I exercise my rights over them.

2. The facts in this statement are within my own knowledge and, I believe they are true; they are based on my recollection of events which took place over four years ago, and so I must state that they are accurate to the best of my recollection.

3. My principal residence, which is my family home, has always been in West Yorkshire. Before I entered politics, I qualified as a solicitor of the Supreme Court and after a period in private practice, I worked in the family business, a furniture manufacturer in Dewsbury.

4. In July 2007, I was invited by the Leader of the Opposition to be Shadow Minister for Community Cohesion and to become a member of the House of Lords. I accepted this invitation and was informed in due course that I was to be introduced in the House of Lords on 15 October 2007.

5. I began to look for a flat in London because it would have been impossible to travel to London from Yorkshire every day, and impractical to stay in hotels indefinitely. I found a flat in Wembley which was in the process of being built. I was told it would be ready by early 2008. I put down a 10% deposit of £27,000, made arrangements for a mortgage and exchanged contracts on 31 August 2007. I paid for the deposit on the flat with money drawn down on a facility on the mortgage on my home in Dewsbury. I was therefore put to expense (interest) from that time onwards. I was incurring that expense during the period 31 August 2007–28 March 2008.

6. My normal pattern was to drive from Yorkshire on Sunday, stay in London until Thursday and drive back to Yorkshire.

7. I received no salary from my post in the Shadow Cabinet or the House of Lords. I was informed during my induction about my entitlement to claim for overnight subsistence and other allowances. I was informed that the purpose of the allowance scheme was to meet expenses associated with staying in London. I was told that it was the accepted and standard practice to claim the full amount and to meet expenses from this. I was told that peers regularly found themselves out of pocket on a day by day basis and it was for this reason that everybody was encouraged to claim the full daily amount because the amounts claimed could be aggregated and averaged over a period of time.
8. I was told that it was not necessary to keep logs, details, receipts or any other documentation of expenses incurred as these were neither required nor expected.

9. I used the overnight allowance as a contribution towards my costs for overnight accommodation and related expenses such as taxis, meals, dry cleaning, overnight parking and other miscellaneous expenses. I am confident that my aggregated spending on accommodation and other costs associated with staying overnight in London exceeded my claims for overnight subsistence allowance.

10. The completion date for my new flat kept being pushed back by the developers. Around early February 2008, Mr Naweed Khan who was a member of staff at Conservative Campaign Headquarters (he worked as Deputy Head of Cities and Diversity), told me that I could stay in the spare room at his place at Birkbeck Road, Acton, W3 6BQ, as and when I needed it. I accepted this offer, which was helpful. However, I was aware that it caused him some personal inconvenience. I felt it was only appropriate to make a payment which reflected this, and insisted that he accept payment, which he agreed to do. Legally speaking, I was his licensee, in the same way as I would have been if I had stayed in a hotel.

11. Birkbeck Road is a house on three floors: a ground floor, first floor and a top floor. Naweed occupied the top floor. The owner, Wafik Moustafa, occupied the ground floor and first floor. Naweed’s bedroom had an en-suite shower room, which was the only washing facility on that floor. Naweed had two spare rooms. The second floor had its own separate toilet, which was used exclusively by Naweed and his guests. From what I understand, he was allowed to use Wafik Moustafa’s kitchen, which was on the ground floor.

12. The only part of the house I used was Naweed’s part (that is, the top floor) and, very occasionally the shared kitchen. I did not cook there and never had my evening meal there. Naweed gave me a front door key to the house. I was not a tenant of Wafik Moustafa and had no agreement with him to occupy any other part of the house. At no point did Wafik Moustafa suggest to me that he objected to my staying with Naweed. Wafik Moustafa never asked me for rent and I never paid him any. We never discussed rent and he never treated me as a tenant.

13. Whilst at the property, I would occasionally see Wafik Moustafa, and on a number of occasions, when he was aware that I was in the house, he would invite me downstairs and introduce me to his friends; I obliged him as it would have been rude to ignore them. I formed the distinct impression that he called friends round specifically when he was aware that I was staying with Naweed and liked to tell people that I was staying in the house.

14. I believe that I stayed in the Acton flat a total of twelve nights, over a period of around six to eight weeks. Although I cannot be absolutely sure, as I am dealing from memory, the reason that I think it was twelve nights is because I recall that the amount that I paid to Naweed was a total of £1,200. To the best of my knowledge, this was two cash payments of £500 and one of £200. I recall paying him £100 per night. The reason I paid this amount is because I had other expenses associated with staying overnight in London. I did not obtain any receipts because, as I have said, there was no need for me to do so.
15. My recollection is that some of these nights were during a recess period and that although I paid Naweed for each occasion that I stayed during recess, I was unable to claim any allowance from the House of Lords as the House was not sitting. The reason I recall this is because at the time I was a single parent, my daughter was on holiday from school, and I had no option but to bring her to London with me.

16. I did not stay in Acton every night I was in London during the relevant period. Sometimes, for example, I stayed in hotels.

17. When staying in Acton, I incurred the cost of taxis, evening meals, overnight parking, dry cleaning and other expenses on top of the accommodation amount. As already noted, I was also during this period and earlier, incurring interest charges for the deposit that I had put down on a flat which was not yet complete but was intended to become my London base.

18. I am confident that at all times, when aggregated over the relevant period, I incurred expenses associated with staying overnight to attend the House in excess of the amount I claimed as overnight subsistence allowance.

19. On Friday 28 March 2008, the purchase of my flat in Wembley completed and I moved in over the course of that weekend.

Dated this 22nd day of June 2012.

Appendix H: Letter from the Commissioner to Baroness Warsi, 12 July 2012

My letters to you dated 7 June 2012 and 27 June 2012 refer.

I have now obtained additional information relevant both to your self-referral and to Mr Mann’s complaint. I felt it would be appropriate to set out in some detail the issues which form the core of my investigation and to invite you to address directly these matters.

[A] Alleged failure properly to register property interest

I have obtained copies of your “ministerial interests return” documentation completed on 24 May 2010 and 19 April 2011. You also supplied me with a copy of your letter to the chairman of the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct dated 22 June 2012. However, the copy letter supplied to me was not accompanied by the documents mentioned in the text (that is, a copy of your correspondence with the Registrar dated 21 May 2012). I also note your current entry (12 July 2012) in the Register of Lords’ Interests under category 5.

I should be grateful if you would supply the documentation mentioned in your letter of 22 June 2012 and also confirm whether the flat you locate in north-west London is the same flat as that located in Wembley.

I note that your Cabinet Office interests return dated 24 May 2010 shows a main residence in Wakefield and a second home in Wembley, London. It also shows one property valued at below £100,000 which was not then rented.

The return dated 19 April 2011 shows the same main residence but an amended second home in central London. The “Section 3: Investment Property” entry suggests there are two properties, both rented but only one address in Wembley is given. The Cabinet Office confirms that the entry is meant to show two properties are rented.
I would be grateful if you would supply the address of the other property and confirm that its purchase price was below £250,000 and that an income of less than £5,000 a year is derived from it.

I should highlight that I am conscious of personal security issues and any report I produce will have sensitive address information redacted.

In essence, I need to establish if you failed to register a property which should have been registered. I can deduce from your letter to the chairman of the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct that you recognise that you did fail to register such a property but rectified the position on 21 May 2012. You state that whilst you failed to make the appropriate House of Lords’ registration you made a full declaration to both the Cabinet Office and Her Majesty’s Revenue and Customs. The information requested above will help establish the facts.

[B] Alleged improper claims for overnight subsistence

This issue was specifically raised by in your self-referral letter dated 28 May 2012. You mentioned allegations in the media about improper claims for overnight subsistence allowance in 2008. You then went on to strongly reject any suggestion that your claims were improper. You subsequently provided me with a statement in June 2012.

The Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct agreed that I could start an investigation on the basis of your request and that the normal four-year time limit doesn’t apply in cases of self referral. You have advised me that on 28 March 2008 you completed the purchase of a flat in Wembley and moved in over that weekend. Thus, the relevant period during which the question of improper claims for overnight subsistence commences in January 2008 and terminates at the end of March 2008.

The records management policy of the House of Lords Finance Department means that the only documentation I have been able to access is that in respect of your night subsistence (and allied matters) claims from February 2008 onwards.

The rules (applicable in 2008) covering the relevant aspects of financial support to members are set out in “Members’ Reimbursement, Allowance Scheme, General Guide, Sixth Edition (January 2007)” (hereafter referred to as the “Rules”).

Paragraph 1.1.1 of the Rules states—

Members of the House of Lords do not, in general, receive a salary in respect of their parliamentary duties. However, Members may be reimbursed actual expenses arising out of these duties, in accordance with the rules of the Members’ Reimbursement Allowance Scheme. The Members’ Reimbursement Allowance Scheme is governed by Resolutions of the House. The scheme rules are applied by the Clerk of the Parliaments who has limited discretion to deal with matters that arise on claims. Points of particular difficulty or doubt may be referred to the House Committee, which supervises the arrangements for reimbursement of expenses…

Unsalaried Members are able to recover expenses for:

- daily and overnight subsistence expenses, office costs and travel expenses incurred in attending a sitting of the House or a Committee at Westminster – see section 4.
Paragraph 1.2.1—
All amounts paid in settlement of claims as detailed in this guide represent reimbursement of actual expenses arising out of unpaid parliamentary duty, rather than income from employment. Consequently, they are not subject to income tax, and need not be included on a tax return.

Paragraph 4.4.1—
Members whose main residence is outside Greater London may claim for expenses of overnight accommodation in London whilst away from their only or main residence.

Paragraph 4.4.2—
A Member whose main residence is outside Greater London and who maintains a residence in London for the purpose of attending sittings of the House may claim this allowance towards the cost of maintaining such a residence.

I attach for your information and ease of reference copies of the claim forms (ME1) which were completed and submitted by you in respect of February and March 2008. Mr Mann in his complaint makes reference to the use of hotels, as mentioned in newspaper articles.

Did you retain any records, or do you have any recollection, of which hotels you stayed in, the dates you stayed there and the amounts you paid to those establishments?

In your statement you say that you believed you “stayed in the Acton flat a total of twelve nights,” although, you could not be absolutely sure. The flat being located at Birkbeck Road, Acton. You go on to say that you use the figure of 12 nights on the basis that you recall having paid Mr Naweed Khan the sum of £1,200. You recall paying him on the basis of £100 per night.

I have spoken with Mr Naweed Khan about your stay at Birkbeck Road and he recalls receiving around £1,500 from you. His recollection is not precise. He indicated that from his perspective the payments which you made to him were in recognition and compensation for the inconvenience of your living at Birkbeck Road and the impact on his working hours and domestic routine. He made no payments to the owner of the house (Dr Moustafa), either generally or when you were staying. Thus, your presence did not impact on him in terms of rental or utilities charges.

I have also spoken with Dr Moustafa and, whilst he provides a different account of how you came to be living at Birkbeck Road, he also confirms that he received no money from either Naweed Kahn or yourself arising from your individual occupation of Birkbeck Road.

In the light of paragraphs 1.1.1 and 1.2.1 of the Rules governing reimbursement of actual expenses, I invite you explain fully how payments made by you to Naweed Khan justify claims submitted by you. It would be helpful if you could, in addition to listing your nights in hotel accommodation, also list the nights you stayed at Birkbeck Road and for which you made payments to Mr Khan.

You mention at paragraph 7 of your statement that you were told about “accepted and standard practice” in relation to claiming full amounts of financial support and also “that everybody was encouraged to claim the full daily amount”. It would be helpful if you could identify the individuals (and/or the offices) who provided this advice, and the context in which it was provided.
Equally, it would be helpful to know who provided the advice you mention at paragraph 8.

In relation to paragraph 17 of the same statement, a breakdown or estimate of the amounts spent on the headings mentioned would assist. In addition, what was the monthly interest charge associated with the deposit on your flat purchase?

A prompt response would be most helpful.

Appendix I: Letter from Baroness Warsi to the Commissioner, 17 July 2012

Further to your letter of 12 July, you have asked for responses to specific requests detailed in your letter.

I enclose the exchange of emails with the Registrar of Lords’ Interests and can confirm that the flat in north-west London is that located in Wembley.

The address of the property is _______________. It was purchased in 2005 for £76,000. I can confirm that it is valued at less than £250,000 and the current gross rent is less than £5,000pa.

However with reference to para. 2, p. 2, to obtain a clearer position, I refer you back to my letter of the 22 June 2012, specifically para. 5. Given that the value of the property was below the relevant threshold, the issue turns on the matter on which the Guide to the Rules is silent, i.e. whether the income threshold refers to net income derived and received or gross rent.

Unfortunately, I do not have a recollection of precisely which dates I stayed in hotels, or indeed precisely which dates I stayed in Acton, but these would predominantly align with my attendance dates at the House of Lords, of which you have records.

I do not have an exact recollection of precise amounts paid, but the room rates were generally in the region of £70-110 per night, excluding breakfast, overnight parking and other miscellaneous expenses.

As detailed in my statement, I was specifically advised that there was no need or requirement to retain records, logs or receipts. If I had been required to retain these I would have done so.

Naweed Khan was a member of staff at Conservative Campaign Headquarters. The rationale for paying him was based on what I was paying at the time to stay in hotels. My stays at __ Birkbeck Road were therefore on a par with staying commercially anywhere else. I considered that it would have been inappropriate to do otherwise.

As I have said previously, I felt that it was important to compensate Naweed Khan for the inconvenience and additional expense to which he was put as a result of having a guest stay. To do otherwise could have been seen as taking advantage of a member of staff. I considered myself to be his licensee, and I therefore considered that it was appropriate to put these stays on a commercial arm’s length basis.
I was not aware of the financial arrangements between Naweed Khan and Wafik Moustafa and neither did I consider it my business to enquire into them. In any event, my payments to Naweed Khan were based on what I felt was appropriate and reasonable as a paying guest. I did not consider my overnight stays there as akin to staying with family or friends, but as an arm’s length commercial arrangement for which I was grateful at a difficult time when the completion of my flat had been delayed.

With reference to page 3, para. 6 of your letter, I would reiterate that I was not “living at” Birkbeck Road; I was staying intermittently over a period of around six to eight weeks. Having not had sight of Wafik Moustafa’s evidence, I am unable to comment on his account of how I came to be staying at Birkbeck Road, but by way of context, I would draw your attention to the widely-reported breakdown of the relationship between Wafik Moustafa and the Conservative Party earlier this year, which triggered these, and other, allegations.

I refer you back to paragraphs 7-9 of my statement. Lord Strathclyde, Baroness Anelay and other peers were involved in the induction process, as well as the House of Lords finance department. I cannot recollect precisely which parts of the advice were received from which individual, but the overall advice I was given was clear and is detailed in my statement.

On the specific issue mentioned in para. 8 of my state, having worked all my life in the private sector, I thought it unusual that there was no requirement, nor any provision, to submit receipts. On this issue, I recall seeking advice from the Finance Department. I was told that no receipts, logs or records were required to be kept or submitted. Had I been required to retain such records, or been advised to retain such records, I would have done so.

As you are aware, the overnight subsistence allowance is intended to cover expenses incurred in staying overnight in London and the headings referred to in my statement cover the same.

Working from memory and from recent enquiries, my calculations are as follows:

Room-rate: £70 – 110 / night
Breakfast: £8 – 10 / day
Taxis to/from overnight accommodation: £25 (morning), £30 (evening)
Evening meal: £10 – 20 / night
Overnight parking: £8 – 20 / night
Dry cleaning, including formal wear: £30 / week

Interest on deposit on flat: £150-175 / month
(The interest rate used to calculate this figure is based on the rates charged by my then mortgage provider on the facility I used to pay the deposit and related purchase costs.)

As previously stated, I am confident that at all times, when aggregated over the relevant period, I incurred expenses associated with staying overnight to attend the House in excess of the amount I claimed in overnight subsistence allowance.

I look forward to receiving your response.
1. The Commissioner for Standards (Mr Paul Kernaghan): Once again, Dr Moustafa, thank you very much for coming here this afternoon. I would be very grateful if you could give me your full name and address please.

2. Dr Wafik Moustafa: My name is Dr Wafik Moustafa. My home address is: Birkbeck Road, Acton, W3 6BQ.

3. Mr Kernaghan: Thank you very much. Is it correct that you featured in several newspaper articles concerning the London accommodation used by Baroness Warsi, that on 13 June you wrote to me stating that you would be happy to be interviewed by me and that I then contacted you and arranged today’s interview—namely, Monday 25 June at 1500 hours?

4. Dr Moustafa: That is correct.

5. Mr Kernaghan: I now invite and would welcome you to give your account of your dealings with Baroness Warsi in so far as they relate to accommodation owned by yourself.

6. Dr Moustafa: That is fine. I met Baroness Warsi in late ’06 or early ’07. I knew her vaguely before that because she stood for Parliament the same year as myself in 2005. I met her through Naweed Khan, who knew her a bit more. Naweed Khan at that stage was living at Lord Mohamed Sheikh’s house. I was not aware where he was living then, but I knew that he was fairly close. Naweed Khan was looking for a place to stay instead of going to Croydon where Lord Sheikh lives. I offered to him and said that he would be welcome. It was meant to be short-term—just a bit of help—but it became about one and a half years.

7. During that period, he asked me if we can invite Baroness Warsi—Sayeeda—to stay at my house. I said that I would welcome her. I met Sayeeda through bits and pieces—at party events and functions—and I welcomed her. She came to my house and I offered her a room upstairs on the second floor. I offered her the key for my house. Indeed, the key is still with her, actually. I did not take it back. There was a reason for that. She left my house in March 2008 because she moved to her new flat in Wembley, for which I helped her with bits and pieces to move to the flat.

8. At that time, Naweed Khan was living as a guest free of charge—he was not being charged or asked to pay anything. The same rule applied to Sayeeda. She was not asked to pay anything, nor did she offer to pay anything. Sayeeda was free like myself or like Naweed Khan: she had got her key; she could invite people to meet in my house; she could please herself—I did not have any control over what she did. Occasionally, she would ring me or we would meet or I would take her out for dinner. She asked me to take her to a halal meat shop, a place in Hammersmith—I forget what it is called. It is near the cinema in King Street. It is called al-Mahdi or something. It is an Iranian halal restaurant. That is really about it.

9. Mr Kernaghan: That is fine. That is very helpful. I am going to ask you a series of specific questions, but they relate very much to what you have told me. I apologise in advance if they appear very simple, but they are quite important.

10. Dr Moustafa: I am very happy.

11. Mr Kernaghan: From what you have said, you are the owner of Birkbeck Road?

12. Dr Moustafa: Yes.
13. Mr Kernaghan: And you lived there at the time Baroness Warsi was there and you still live there today?

14. Dr Moustafa: Yes.

15. Mr Kernaghan: Thank you. From what you have said, the only tenants you had, or people who were in the house other than yourself, were Naweed Khan and Baroness Warsi.

16. Dr Moustafa: Yes. There was a Chinese lady who stayed for a while as well, but that was nothing to do with them, actually. I always have people. As it happens, I have a large Victorian house and I always have guests in my house—before Sayeeda, after Sayeeda. I invite people I feel comfortable with. She was not an exception.

17. Mr Kernaghan: I appreciate that. You have said that you did not take any money from Naweed Khan. Let us just deal with him initially. So there was no tenancy agreement in terms of a written document. There was no rent book. It was just, as you have said, people come and go. You allowed him to live in your house.

18. Dr Moustafa: There was no tenancy agreement or anything of that nature.

19. Mr Kernaghan: I am assuming then that that would be exactly the same arrangement—or informal arrangement—with Baroness Warsi.

20. Dr Moustafa: Exactly the same.

21. Mr Kernaghan: Great. Thank you. When you gave your account, you highlighted that no money was received from Naweed Khan or offered. I think you equally said that no money was received from Baroness Warsi or offered.

22. Dr Moustafa: No money was received or offered from either Naweed Khan or Baroness Warsi.

23. Mr Kernaghan: Did either of them make any contribution in terms of the electricity or the hot water that they were using?

24. Dr Moustafa: Neither of them made any contribution.

25. Mr Kernaghan: In essence, you are the owner of the house and you were paying for all the utilities. Naweed Khan and Baroness Warsi at a certain stage occupied rooms in your house, but they did not contribute to the running of the house financially.

26. Dr Moustafa: Not at all.

27. Mr Kernaghan: Great. Thank you. I was going to ask you what you considered your relationship to be with Baroness Warsi in the context of her living in your property, but I think you are saying that you are very fortunate to own quite a large house and that, from your own generosity et cetera, you have allowed people to stay in your house at various stages.

28. Dr Moustafa: Exactly. It was not for any other reason.

29. Mr Kernaghan: Did you consider Baroness Warsi to be a sub-tenant or a licensee of Naweed Khan?

30. Dr Moustafa: No. I found that written in the newspapers, but I do not believe the story.
31. Mr Kernaghan: Let us ignore stories et cetera in the media. At the end of the day, you are the owner of that house. You have recounted that Naweed Khan approached you about inviting Baroness Warsi to live there, but the relationship was that you had a relationship with Naweed Khan—he had permission to live in your house. Do you think that Baroness Warsi accepted his invitation to live in that house, or did she accept your invitation?

32. Dr Moustafa: It was at my invitation. He just gave me the introduction. That was not over a day or two but probably over two weeks or so. It was purely my invitation.

33. Mr Kernaghan: Thank you for that. You have very kindly answered all the questions that I have. Are there any last comments or thoughts that you would like to share with me?

34. Dr Moustafa: The only thing I know is that Baroness Warsi is aware that Naweed did not pay any rent to me.

35. Mr Kernaghan: You are saying that she was aware that he had no financial relationship with you.

36. Dr Moustafa: Yes, she is aware of that.

37. Mr Kernaghan: How was she aware, or why do you say that?

38. Dr Moustafa: Because we discussed it.

39. Mr Kernaghan: So you have had a discussion with Baroness Warsi and she was aware that Naweed Khan was making no financial contribution to the house.

40. Dr Moustafa: Yes.

41. Mr Kernaghan: Thank you very much indeed, Dr Moustafa. Thank you for coming in and sparing the time.

Appendix K: Transcript of the Commissioner’s interview with Mr Naweed Khan, 3 July 2012

1. The Commissioner for Standards (Mr Paul Kernaghan): Mr Khan, just for the record, I am taping this interview and, as I have said, I will supply you with a full transcript of the interview. I am now going to invite everyone in the room to identify themselves for the purposes of the tape. It sounds very formal, but it helps the people who are preparing the transcript. My name is Paul Kernaghan. I am the Lords Commissioner for Standards.

2. Mr Nicolas Besly (clerk): I am Nicolas Besly, and I am the clerk who assists the Commissioner.

3. Mr Khan: I am Naweed Khan. I am currently the special adviser at the Cabinet Office.

4. Ms Jessica Cunniffe: I am Jessica Cunniffe and I am a colleague from Conservative Central Office.

5. Mr Kernaghan: Thank you very much. At the outset, let me say that I am grateful to you, Mr Khan, for agreeing to come in and speak to me. Just to set the scene, although I know you will be very familiar with this, a complaint has been received in respect of Baroness Warsi in relation to the House of Lords Code of Conduct and, indeed, Baroness Warsi has herself self-referred to me, and the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct has agreed that I can investigate on the basis of both her self-referral and, indeed, the complaint.
The issue seems to relate to a particular area, where I am looking for assistance from you, in relation to property and accommodation in London. I have a series of questions which I would be very grateful if you could address. Equally, if at any stage you want to clarify or expand, I am grateful for that information. But it is a fairly narrow investigation. I am not looking for the full background, just information related to specific points.

You have identified yourself as Naweed Khan. Can I ask you whether you have lived at Birkbeck Road, Acton, W3 6BQ?

6. Mr Khan: Yes, I did.

7. Mr Kernaghan: Thank you. Can I ask you: what was the basis of your occupation in terms of rent, a rent book or a rental agreement?

8. Mr Khan: I did not have a rental agreement. I did not have a rent book. The owner was a friend of mine who I had met in 2005 during the general election. We developed a friendship and he invited me to come and stay with him in early 2007, and I eventually moved in in mid-2007.

9. Mr Kernaghan: And that friend, the owner of the property, was Dr Moustafa.

10. Mr Khan: Yes.

11. Mr Kernaghan: Thank you. I am sorry, when did you say you moved into the house?

12. Mr Khan: In the middle of 2007, possibly June or July.

13. Mr Kernaghan: Thank you. When did Baroness Warsi move into the house?

14. Mr Khan: She did not “move in”. She stayed a few days. Again, it would have been in 2008. I am going to be really honest and say that I cannot be specific on dates and stuff like that, but it was probably a couple of weeks before Valentine’s Day or something. But, again, it could have been the back end of January, or it could have been February.

15. Mr Kernaghan: Right, I see. From the best of your recollection, it could have been late January or early February. That is the time window. Interestingly, when I asked, “When did she move in?”, I think you in a sense queried that and said, “Well, she stayed a few days”. What I mean by “moved in” is: when was the first time she occupied a room in the house?

16. Mr Khan: Yes. When someone says “move in”, I expect them to bring their luggage in and to move in. That certainly was not the case.

17. Mr Kernaghan: How often did she live there?

18. Mr Khan: I would say, some weeks, maybe one or two days, or some two or three days. It was an irregular pattern.

19. Mr Kernaghan: I understand that. Did she make any payments to you or to the owner, Dr Moustafa, for staying there?

20. Mr Khan: I do not know what conversations she had with Wafik, but she did make payments to me.

21. Mr Kernaghan: Right. Can I ask you about the quantum of those payments?
APPENDIX: Privileges and Conduct Committee - 3rd Report 2012-13

22. Mr Khan: It was certainly less than £2,000, maybe around £1,500. I cannot be absolutely saying to you that it was this pound and that pence, but it was definitely less than £2,000—maybe around £1,500, maybe a bit less, maybe a little bit more. I do not know.

23. Mr Kernaghan: Right. I think what you are saying, but please correct me if I am putting words into your mouth or I am misinterpreting what you have said, is that you cannot give a precise figure. You seem reasonably happy that it was less than £2,000, probably around £1,500, but again you cannot be precise.

24. Mr Khan: I cannot be precise.

25. Mr Kernaghan: Right. Can I ask you: what was the basis or rationale for those payments?

26. Mr Khan: She stayed for a few days and she offered. She said, “Please take some money for my stay.” I did not ask for it. I said “No”, but she insisted. She said, “I have put you out for the last few days. This is what I would have spent anyway. Please take it.”

27. Mr Kernaghan: Right. Can I ask you, what did you use those payments for? What did you use that approximately £1,500 for?

28. Mr Khan: Going back, when she came to stay with me, it completely changed everything that I would do. So she would normally tell me, “Can I stay tonight and tomorrow?”, but it meant that I had to stay in Westminster to go back with her because it is in Acton and nowhere near the tube station. It is probably not the safest place from the tube station to the house. You know, in the context, she was probably having a really difficult time anyway. But it meant I would have to stay, even though I finished work at 5 pm or 5.30 pm, I would have to stay until she finished in the Lords and then travel back with her. So that was five or six hours extra of staying in Westminster for myself—drinks and hanging out around here. Subsequently, when we got back, we would—she would retire, but she would leave in the morning. She would knock on my door to use the shower because she used my shower in my room. I would have to leave my room for her to do that and go downstairs. So where I normally would wake up at half past seven, I now had to do that at six. I was then leaving the room and going downstairs. Maybe, I usually thought, you know, extra breakfast and things. It completely affected my routine.

29. Mr Kernaghan: Can we just pause for a moment? We have started to talk about late January or early February 2008. What was both Baroness Warsi’s status at that point in time and, specifically, what was your status in terms of employment?

30. Mr Khan: I worked for the department for external relations and I was the—

31. Mr Kernaghan: I am sorry. The department for external relations. I take it you mean as part of the Conservative Party?

32. Mr Khan: Yes. I worked for the Conservative Party. I was a full-time member of the Conservative Party. I was deputy head of a department called cities and diversity. She—as in Sayeeda, Baroness Warsi—was the vice-chairman of the Conservative Party. One of her portfolios was cities and diversity. That was the relationship. She was a political boss but not a line manager.

33. Mr Kernaghan: She was the vice-chairman of the Conservative Party and you were a full-time, paid employee of the Conservative Party. That is fine and helpful.

When I asked you about the rationale, you gave an example of going back late in the evening because you were not particularly confident that she should be walking back in that part of London in the evening. I think that is what you have indicated. What did you use those payments for? What did you use that £1,500 for?
34. Mr Khan: I mean, I cannot—you know—I genuinely cannot remember exactly how I spent that money, but then again I could not tell you how I spent £200 last week, as an example. It would have been to pay for food for myself, to pay for drinks with friends and things like that. Maybe there would be a bit of food in the house.

35. Mr Kernaghan: That is fine. Can I ask you: did you make any payments in turn to Dr Moustafa?

36. Mr Khan: No, I did not.

37. Mr Kernaghan: Right.

38. Mr Khan: Wafik, as I said at the outset, was a friend of mine at the time. He treated me like his younger brother. He always said he was there to help and support me and made me feel as an honoured guest. He got very uncomfortable and he refused to talk about money. He was genuinely a friend.

39. Mr Kernaghan: Who covered the additional—it may have been marginal, but it was obviously additional—heating and lighting costs when you have somebody else in the house? Were there any payments or transactions to cover that additional cost?

40. Mr Khan: I did not pay Wafik, no.

41. Mr Kernaghan: Ok.

42. Mr Khan: But he never at any point asked for any money. He made it very clear that he treated me like a younger brother. We went on holiday together in April 2008 and I lived in the house for another seven months after that. I did not move out until November 2008. It was not just this period. It was from about June or July 2007 through to November 2008, the back end of November 2008. We ate together, we holidayed—you know—we were friends.

43. Mr Kernaghan: That is helpful. Thank you for that. Did you declare any of these payments to HMRC?

44. Mr Khan: I did not see the need to at the time, but I have subsequently spoken to HMRC and written to them saying when is it an appropriate moment.

45. Mr Kernaghan: So you subsequently highlighted the payments to HMRC.

46. Mr Khan: Yes, saying how do I draw down from expenditure as a result of it and what is it classified as. I think the advice I got was about rent relief anyway because that was the place I was living in most of the time. I have written to them and, depending on what they write back, will subsequently pay any penalties.

47. Mr Kernaghan: I—

48. Mr Khan: I just want to put it into context—

49. Mr Kernaghan: Yes, please.

50. Mr Khan: Sayeea is one of the most generous people that I know. We love it when it comes to Christmas. We absolutely get loads of presents, both members of her team, both us in the Government and her team at Conservative headquarters. We have a joke in our office: “Please make sure we have our meetings around lunchtime or dinnertime near the House of Lords Bar because she will buy coffees”. It was unsurprising for her not to be very generous and offer things. Again, I would not—it became, when she offered, I said, “No, no, it is fine,” and she insisted. It was very difficult for me to—
51. Mr Kernaghan: I think you have been very open and transparent. Obviously I would put it to you that there was money that came from Baroness Warsi to you, and you have highlighted her generosity et cetera. Equally, you have highlighted that there was a degree—I use the word advisedly—of inconvenience for you when she was also residing in the house. You had to vacate your room so that she could use the shower facilities.

52. Mr Khan: At six o'clock in the morning rather than getting up at 7.30 am.

53. Mr Kernaghan: I was not even going to highlight the hour of the day, but equally—

54. Mr Khan: And also waiting for five hours in Westminster.

55. Mr Kernaghan: Yes, but what I am trying to say is that the payment appeared to be for your support—be it the escort, be it inconveniencing your domestic routine—as opposed to being in respect of actually occupying the accommodation.

56. Mr Khan: Well, she did, because she had said, you know, “This is what I would end up paying at a hotel, so please just take it. I am sorry that I have put you out. Please take it.” I chose to use that money to buy dinner for friends and stuff like that, but it was because she said, “Look, I would have used that money wherever I was going to stay, so please just take it.” That is why she made the offer. It was very difficult for me to say no.

57. Mr Kernaghan: I appreciate that it is very difficult for you to know the answer to this, but do you think she felt under an obligation to you because she was occupying a room in the same house as you?

58. Mr Khan: That is something you would have to ask her. I do not know. She made an offer saying, “Look, I have stayed here this many nights. Please take this money.” I accepted it. I mean, in hindsight—

59. Mr Kernaghan: As I say, I just want your honest account. It is very helpful.

So then, if I have it correctly, Baroness Warsi subsequently left the room in the house, a separate room she had, and then I think you have told me that around November 2008 you left the house as well.

60. Mr Khan: Yes.

61. Mr Kernaghan: Did you get your own flat?

62. Mr Khan: Yes. I moved to Kennington where I have been ever since. I am with my mates. It is a 15-minute walk to Parliament, CCHQ and the Cabinet Office. No one-hour tubes, no nothing, although it takes a big toll on your shoes.

63. Mr Kernaghan: I appreciate the joys of living in inner London, with its convenience for Westminster. I think it is sometimes referred to as the Westminster village.

64. Mr Khan: It means that when you are working and it is 10.30 at night or you go for a drink after work—because inevitably you drink at the Marquis of Granby; Nick probably knows this—it is easy and you can walk home. It is cheaper than cabs.

65. Mr Kernaghan: That has covered the areas that I was seeking your assistance on. Is there anything else you would like to tell me that you think would be helpful? Equally, you may not think that anything else is relevant, but I would like to give you a final opportunity to supply any information you feel is relevant.
66. Mr Khan: I did not know about—I did not deal with Sayeeda’s—because I did not work for her. I work for the Conservative campaign headquarters. I was not employed to work for her, so I did not know anything about the Lords, how it worked or anything like that. I was doing a very political job on cities and our urban renewal policy and stuff like that. The other thing is, Sayeeda was around for a lot longer after she had moved in 2009/2010 in terms of because I had friends in the area and stuff like that. So from, I would say, her being in London from July 2007 from the Ealing by-election—the Ealing Southall by-election onwards—she was around the area and stuff like that. We would have dinners and stuff like that with friends. It is not, you know—her period in the house is only a small part of the period that she was around the area.

67. Mr Kernaghan: I recognise that. My remit is very narrow and I will be very clear with you. I am looking at issues of accommodation et cetera. The wider context is outside my remit.

68. Mr Khan: Yes. The reason I say that is because, you know, Dr Wafik Moustafa joined us for dinner and stuff like that. What I am saying is that her friendships—you know, with the Ismaili community in particular and the Aga Khan community—is not relevant, but it is wider than her relationship there.

69. Mr Kernaghan: You have just explained in your remarks that you were a full-time official in the Conservative Party. What was the process of moving from that to become a special adviser?

70. Mr Khan: When I moved out in November to December 2008, there was restructuring within the Conservative Party—

71. Mr Kernaghan: We do not need to know the party secrets, I can assure you.

72. Mr Khan: There was restructuring. I left my job as deputy head of cities and diversity in one department and moved across to the Conservative research department, where I became a desk officer or special adviser in the Conservative research department. I covered a wide brief which included immigration, home affairs and DCLG. So I worked, in opposition, on policy and everything and on our manifestos for our Shadow Home Secretary, who at that time was Chris Grayling, I think, and Caroline Spelman in DCLG, and then all the subsequent Shadow Cabinet Ministers. So my relationship on a professional level remained with Sayeeda, because she was one of the Ministers that sat both as a member of the Cabinet and as a member of the shadow home affairs and DCLG team. So I still maintained a professional relationship and subsequently wrote speeches and policy documents. I went and met police officers and talked about what they thought we should be doing. Obviously not all of it was being delivered at that time.

Then subsequently, after the general election, I was a full member of the Conservative research department with colleagues like Sheridan Westlake, who is now at DCLG, or Denzil Davidson, who is now at the Foreign Office. Lots of us in the Conservative research department were offered jobs in government that either mirrored our portfolios in opposition or subsequently other portfolios. I was one of the lucky ones. I mean, I had worked for the Conservative Party since 2003, so I had done seven years—the general election in 2005 and the general election in 2010—and I was one of the, I would say, fortunate ones. Hopefully, to anyone who is still there.

73. Mr Kernaghan: That is interesting. Thank you for that. Nick, are there any questions or points you would like to make?

74. Mr Besly: No, I do not think so. Thank you.

75. Mr Kernaghan: Thank you. At this point I will turn off the tape.
APPENDIX

PRIVILEGES AND CONDUCT COMMITTEE - 4TH REPORT 2012-13

THE CONDUCT OF BARONESS CUMBERLEGGE

1. Annexed to this report are reports by the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct and the Commissioner for Standards relating to complaints against Lord Willoughby de Broke.

2. The Commissioner has partially upheld the complaints, in respect of Lord Willoughby’s failure to register and declare certain relevant interests. Lord Willoughby has accepted the Commissioner’s finding and apologised; the matter has therefore been dealt with by means of remedial action and is now closed.

3. We make this report for information.

ANNEX 1: REPORT FROM THE SUB-COMMITTEE ON LORDS’ CONDUCT

1. The Commissioner for Standards has submitted the attached report upholding in part complaints made against Lord Willoughby de Broke.

2. The complainant alleged that Lord Willoughby failed (i) to register his interest as a director of 77 Warrington Crescent Ltd (which was concerned with the maintenance of four flats); (ii) to register his interest in Moreton Morrell Tennis Court Company; and (iii) to declare in debates an interest as a recipient of farm subsidy payments.

3. On (i) the Commissioner found Lord Willoughby to have breached the Code of Conduct. On (ii) the Commissioner found Lord Willoughby not to have breached the Code. On (iii) the Commissioner found Lord Willoughby to have breached the Code on two occasions.

4. Lord Willoughby accepted the findings that he was in breach and the Commissioner agreed with him remedial action in the form of letters of formal apology to the chairman of the sub-committee (which are reprinted as an appendix to the Commissioner’s report).

5. We welcome Lord Willoughby’s acceptance that he breached the Code of Conduct and his apologies for those breaches. We do not consider that any further sanction is appropriate.

6. We recommend that the Committee for Privileges and Conduct should make a report to the House on this case.
Summary of the complaints

1. Mr Tom Watson MP wrote to me on 16 May 2012, requesting that I launch an investigation into his allegation that Lord Willoughby de Broke had failed to register directorships in two companies as required by the Code of Conduct (appendix A). Mr Watson then wrote to me on 18 May 2012 claiming that Lord Willoughby de Broke had also repeatedly failed to declare farm subsidy payments when speaking in the House, or communicating with ministers, when such interests were relevant (appendix B).

2. On the basis of the complaints it appeared that there might have been breaches of the following provisions of the 2010 Code of Conduct—

8. Members of the House:
   (a) must comply with the Code of Conduct;
   (b) should always act on their personal honour ...
10. In order to assist in openness and accountability Members shall ...
   (b) declare when speaking in the House, or communicating with ministers or public servants, any interest which is a relevant interest in the context of the debate or the matter under discussion ...
11. The test of relevant interest is whether the interest might be thought by a reasonable member of the public to influence the way in which a Member of the House of Lords discharges his or her parliamentary duties; in the case of registration, the member’s parliamentary duties in general; in the case of declaration, his or her duties in respect of the particular matters under discussion.
12. The test of relevant interest is therefore not whether a Member’s actions in Parliament will be influenced by the interest, but whether a reasonable member of the public might think that this might be the case. Relevant interests include financial and non-financial interests.
13. Members are responsible for ensuring that their registered interests are accurate and up-to-date. They should register any change in relevant interests within one month of the change.

Key facts

3. Lord Willoughby de Broke wrote to me on 18 May 2012 (appendix C), responding to the allegations contained in Mr Watson’s letter dated 16 May 2012. This response was initiated because he had already had sight of Mr Watson’s first letter. On 24 May 2012, I wrote to Lord Willoughby de Broke (appendix D) advising him that I was undertaking an investigation into Mr Watson’s allegations and providing him with full details. Lord Willoughby de Broke replied on 31 May 2012 (appendix E); in that letter he primarily addressed the allegation that he had failed to make appropriate declarations and highlighted that his letter dated 18 May 2012 contained his substantive response to the allegations about any failure to declare relevant directorships.
4. In essence, the complainant made three specific allegations against Lord Willoughby de Broke—

   Complaint 1: failure to register interest in 77 Warrington Crescent Ltd.
   Complaint 2: failure to register interest in Moreton Morrell Tennis Court Company Ltd.
   Complaint 3: repeated failure to declare interest in farm subsidy payments in the course of speaking in the House.

5. The key test in relation to registering interests is set out at paragraph 33 of the Guide to the Code of Conduct—

   Relevant interests may be financial or non-financial. The key consideration in determining relevance in respect of both registration and declaration of an interest is that the interest might be thought by a reasonable member of the public to influence the way in which a Member of the House of Lords discharges his or her parliamentary duties. In the case of registration, this means the Member’s parliamentary duties in general; in the case of declaration, his or her duties in respect of the particular matter under discussion.

6. Lord Willoughby de Broke stated that the company (77 Warrington Crescent Ltd) was concerned solely with the maintenance of four flats at 77 Warrington Crescent and that he received no salary or expenses arising out of his directorship. He specifically rejected the complainant’s suggestion that the company’s primary purpose was the letting of property. He explained that the primary and sole purpose was the maintenance of four flats at 77 Warrington Crescent and that his activity was limited to occasional dialogue with a fellow director “who does all the legwork”. He was of the view that this directorship had no bearing on his activities in the House of Lords. However, he offered to amend his registration details to include that directorship, if I felt that was appropriate. He also advised that he had never taken any part in a House of Lords debate on London property.

7. In relation to the Moreton Morrell Tennis Court Club Company Limited, he advised that he had been the unpaid chairman of the club for 29 years, after which he was made President, a purely honorary position. He went on to state that he hadn’t attended the court or a board meeting for at least the last ten years. He also advised that he had never taken part in a House of Lords debate on real tennis.

8. Rule 10(b) of the Code of Conduct and paragraphs 82 and 83 of the Guide to the Code of Conduct set out the requirements and guidance which govern declarations of interest—

   10. In order to assist in openness and accountability Members shall ...
       (b) declare when speaking in the House, or communicating with ministers or public servants, any interest which is a relevant interest in the context of the debate or the matter under discussion.

   82. The Code of Conduct states that Members must “declare when speaking in the House, or communicating with ministers or public servants, any interest which is a relevant interest in the context of the debate or the matter under discussion.”

   83. This provision should be interpreted broadly. Thus “speaking in the House” covers Members’ participation in the work of Select Committees of the House. “Public servants” includes servants of the Crown, civil servants, employees of government agencies or non-departmental public bodies, and Members, officers and employees of local authorities or other governmental bodies.
9. The complainant alleged that Lord Willoughby de Broke had spoken on at least 18 occasions in the House since March 2000 and had failed to declare a relevant interest, namely his receipt of farm subsidy payments. The complaint argued that “these extremely large payments might reasonably be thought to have had a general influence upon Lord Willoughby’s parliamentary conduct or actions”.

10. Lord Willoughby de Broke in his response highlighted that his interest in an arable and grass farm was registered as a category 5 interest in the Register of Lords’ Interests.

11. The complainant highlighted 18 contributions to debates in the House and one question for written answer, where he alleges Lord Willoughby de Broke did not declare a relevant interest. However, paragraph 111 of the Guide to the Code of Conduct restricts my remit to matters falling within four years of the complaint having been made. Thus, in this context I am only able to examine matters since 18 May 2008. This restriction narrows the contributions in question to three—

   a) Debate on 25 November 2011: Lord Willoughby de Broke accepted that he should have declared an interest but he relied on his entry in the Register of Lords’ Interests.

   b) Debate on 17 May 2011: Lord Willoughby de Broke pointed out that the Hansard entry which read “I am in the Highland stewardship scheme and I continually get letters from Defra saying that it is going to change the timing of payments because it conflicts with EU rules or that I cannot” should have read “I am in the Higher Level Stewardship scheme”. He ascribed that error to a mistaken transcription.

   c) Question for written answer answered on 9 June 2011: a question was tabled by Lord Willoughby de Broke about the Common Agricultural Policy budget but was not accompanied by any declaration of interest. Lord Willoughby de Broke accepted that he should have made an appropriate declaration of interest.

Findings

12. I am satisfied that Lord Willoughby de Broke’s directorship in 77 Warrington Crescent Ltd might reasonably be thought not to affect his public duties. However, paragraph 79 of the Guide states that certain non-financial interests are always relevant and therefore must be registered. A directorship, albeit unremunerated, falls into that mandatory category. Thus, I am compelled to find that he did breach the Code of Conduct in relation to Complaint 1. In relation to Complaint 2, he did not consider it to be a relevant interest and, on the basis of his response, I believe that was a reasonable judgment.

13. In relation to Complaint 3 (and the three instances which fall within the provisions of paragraph 111 of the Guide), Lord Willoughby de Broke has accepted my judgment that he breached the Code on two occasions, as set out at (A) and (C) above. His failure to make appropriate declarations was in breach of paragraph 10(b) of the Code of Conduct.

14. I welcome Lord Willoughby de Broke’s acceptance that he was wrong not to make such declarations. He has also acknowledged that he should have registered his directorship in 77 Warrington Crescent Ltd and has advised me that he will alter his entry in the Register of Interests. I note that there are instances where he has properly made such declarations and that his Register of Interests’ entry correctly mentions his agricultural interests. Thus, I am satisfied that this matter is best dealt with by way of remedial action in accordance with paragraph 123 of the Guide. I have discussed remedial action with Lord Willoughby de Broke and he has submitted two letters of apology to the chairman of the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct (appendix F). I believe these letters set the record straight and highlight Lord Willoughby de Broke’s commitment to observe all the rules agreed on by the House. I feel it is appropriate to acknowledge that Lord Willoughby de Broke was extremely cooperative and established at the outset his willingness to provide all necessary information, with a view to ensuring that his actions were fully in compliance with the Code of Conduct. I would respectfully suggest that no additional action is required in this case.

House of Lords Commissioner for Standards

Appendix A: Letter from Tom Watson MP to the Commissioner, 16 May 2012

It has been brought to my attention that Lord Willoughby de Broke has breached the Code of Conduct for the House of Lords by failing to declare the directorships of two companies in the Register of Lords’ Interests. These companies are: 77 Warrington Crescent Limited (company number 03179274), and Moreton Morrell Tennis Court Company Limited (company number 00744669). Both these companies are registered as Private Limited with share capital.

In the case of 77 Warrington Crescent Limited, the primary function of the company appears to be the letting of property. My understanding is that Lord Willoughby de Broke should have registered this interest as a Category 1 requirement under directorships. However, I note from the most recent edition of the Register of Lords’ Interests that no such entry appears from Lord Willoughby.

With regards to Moreton Morrell Tennis Court Company Limited, there also appears to be a Category 1 breach. Even if the directorship is not remunerated, this interest should, at the very least, be declared as a Category 10 interest (non financial interests). Again, it is difficult to explain why no such entry appears from Lord Willoughby in the most recent edition of the Register of Lords’ Interests.

I believe that both these anomalies place Lord Willoughby in breach of the Code of Conduct for Members of the House of Lords, and would, therefore, urge you to launch a thorough investigation. It is extremely important that Members record all relevant interests in order to make clear anything that might reasonably be thought to influence their parliamentary actions.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Appendix B: Letter from Tom Watson MP to the Commissioner, 18 May 2012

Breach of the Code of Conduct

I write further to my letter of 16 May in which I raised with you my concerns that Lord Willoughby de Broke has breached the Code of Conduct for the House of Lords by failing to declare the directorships of two companies in the Register of Lords’ Interests – 77 Warrington Crescent Limited and Moreton Morrell Tennis Court Company Limited.

It has now been brought to my attention that Lord Willoughby has breached the Code of Conduct on a third point by having repeatedly failed to declare farm subsidy payments received under the Common Agricultural Policy for one of his other business interests, Ditchford Farm. I am told that the farmsubsidy.org lists Lord
Willoughby as having received €682,736 in subsidies from the European Union between 2000 and 2005. It is unclear whether these payments continued after 2005. Lord Willoughby has spoken on the Common Agricultural Policy at least 18 times since March 2000 in the House of Lords (see Appendix 1). As far as I can ascertain, at no point did he declare, when speaking in the House, or communicating with ministers, this interest which was relevant in the context of the debate or the matter under discussion.

Clearly, these extremely large payments might reasonably be thought to have had a general influence upon Lord Willoughby’s parliamentary conduct or actions. I would urge you to investigate this further claim in conjunction with the allegations raised in my letter of 16 May. I look forward to hearing from you.

Appendix C: Letter from Lord Willoughby de Broke to the Commissioner, 18 May 2012

Breach of the Code of Conduct

I have today received a copy of the letter sent to you by Tom Watson MP. I am writing immediately to let you know that these charges have no merit.

Let me deal first with Warrington Crescent; Mr. Watson is quite wrong to state that the “primary function of the company appears to be the letting of property.” The company was set up by four freehold owners of the flats at 77 Warrington Crescent solely to manage the maintenance of the property. I am indeed a director of the company, but my activity is limited to discussing maintenance problems occasionally with my fellow-director Stephen Cole (who does all the legwork) and agreeing the accounts, of which I enclose the relevant page for your information. I receive no salary or expenses. I therefore do not consider that this has any bearing at all on my activities in the House of Lords. If it is your opinion that I should register this then I will of course do so.

I now turn to Moreton Morrell Tennis Club Company Limited. This again is a complete red herring. I was unpaid chairman of the Tennis Court Club for 29 years; when I retire in 2002 I was made President—a purely honorary position—in recognition of my spell as chairman. I have not attended the court or a Board meeting for the last ten years. This has absolutely zero bearing on my activity in the Lords.

I am happy if necessary to answer any queries you may have on these alleged breaches.

Enclosed with letter:

77 WARRINGTON CRESCENT LIMITED
Registered number: 3179274
Directors’ Report
The directors present their report and accounts for the year ended 30 June 2010.

Principle activities
The company’s principle activity continued to be the maintenance of the property at 77 Warrington Crescent, London W9 1EH

Directors
The following persons served as directors during the year:
S. Cole
Lord Willoughby de Broke

Small company provisions
This report has been prepared in accordance with the provisions in Part 15 of the Companies Act 2006 applicable to companies subject to the small companies regime.
This report was approved by the board on 6 August 2010 and signed on its behalf.

Appendix D: Letter from the Commissioner to the Lord Willoughby de Broke, 24 May 2012
I am writing to you in my capacity as the Commissioner for Standards. I have to advise you that I have received a complaint against you. Namely, that you have breached the Code of Conduct by reason of your failure to properly register relevant interests and that you also failed to declare relevant interests when speaking in the House.
I attach for your information copies of the letters (16 May and 18 May 2012) which I have received from the complainant, Mr Tom Watson MP. I note that you have already written to me (18 May 2012) on the basis of Mr Watson’s letter, dated 16 May 2012. I am grateful for your letter which I will take in to consideration. However, you may additionally wish to incorporate that response in to a consolidated reply to the request outlined below.
It appears on the basis of the complaint that you may have breached the following provisions of the 2010 Code of Conduct—

8. Members of the House:
   (a) must comply with the Code of Conduct;
   (b) should always act on their personal honour ...

10. In order to assist in openness and accountability Members shall ...
   (b) declare when speaking in the House, or communicating with ministers or public servants, any interest which is a relevant interest in the context of the debate or the matter under discussion ...

11. The test of relevant interest is whether the interest might be thought by a reasonable member of the public to influence the way in which a Member of the House of Lords discharges his or her parliamentary duties; in the case of registration, the member’s parliamentary duties in general; in the case of declaration, his or her duties in respect of the particular matters under discussion.

12. The test of relevant interest is therefore not whether a Member’s actions in Parliament will be influenced by the interest, but whether a reasonable member of the public might think that this might be the case. Relevant interests include financial and non-financial interests.

13. Members are responsible for ensuring that their registered interests are accurate and up-to-date. They should register any change in relevant interests within one month of the change.

I would also draw your attention to the seven principles of conduct identified by the Committee on Standards in Public Life and incorporated into the Code of Conduct.

I have conducted a preliminary assessment of the complaint and believe it is appropriate and in the interest of all concerned that I investigate it. Therefore, I now invite you to respond in writing with a full and accurate account of the matters in question. A response by 14 June 2012 would greatly assist me in investigating this matter in a timely fashion.

Appendix E: Letter from Lord Willoughby de Broke to the Commissioner, 31 May 2012

Breach of the Code of Conduct

I am replying to your letter to me of 24th May concerning the allegation by Tom Watson MP that I have breached the Lords Code of Conduct.

I have already replied to the allegations about Warrington Crescent and Moreton Morrell Tennis Club Court. I have nothing to add to that letter except to note that my financial interest in Warrington Crescent has always been properly declared in my Register of Interests, of which I enclose a copy for your information. I suppose that for completeness I should add that I have never taken part in a debate either on London property or real tennis, nor is it likely that I will do so.
I turn now to the allegation that I have breached the Code of conduct by not declaring my farming and agricultural interest. This is not the case; my interest has always been declared in my Register of Interests; when I was a member of the EU Select Committee from 1994-2000 I always declared my interest on the relevant page of each Report of the Committee. I have examined the Hansard records as far as I was able to check the references in the Appendix paper which was attached to the letter sent to you by Mr. Watson. I enclose a copy of the relevant extracts from Hansard with my [handwritten] comments. I have been unable to locate the 30/03/06 and 6/6/05 references online, but can easily do so from the Library records if necessary.

To sum up; I have been an active participant in the Lords for 23 years and have always tried to be open and scrupulous about declaring my interests when speaking in debate, whether on farming, the rural economy, the Hunting with Dogs Bill, Equitable Life, the EU or any other subject. It is thanks to Mr. Watson that I have only now realised how many contributions I have made in those years. I can only find two instances (12/5/08 and 4/6/08) from the appendix he sent you – which covers 13 years – where I accept that I should in the interests of clarity have declared my interest while speaking in a debate. But again I would remind you that my farming and agricultural interests are declared and open to public scrutiny in the Lords Register of Interests.

I hope that this response meets your concerns.

Appendix F: Letter from Lord Willoughby de Broke to Baroness Manningham-Buller, chairman of the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct, 28 June 2012

Following a complaint made against me by Mr. Tom Watson MP concerning my declaration of interests in Lords’ debates I have received a letter from the Lords’ Standards Commissioner, Mr. Paul Kernaghan, recommending that I write to you to apologise for the two lapses in question.

The two occasions were firstly in a debate on the EU on 25th November 2011, when in discussing the CAP I omitted to declare my interest as a farmer in that debate – although that interest is properly declared in my register of interests. The second occasion was my failure to declare my farming interest in a Written Question on 9th June 2011. While I fully appreciate that ignorance is no defence, I can only say that I was not aware that from June 2010 it became a requirement to declare an interest in a Written Q.

I therefore apologise unreservedly for these lapses and also undertake to be properly vigilant in the future about declaring any interest I may have when speaking in debates or Oral Qs, as well as when asking any Questions for Written Answer.

Letter from Lord Willoughby de Broke to Baroness Manningham-Buller, chairman of the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct, 11 July 2012

Declaration of interests

Following my letter to you of 28th June I have received a notification from Mr. Kernaghan that my directorship in ‘77 Warrington Crescent Ltd.’ should have been registered. Para 79 of the Guide to the Code makes such registration mandatory, notwithstanding that my directorship would fail the reasonableness test in respect of how I discharge my public duties. I will therefore amend my register accordingly.
APPENDIX

PRIVILEGES AND CONDUCT COMMITTEE - 5TH REPORT 2012-13

THE CONDUCT OF LORD BLENCATHRA

1. Annexed to this report are reports by the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct and the Commissioner for Standards relating to a complaint against Lord Blencathra.

2. The Commissioner has dismissed the complaint; the Sub-Committee, in accepting this finding, has indicated that it will be considering whether paragraph 21 of the Guide to the Code of Conduct, which covers the provision of “parliamentary services”, needs further clarification.

3. We make this report for information.

ANNEX 1: REPORT FROM THE SUB-COMMITTEE ON LORDS’ CONDUCT

1. The Commissioner for Standards has submitted the attached report dismissing a complaint made against Lord Blencathra.

2. The complainant alleged that Lord Blencathra provided parliamentary services to the Government of the Cayman Islands Office in the United Kingdom. The complainant specified five instances where it is alleged that occurred, and provided a transcript of a press conference given by Lord Blencathra in which he spoke about his role.

3. The Commissioner found Lord Blencathra not to have breached the Code of Conduct as the instances complained of did not amount to the provision of parliamentary advice or services.

4. The Commissioner’s findings bring to light an aspect of the Guide to the Code of Conduct which may need clarifying. Paragraph 21 bans “influencing Parliament” in return for payment or other incentive or reward. It goes on to provide examples of what is prohibited, including “making use of [a member’s] position to arrange meetings with a view to any person lobbying Members of either House, ministers or officials.” It does not say in terms whether or not members may themselves lobby ministers or officials in return for payment or other incentive or reward.

5. Accordingly, the sub-committee intends to consider this issue at a forthcoming meeting so that it may advise the Committee for Privileges and Conduct whether the Guide to the Code of Conduct should be amended to provide clarity and, if so, on what terms.

ANNEX 2: REPORT FROM THE COMMISSIONER FOR STANDARDS

Summary of the complaint

1. On 11 July 2012 Mr Paul Flynn MP wrote to me requesting that I investigate Lord Blencathra on the basis of an article in The Independent on 17 April 2012 (appendix A).
On 16 July 2012 I replied to Mr Flynn inviting him to identify in what respect he believed Lord Blencathra “may have breached the Code of Conduct” (appendix B). Mr Flynn supplied further information in a letter dated 17 July 2012 (appendix C) and specified that he believed Lord Blencathra had breached the prohibition on accepting payment in return for parliamentary services, contrary to paragraph 21 of the Guide to the Code of Conduct (“the Guide”). Mr Flynn identified five instances in which it is alleged that Lord Blencathra breached the Guide by providing parliamentary services on behalf of the Cayman Islands Government Office in the United Kingdom. I conducted a preliminary assessment of Mr Flynn’s complaint and on 24 July 2012 wrote to Lord Blencathra advising him that I had decided to investigate the complaint and inviting him to provide a full and accurate account of the matters in question (appendix D).

Key facts

2. Lord Blencathra’s entry in the Register of Lords’ Interests shows that he has registered as a category 2 (remunerated employment) interest—

“Director, Cayman Islands Government Office in the United Kingdom.”

This registration is in compliance with paragraph 10(a) of the Code of Conduct.

3. Mr Flynn in his letter of 17 July 2012 drew attention in particular to a press conference that Lord Blencathra had given whilst in the Cayman Islands. Mr Flynn supplied an article by the Bureau of Investigative Journalism dated 17 April 2012 containing extracts from a transcript of the press conference. In that press conference Lord Blencathra explains his role as the Director of the Cayman Islands Government Office in the United Kingdom.

4. In relation to Mr Flynn’s complaint and paragraph 21 of the Guide, the following extract from the press conference is perhaps the most relevant—

Cayman, the financial industry here has to justify its existence, which it didn’t really have to do before in political circles. I’ve been appointed because I have 27 years experience as a Member of Parliament, ten to twelve years experience in a British Government. I’m still a Parliamentarian in a different colour of the corridor in Westminster.

And the Government feels that because of the knowledge I have of how Whitehall works, Westminster works, that I can be a good representative to feed in to the correct authorities in the Government the views of the Cayman Islands and help defend our interests.

My role is to make sure that advice in to Government ministers, to the Civil Service, the Governor does it as his level, I do it at mine on behalf of the Cayman Islands Government.

5. Paragraph 17 of the Guide explicitly recognises that members have outside interests. However, members are prohibited from accepting payment in return for parliamentary advice or services.

6. On receipt of his response (at appendix E), I wrote to Lord Blencathra and requested that he advise me as to what notepaper he used when writing to the Chancellor, John Cryer MP and Angela Eagle MP (appendix F). I also invited him to advise me if he was content with the transcript supplied by Paul Flynn MP (appended to appendix C) and, if not, to provide clarifications as he saw fit. I felt the notepaper used was relevant as it would indicate the capacity in which he wrote and also might affect the impact of the letters on the relevant recipients. On 6 September 2012, Lord Blencathra replied (appendix G) addressing both points. He accepted the probable accuracy of the interview transcript but went on to provide further detail as to his role. He said that his answer must be placed in the context of a “hostile” interview and that the explanation contained in his letter to me of 28 July 2012 (appendix E) provided a fuller and more accurate picture of his role. Lord Blencathra is clear that his role as the Director of the Cayman Islands Government Office in the UK doesn’t require him or, indeed, involve him in influencing Parliament or using his membership of the House of Lords to gain access for others to ministers or officials.

Findings

7. Mr Flynn’s complaint is that Lord Blencathra contravened paragraph 21 of the Guide and its prohibition on accepting payment in return for parliamentary services. Paragraphs 20, 21 and 22 explain the application of paragraphs 8(c) and (d) of the Code of Conduct. I have considered the complaint and Lord Blencathra’s response against the requirements of paragraphs 8(c) and (d).

8. The prohibition from accepting payment in return for parliamentary services means that members may not, in return for payment or other incentive or reward, assist outside organisations or persons in influencing Parliament. This includes seeking by means of participation in proceedings of the House to confer exclusive benefit upon the organisation (the “no paid advocacy rule”); or making use of their position to arrange meetings with a view to any person lobbying members of either House, ministers or officials. A member may never provide parliamentary services in return for payment or other incentive or reward.

9. Lord Blencathra in his response dated 28 July 2012 (appendix E) provides the general background to his role with the Cayman Islands Government Office in the United Kingdom and argues “that none of my work involves lobbying Parliament or seeking to influence either House”. He then goes on to address the specific points made by Mr Flynn.

Writing to the Chancellor of the Exchequer on Air Passenger Duty

10. Mr Flynn’s complaint drew attention to the allegation in The Independent that Lord Blencathra “Lobbied the Chancellor George Osborne to reduce the burden of air passenger transport taxes on the Caymans.”

11. In his response, Lord Blencathra says that he clearly stated his interest to the Chancellor and that he was writing in his capacity as the “Political Director of the Cayman Islands Government Office in London.” He accepts that he was urging the Chancellor to support two items in a Caribbean submission about Air Passenger Duty which would help the Cayman Islands. He did not believe he was prohibited from writing in the terms he did but if he had misinterpreted the guidance, he then would apologise profusely for that misunderstanding. He also reiterated his policy of not raising matters such as this in Parliament.

12. I have come to the view that his letter to the Chancellor urging action favourable to the interests of the Cayman Islands did not breach the Code of Conduct. Lord Blencathra in his letter was open about his status with the Cayman Islands Government Office in the United Kingdom. The letter was not sent on House of Lords headed paper (see Lord Blencathra’s letter to me of 6 September 2012 at appendix G) and its contents in no way suggest that it was sent in his capacity as a peer. There is thus no evidence that he sought to use his membership of the House of Lords to influence the Chancellor. A reasonable member of the public would, I suggest, take the view that the letter was clearly sent on behalf of the Cayman Islands
Government and that the Chancellor would know what weight to accord it, having been advised of Lord Blencathra’s interest.

Facilitating a visit by three MPs to the Cayman Islands

13. Mr Flynn’s complaint drew attention to the allegation in The Independent that Lord Blencathra “Facilitated an all-expenses-paid trip to the Caymans for three senior MPs with an interest in the islands.”

14. Lord Blencathra acknowledges that in 2011 three MPs were invited by the Cayman Islands Government (CIG) to visit the islands. He states that the Cayman Islands Office in London administered the visit. He says that the matter could have been managed by his deputy but that for reasons of protocol he played an active role in organising the visit.

15. I have taken the view that, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, Lord Blencathra administered this visit by reason of his role as Director of the Cayman Islands Government Office in the United Kingdom. His status as a member of the House of Lords was irrelevant. His point that the visit could have been administered by his deputy is well made. Thus, I am satisfied that Lord Blencathra did not breach the Code of Conduct in connection with this visit.

Attempted meeting with John Cryer MP

16. Mr Flynn’s complaint drew attention to the allegation in The Independent that Lord Blencathra “Followed an Early Day Motion in the Commons calling for the Caymans to be closed down as a tax haven by trying to introduce the MP responsible ... John Cryer, to members of a Cayman Islands delegation in London. (The meeting never took place.)”

17. Lord Blencathra in his account states that this proposed meeting originated in a request by three members of the Cayman Islands Legislative Assembly (MLAs), whom he describes as being opposed to some actions of the CIG. They submitted a request, via the Governor of the Cayman Islands, seeking a meeting with Mr Cryer MP as part of a visit to London. Lord Blencathra claims that the Foreign and Commonwealth Office decided that they would arrange some meetings for this group but requested that he should handle the parliamentary request. He supplied a copy of his subsequent letter to Mr Cryer as an attachment to appendix E. Lord Blencathra argues that although the three MLAs were not ministers he saw nothing wrong in a group of parliamentarians seeking to meet another parliamentarian.

18. A narrow interpretation of paragraph 21 of the Guide might suggest that seeking to arrange such a meeting is prohibited. However, that would only apply if a member sought to make use of their position to arrange meetings with a view to any person lobbying members of either House, ministers or officials. In this case, Lord Blencathra made Mr Cryer aware that he was writing in his “capacity as Director of the Cayman Islands Government in the United Kingdom”. The letter was written on Caymans Islands Government Office in the UK headed paper. There is, thus, no evidence that Lord Blencathra was using his position as a member of the House of Lords to provide a parliamentary service on this occasion.

Approaching the International Bar Association

19. Mr Flynn stated that Lord Blencathra approached the International Bar Association before they launched a task force on human rights and illicit financial flows.
20. Lord Blencathra in his response noted that one of the task force members publicised her role on the internet prior to the task force being officially launched. He met the IBA and promised them full cooperation with their work. He questioned how these matters could constitute a breach of the Code of Conduct as the IBA has nothing to do with Parliament or the Government. I am clear that Lord Blencathra’s dealings with the IBA or any member of its taskforce did not, on the basis of the information available to me, constitute a breach of the Code of Conduct.

Letter to Angela Eagle MP

21. Mr Flynn referred to Lord Blencathra writing to Angela Eagle MP after she raised a question in the House of Commons about his appointment.

22. Lord Blencathra in his response stated that he felt Ms Eagle’s question misrepresented the facts from his perspective and that he wrote to her “to put the record straight”. I note that his letter went on from seeking to correct what he felt was inaccurate information to appearing to provide a general defence of the “Cayman Islands’ status and practice as one of the most important financial centres in the world.” Again, the letter was written on Caymans Islands Government Office in the UK headed paper.

23. On the basis of Lord Blencathra’s letter to Ms Eagle dated 27 November 2011 I am satisfied that he was seeking to respond to what he considered inaccurate comment made by Ms Eagle in the Commons, rather than seeking to exercise parliamentary influence. Thus he did not breach the Code of Conduct.

General

24. I have found that in respect of each of the points raised by Mr Flynn, that Lord Blencathra did not breach the Code of Conduct. However, I note that Lord Blencathra at a press conference on the Cayman Islands, as reported by the Bureau of Investigative Journalism, stated that he had been appointed as Director of the CIG Office in the United Kingdom on the basis of his political experience, as a Member of Parliament and government minister. He also mentioned his current status as a parliamentarian. He further added that his role was “to make sure I can feed advice in to Government ministers, to the Civil service, the Governor does it as his level, I do it at mine on behalf of the Cayman Islands Government.” Prima facie, this account of his appointment and role appears incompatible with the provisions of paragraph 20 of the Guide. The second bullet point of that paragraph states that a member may exceptionally give parliamentary advice to an organisation with whom the member has a financial interest, providing that the member can demonstrate that—

The payment or benefit which the member does receive is not substantially due to membership of the House, but is by reason of personal expertise or experience gained substantially outside Parliament; and that the member was, or would have been, appointed to the position without being a member of the House.

25. I find that formulation somewhat difficult to apply. On the basis of his own reported explanation, it seems that that Lord Blencathra was appointed on the basis of his expertise and/or experience gained whilst a Member of Parliament. However, his membership of the House of Lords was not a prerequisite for appointment. There is no evidence before me to suggest that Lord Blencathra has provided parliamentary advice in return for payment.
26. I am conscious that the Committee for Privileges has previously considered what a member who has registered an interest can legitimately do as part of their parliamentary activities, albeit in cases subject to the previous Code of Conduct, which did not have a bar on providing parliamentary advice. The Committee cited the advice of a former Clerk of the Parliaments to the Committee on Standards in Public Life and which was quoted in a report of the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Interests (as it then was). He said:

A parliamentary consultancy is an arrangement reflecting a two-way relationship. On the one hand the client/firm receives information from the employee/peer (A below); and on the other hand, the peer is given instructions to undertake certain activities in Parliament in the interests of the client (B below).

(A) The information which the client might expect to receive would include:
• information about the progress of legislation
• information about debates and opinions expressed in the House which might be of interest to the client
• information as to which members of the House might be sympathetic to the interests of the client
• indications as to which are the appropriate Ministers to approach for purposes of furthering the interests of the client and how such approaches might be made.

(B) The services which the peer might be expected to perform on behalf of the clients might include:
• speaking in debates
• tabling, supporting and moving amendments
• asking Parliamentary Questions
• lobbying Ministers and other members of the House
• acting as host at functions in the Palace of Westminster.

27. The Sub-Committee on Lords’ Interests in that case stated, “The distinction between advocacy and advice is crucial. Inevitably, however, there are borderline issues. These may place too great a burden on the judgment of the individual Member and may lead him to cross the boundary between what is legitimate and what is not. Members willing to take money in return for parliamentary services place themselves in great danger of crossing the boundary, knowingly or inadvertently. Even when a Member’s intention is limited to obtaining information, the very fact of approaching, on behalf of paying clients, MPs, other Lords, Ministers and civil servants, may give rise to a perception of advocacy and lobbying. The impression can easily be given that not only advice but also advocacy has been bought by the client. Whether or not a Member has indeed crossed the boundary from the permissible depends on the facts of each case.”

28. I reiterate my view that there is no evidence that Lord Blencathra engaged in any of the services which a “peer might be expected to perform on behalf of clients”. Lord Blencathra himself recognised that his letter to the Chancellor might possibly constitute a breach of the Code of Conduct and it was clearly an attempt to lobby the Chancellor. However, on the facts of the case I do not believe it constituted a breach of the Code of Conduct. It was clearly sent in Lord Blencathra’s role as Director of the CIG Office and merely reiterated a case already submitted to the Chancellor by the Caribbean Tourism Organisation and endorsed by the Cayman Islands Government. The letter might have been ill-advised given the restrictions in the Code of Conduct but I do not feel it would justify my finding Lord Blencathra in breach. He was open and transparent and his position was self-evident to the Chancellor.

29. I am satisfied that there is no evidence that Lord Blencathra exercised parliamentary influence on behalf of the Cayman Islands Government Office in the United Kingdom. Equally, no evidence has been presented that he provided parliamentary advice or services. On the basis of the current complaint and supporting evidence, I am satisfied that Lord Blencathra has not breached the Code of Conduct and I therefore dismiss the complaint.

Appendix A: Letter from Paul Flynn MP to the Commissioner, 11 July 2012
Following inquiries by the Bureau of Investigative Journalism and the Independent, Lord Blencathra has insisted that there is a distinction on paid lobbying to Parliament and paid lobbying to Government. This seems an entirely novel excuse for abusing the system. I understand that Lord Blencathra is being paid by the Cayman Islands government to represent the interests of its financial services industry—despite also being able to vote on legislation affecting the territory.
I would be grateful if you could investigate this and if it accepts such a distinction.
Attached is a copy of the report in The Independent. [Printed as part of appendix C.]

Appendix B: Letter from to the Commissioner to Paul Flynn MP, 16 July 2012
Your letter dated 11 July 2012 refers.
I note your letter and the attached article from The Independent (17 April 2012). In accordance with the “Guide to the Code of Conduct”, can I invite you please to identify in what respect you believe Lord Blencathra may have breached the “Code of Conduct for Members of the House of Lords”. You should also supply as much evidence as you can in support of your complaint.

Appendix C: Letter from Paul Flynn MP to the Commissioner, 17 July 2012
Further to our recent correspondence, I believe that Lord Blencathra breached the Code of Conduct for Members of the House of Lords by accepting payment in return for parliamentary services. Point 21 of the guidance on the code says:

21. The prohibition from accepting payment in return for parliamentary services means that Members may not, in return for payment or other incentive or reward, assist outside organisations or persons in influencing Parliament. This includes seeking by means of participation in proceedings of the House to confer exclusive benefit upon the organisation (the “no paid advocacy rule”); or making use of their position to arrange meetings with a view to any person lobbying Members of either House, ministers or officials. A Member may never provide parliamentary services in return for payment or other incentive or reward.

In a recording made by the Bureau of Investigative Journalism, Lord Blencathra admitted that he had been hired in order to assist the Cayman Islands government in influencing the British government. In a response to the Bureau, he stated that he attempted to influence the government but denied attempting to influence parliament. Point 21 makes clear that the ‘no paid advocacy’ rule applies to government ministers and officials as well as members of the Lords and Commons.

The article in The Independent in April identifies that Lord Blencathra,

- Lobbied the Chancellor George Osborne to reduce the burden of air passenger transport taxes on the Caymans.
- Facilitated an all-expenses-paid trip to the Caymans for three senior MPs with an interest in the islands over the Easter recess, including the chairman of the influential Conservative backbench 1922 Committee.
- Followed an Early Day Motion in the Commons calling for the Caymans to be closed down as a tax haven by trying to introduce the MP responsible, the former Treasury Select Committee member John Cryer, to members of a Cayman Islands delegation in London. (The meeting never took place.)
- Approached the International Bar Association to discuss its task force on human rights and illicit financial flows before the task force had launched. And he sent a letter to the Labour MP Angela Eagle after she raised a question about his appointment.

Enclosed for ease of reference are a copy of part of the transcript from the Bureau of Investigative Journalism, a copy of the email correspondence between the Bureau and Lord Blencathra and the article from The Independent.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Email from Melanie Newman, reporter at the Bureau of Investigative Journalism, to Lord Blencathra, 16 April 2012, 5.15 pm

The Parliamentary Code governing peers (http://www.publications.parliament.uk/pa/ld/ldcond/code.pdf) states that:

18. At the same time, in their parliamentary work, and whenever they act in their capacity as parliamentarians, Members are required to base their actions solely upon consideration of the public interest. Members thus have a responsibility to maintain a clear distinction between their outside interests and their parliamentary work. It is incompatible with the maintenance of this distinction for a Member, by offering parliamentary advice or services to paying clients, to seek to profit from membership of the House. The Code therefore prohibits Members from accepting payment in return for parliamentary advice or services.

19. The prohibition from accepting payment in return for parliamentary advice means that Members may not act as paid parliamentary consultants, advising outside organisations or persons on process, for example how they may lobby or otherwise influence the work of Parliament.

Given that you have admitted that you do lobby and are paid do so, can you explain to me how this does not breach the code?

Email from Lord Blencathra to Melanie Newman, reporter at the Bureau of Investigative Journalism, 16 April 2012, 7.03 pm

Quite simple,
You have confused lobbying Parliament, which I do not do, with lobbying the Government which I do.
I am very clear that if there was a measure before the House of Lords on any matter relating to the Cayman Islands then I would not lobby Lords on it nor speak nor vote on it.

Appendix D: Letter from the Commissioner to Lord Blencathra, 24 July 2012

I am writing to you in my capacity as the Commissioner for Standards. I have to advise you that I have received a complaint against you. Namely, that you have breached the Code of Conduct by reason of your accepting payment in return for providing parliamentary services.

I attach for your information a copy of the letter I have received from the complainant (Paul Flynn MP).

It appears on the basis of the complaint that you may have breached the following provisions of the 2010 Code of Conduct—

8. Members of the House:
   (a) must comply with the Code of Conduct;
   (b) should always act on their personal honour;
   (c) must never accept or agree to accept any financial inducement as an incentive or reward for exercising parliamentary influence;
   (d) must not seek to profit from membership of the House by accepting or agreeing to accept payment or other incentive or reward in return for providing parliamentary advice or services.

14. A Member must not act as a paid advocate in any proceeding of the House; that is to say, he or she must not seek by parliamentary means to confer exclusive benefit on an outside body or person from which he or she receives payment or reward.

The following provisions of the Guide to the Code of Conduct are relevant—

20. Although a Member may never provide parliamentary advice in return for payment, a Member may exceptionally give parliamentary advice to an organisation or person with whom the Member has a financial interest, provided that the Member can demonstrate that:
   • he or she does not receive payment or benefit in return for the provision of parliamentary advice or services. The Member should, if challenged, be able clearly to show that the payment or benefit is provided in return for some non-parliamentary advice or service which the Member provides; the Member should, where possible, ensure that contractual agreements specifically exclude the provision of parliamentary advice or services; and
   • the payment or benefit which the Member does receive is not substantially due to membership of the House, but is by reason of personal expertise or experience
APPENDIX: Privileges and Conduct Committee - 5th Report 2012-13

21. The prohibition from accepting payment in return for parliamentary services means that Members may not, in return for payment or other incentive or reward, assist outside organisations or persons in influencing Parliament. This includes seeking by means of participation in proceedings of the House to confer exclusive benefit upon the organisation (the “no paid advocacy rule”); or making use of their position to arrange meetings with a view to any person lobbying Members of either House, ministers or officials. A Member may never provide parliamentary services in return for payment or other incentive or reward.

I would also draw your attention to the seven general principles of conduct identified by the Committee on Standards in Public Life and incorporated in the Code of Conduct.

I have conducted a preliminary assessment of the complaint and believe it is appropriate and in the interests of all concerned that I investigate it. Therefore, I now invite you to respond in writing with a full and accurate account of the matters in question. A response by 14 August 2012 would greatly assist me in investigating this matter in a timely fashion.

Appendix E: Letter from Lord Blencathra to the Commissioner, 28 July 2012

Thank you for your letter of 24th July. I will respond in detail to the points Paul Flynn makes but I would like to make some general points first, if I may.

I have had 27 years service in the House of Commons and never once breached the Code of Conduct nor had the slightest blemish on my record with regard to expenses or any other matter. At the height of the expenses scandal, not only did I not have to repay a penny but I was cleared almost immediately by Sir Thomas Legg as not having any questions to answer on all my expenses. Therefore I have not come to the Lords to knowingly or recklessly spoil my record for propriety and integrity.

Second, although it has not been repeated in the allegations you received from Mr. Flynn it has been suggested in the press comments that I was working for a foreign government. The Cayman Islands is a loyal British territory like the Falklands or Gibraltar. The UK Government sends out a Governor and the Territories send a Representative to London. This time the Cayman Islands Government appointed me – not because I was a Peer but because the Premier, whom I had met some years earlier, knew of my general skills and abilities and believed that I could send good advice back to Cayman. He knew me long before I was a Peer and my appointment was not because of my peerage.

A Representative is like an ambassador but without the privileges of the Court of St James. Most of my work is feeding back information on issues in the UK and EU media. I deal with the City of London, the other Overseas Territories in an organisation called the United Kingdom Overseas Territories Association and the EU in an organisation called the Overseas Countries and Territories Association. I work with the private sector and try to generate business opportunities. None of my work involves lobbying Parliament or seeking to influence either House. I made that clear when I took on the role that I would not do that and in truth the UK Parliament is largely irrelevant when it comes to financial regulation which could affect the Cayman...
Islands. The EU is the driving force behind the Transaction Tax, the Solvency II Directive, AIFMD II and a myriad of other potential directives. Thus I am trying to say that in general terms whilst I have a large number of things to do in my work as the Cayman Islands Government Representative, the UK Parliament does not cross my radar since there has not been one single item before either House which has been of relevance or interest to the Cayman Islands. Nor have I spoken or asked a question on anything remotely connected with the work I do for the Cayman Islands Government.

Of course in my ambassador role I sometimes act as a messenger. The Premier can write or contact UK ministers at any time and does not need me to act as interlocutor or get him access to ministers. However there have been times when he has sent a message to a minister and I have taken round a hard copy to the FCO. Last week his office asked me to send a pdf file to the FCO and they were sending the hard copy. I do not consider that lobbying or paid advocacy. The Ministers at the Foreign Office have invited all the Leaders and Premiers of the Territories to make contact with them at any time and also to contact other UK ministers in other departments to share information. The Overseas Territories White Paper published three weeks ago makes this same point. I do not need to fix a meeting so that the Premier of the Cayman Islands can get access to lobby a minister. He can get access practically any time he wants. The Minister visited Cayman recently; I was not present and not involved in the visit although I had preparatory contacts and liaison between both governments.

Sometimes I am contacted by FCO officials and asked to pass a message on to Cayman. Only this week the Minister at the wrote to all Territory Leaders and Premiers and suggested that the London Representatives of the Territories should form a group of “sherpas” to work with FCO officials to help plan the Joint Ministerial Conference in December. That shows the unique role – whereby my job routinely involves liaison between Ministers in the Cayman Islands and Ministers in London. And that work is not using my position to influence Parliament nor seek lobbying opportunities for outside persons.

I have never considered any of the above to be improper. Thus I assert that no part of my work requires me to arrange meetings so that someone can get in to lobby a minister or officials who does not already have full right of access as a Minister or Premier in his own right.

I wanted to put that on the record as general background. I turn now to the specific points made by Paul Flynn MP.

Writing to the Chancellor on Air Passenger Duty.

The UK Government had an official consultation on changing the regime. The Caribbean en bloc sent in a detailed submission. The Cayman Islands Government supported that submission and did not have a separate view.

When I was appointed the decision on a revised regime had not yet been made and I wrote to the Chancellor urging him to support two items in the Caribbean submission which would help Cayman. I enclose a copy of that letter as annex 1. You will note that I clearly state my interest and the capacity in which I was writing. I was merely re-iterating the parts of the Caribbean submission which he had already received. I am meticulous in not raising issues like this in Parliament but the Code, on my understanding of it, does not forbid one writing to the Executive. I did not ask the Chancellor to meet anyone to lobby for an option but I did not believe that I was precluded from writing to him. If I have misunderstood this then I apologise profusely.
Facilitated a visit of three MPs to Cayman.

For many years the Cayman Islands Government has invited groups of MPs to visit the islands and be briefed on their financial services, tourism and biodiversity. These are usually senior members of the All Party Parliamentary Group. My records show that in 2004 two Peers and four MPs visited Cayman as guests of the Government. In 2006, one Peer and four MPs and in 2008, one Peer and four MPs.

In 2011 the Cayman Islands Government concluded that a visit by Members of Parliament was overdue. They needed to be updated on the financial crisis in the world and Cayman’s recovery from Hurricane Ivan. However in order to keep costs modest, three Members of Parliament were invited and my office was involved in the arrangements. Our role was administrative – passing on travel times and liaising between the MPs and the CIG on the programme. I could have passed this work to my Deputy but Members of Parliament would have been insulted unless I was seen to be playing an active role in assisting to organise their visit.

However this is nothing new. A check of the Register will show that many members of APPGs regularly visit their relevant country and this has been happening for many years. This was not some new idea I invented in order to lobby these three MPs. They were the officers of the Cayman Islands APP Group and did not need to be lobbied by me on Cayman Islands issues. If I had gone touting for Members who may be hostile to Cayman with a view to giving them a trip to Cayman to influence them, then that could be a different matter. However did not do that and I did not consider my administrative work on this APPG visit to be in breach of the Code.

Attempted meeting with John Cryer MP

As the Representative of the Cayman Islands in London, I work for the Cayman Islands Government and report to it. In early March two opposition Members of the Legislative Assembly and an independent Member decided to come to London to protest against some of the actions of the Cayman Islands Government. They were vociferous critics of the Government and sent a request to the Governor of the Cayman Islands to set up meetings for them in London including a meeting with Mr. Cryer MP.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office decided that they could try to arrange some meetings but requested that I handle the Parliamentary request. I had earlier considered how the London Office would deal with the visiting MLAs if they came to London. When CIG Ministers come then we give them access to all our facilities. These MLAs were not Ministers but strong critics of the Government. Nevertheless we concluded that they should receive no less than the support we would give to any Caymanian who was in London and needed consular assistance. I.E we would try to arrange meetings they wanted but not demand. We would advise on accommodation and transport but not provide it. We would not lobby on their behalf since that would be contrary to our duty to the CIG.

When the request came from these MLAs to meet Mr. Cryer I recommended to them that they should not do it. Not because I thought that it was a breach of the Code to ask it but because I was certain that Mr. Cryer would not meet them and they would be embarrassed. Nevertheless they still wanted to meet with him. At no point did they tell me what they wanted to say to him but I assume that it was because of his EDM calling for their island to be closed down. That is why I used the phraseology, “I understand that they wish to discuss your Early Day Motion 2627.”

I wrote to Mr. Cryer and I attach a copy of that letter as annex 2.
I did consider the appropriateness of this. If the Government had asked to see him then I would have ruled against it on ethical grounds but I am not paid by the Opposition and I saw no harm in one group of Parliamentarians asking to meet another. Mr. Cryer did not reply and I did not push the matter further. In the end of the day the visit did not take place and no meetings occurred.

Approached the International Bar Association.
The IBA appointed a Task Force on cash flows and one of the members described her role on her website before the Task Force was officially launched. I did meet with the IBA and promised co-operation with them in their work.

However I cannot understand how that could be a breach of our Code. The IBA has nothing to do with Parliament or Government. If there is a connection which I do not understand then I will endeavour to supply further and better particulars.

Letter to Angela Eagle MP.
On 24th November 2011 during Business Questions the Shadow Leader of the House of Commons, Angela Eagle said, inter alia,

This week, it was also revealed that a serving Conservative peer and ex-Chief Whip has been appointed UK representative for the Cayman Islands in order to oppose any further regulation of offshore tax havens.

Since that is patently untrue and since I have always known Angela to be a fair person I decided to write to her immediately to put the record straight. I did not want that fundamental misunderstanding to go uncorrected. I admit that I did not consider for one second whether or not it could be in breach of the Code; I assumed that it was in order. I did not initiate the item in Parliament and I assumed that it would be permissible to attempt to correct it. I did not publish my response and my suggestion in my letter that she talk to her Labour colleague and Vice Chairman of the APPG, Brian Donohoe MP was an attempt to let her see that I was telling the truth. I would hope that writing to a Parliamentarian who had criticised one unfairly is permitted.

For the record I must point out that I have not written to all Ministers, Shadow Spokesmen and opinion formers and am unlikely to do so.

Conclusion
I have responded in detail to the points made by Mr. Paul Flynn. I have taken seriously the issues he has raised but, if I may say so, these allegations look flimsy. I note that his letter is identical in every word to the article published in the Independent and that was scraping the bottom of the barrel.

Some media have an agenda against the Cayman Islands and what they perceive to be unfair tax competition. They will attack anyone who works for them and this attack on me is part of that agenda.

As I said at the start of my letter, I have had a clean track record. I studied section 21 of our Code and I believe that to the best of my knowledge I have not transgressed it and do not intend to. I have never sought to gain advantage for the Cayman Islands Government in Parliament nor with MPs nor Peers. I have not raised issues in Parliament. I have been in contact with Members of the Executive, and they with me, but I have not “made use of my position to arrange meetings with a view to any person lobbying members of either House, ministers or officials.”
I have today been appointed the Political Director of the Cayman Islands Government office in London.

I appreciate that the consultation period on Air Passenger Duty closed some time ago and that you have probably already written your conclusions for the Autumn Statement on 29th November. However even at this late stage, I would like to stress two key points which are of crucial concern to the Cayman Islands Government. First, let me say that we fully support the submission made to HM Treasury by the Caribbean Tourism Organisation in June 2011 and do not disagree with any of it. But the two key points I wish to highlight are the discrimination against the Caribbean as opposed to most of the United States of America and the discrimination against those who have an economy ticket but then purchase an upgrade to “premium economy.”

We strongly believe that a two band system is better than the current four band system because it addresses the discrimination of the current system in its treatment of long haul destinations. It cannot be right that every destination in the USA just west of the East Coast cities is in a lower band than the Cayman Islands even though they are much further away. A two band system is easier to administrate and can bring in an equivalent amount of revenue for the Treasury whilst being less discriminatory to the Caribbean. I would remind you that in the Caribbean there are no less than sixteen Commonwealth and Overseas Territories and I would suggest that our “special relationship” with the United Kingdom requires even more favourable treatment than our big cousin to the North.

We also urge you to reverse the unfairness whereby premium economy is treated like first-class. Anyone who pays extra for a “premium economy” seat is getting nothing more than two inches extra legroom and it is unfair that for this negligible benefit they should have to pay tax at a higher rate. Again, we believe that it is possible to remove this discrimination and adjust the rates so that it is cost neutral to the Treasury.

I hope, even at this late stage, that you will be able to take these representations on board and I look forward to hearing the good news when I listen to the Autumn statement on the 29th.

I am writing to you in my capacity as Director of the Cayman Islands Government in the United Kingdom.

I have been informed that a number of Members of the Cayman Islands Legislative Assembly intend to come to London in the week commencing 19th March. They will have meetings at the FCO on the 19th March have also requested a meeting with you. The dates available are either Tuesday 20th March or Wednesday 21st March.

The Members who are coming are:-

- Hon Alden McLaughlin, Leader of the Opposition
- Mr Ezzard Miller, Independent MLA
- Mr Arden McLean, PPM MLA.

It is possible that there may be others.

I understand that they wish to discuss your Early Day Motion 2627 on “Tax Havens.”
I appreciate that this is very short notice but I would be grateful if you could meet with them on either of those days. Also, in view of the timescale I would also be very grateful if your secretary could e-mail me with your response.

Annex 3: Letter from Lord Blencathra to Angela Eagle MP, Shadow Leader of the House of Commons, 27 November 2011

I have just read Hansard for last Thursday and I thought that I would write to you straight away because someone has given you a wrong briefing. I have not been appointed by the Cayman Islands Government to “lobby against regulation of tax havens” but rather the reverse – to spread the message that the CIG has signed every international Treaty, Convention and Regulation that there is on regulation and transparency of financial matters. If there is any important convention on this, which the UK government wants them to sign, and they have not done so, then I am not aware of it. If you tell me I am wrong then I will investigate and get back to you.

In fact, The Cayman Islands only succeeds as one of the most important financial centres in the world because it has ticked all the boxes for regulation and transparency. However they suffer under this old myth which started with the film “Haven.” That it is a hotbed of dodgy money. The film makes for a good yarn but should no more be used to judge The Cayman Islands than we would accept Hollywood’s version of how American pilots alone won the Battle of Britain. Yes, some years ago the CIG did not have laws on money laundering and reporting suspicious transactions – but neither did Britain. They have now – like the UK, and in all other financial areas, as far as I am aware.

I enclose a briefing note which the Premier of the Cayman Islands sent to the Treasury only last week and he asked me to circulate it more widely amongst other ministers, shadow spokespersons and opinion formers.

You will recall that President Sarkozy, at the end of the Cannes summit denounced 11 tax havens. The Cayman Islands was not on that list and could not be on it because they are almost in the exemplary category as far as compliance with OECD standards are concerned. You can bet your last dollar that if The Cayman Islands were, in any way the bad guys, then Sarkozy and the OECD would have heavily criticized them.

Then last week the FSB (Financial Stability Board of the OECD) published its report and commended The Cayman Islands for having “robust regulation.”

I will not bore on – it is all in the brief.

I am copying this note and brief to Brian Donohoe Esq MP. Brian is the Vice-Chair of The Cayman Islands All Party Group and he can tell you honestly if I am telling you the truth or trying to pull the wool.

Appendix F: Letter from the Commissioner to Lord Blencathra, 21 August 2012

Your letter dated 28 July 2012 was most helpful. However, there are two specific points on which I would appreciate your input.

You supplied me with copies of your letters to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, John Cryer MP and Angela Eagle MP. Can I ask on what type of notepaper you sent each of these three letters? The copies supplied do not show what headed notepaper (if applicable) was used.

I attach for ease of reference a transcript supplied by Mr Flynn MP and which appears to be a record of an interview you gave in the Cayman Islands. Are you content that it is an accurate record? If you are not, I would welcome any clarifications you felt appropriate.
Appendix G: Letter from Lord Blencathra to the Commissioner, 6 September 2012

Thank you for your letter of 21st August. I am sorry for the delay in responding but I have only just returned to London and now have access to the paper, and papers, I require in order to fully respond to your enquiry.

30. I enclose samples of my Cayman Islands Government paper which I use on all CIG correspondence.¹ However I can do better than that; when I took up my post in the CIG office in Arlington Street I photocopied all official correspondence out so that the CIG had a hard copy record of it. I therefore also enclose the “original photocopies” of the letters I sent to John Cryer MP and Angela Eagle MP.² I wrote to the Chancellor immediately I was appointed and I am certain that I did not have my CIG paper by then. It is likely that I used the other samples attached with my home address on it. I do not have that paper printed but make it up on the computer and I have tweaked it a few times since I first made it. I cannot swear to it but I think that was probably what I used. I have no photocopy of that letter as proof.

With regard to the transcript of the interview, it is probably an accurate transcript of what I said but it is not an accurate reflection of my role or what I believe. Let me explain.

That press conference was supposed to be for the visiting MPs but I was warned that one journalist in particular was going to attack me and my role. Her allegations would be along the lines that I was not qualified for the role, that a Caymanian should be doing it not a Brit, that I knew nothing about Cayman and that I would be incapable of properly representing the views of the Cayman Islands to the UK government let alone the EU and a wider audience. I knew therefore that in the face of hostile questioning that I would have to “spin” my answers rather than merely give a full and accurate picture of my role.

By way of analogy, if you were describing to a friend the state of your marriage you would describe it in completely different terms than if you were answering the hostile question, “When did you stop beating your wife?” I was facing, from one journalist, the when did you stop beating your wife type questions and I tailored my answers accordingly.

My role is exactly as I described it to you in my letter of 28th July. If I were given the chance of a long feature article in a friendly Cayman newspaper then I would have described my role as per the 28th July letter. In a “think piece” you can do that but that will not wash in a hostile interview where one has to over emphasise some points in order to neutralise further negative questioning. I answered in a way to stop this line of questioning rather than to set out a full and accurate picture of my role. That is what politicians do in hostile interviews.

I hope that the above and my enclosures are helpful.

PRIVILEGES AND CONDUCT COMMITTEE - 6TH REPORT 2012-13

THE CONDUCT OF LORD ELDER

1. Annexed to this report are reports by the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct and the Commissioner for Standards relating to a complaint against Lord Elder.

2. The Commissioner has upheld the complaint in respect of Lord Elder’s failure to register a relevant interest correctly and his misuse of House of Lords stationery. Lord Elder has accepted the Commissioner’s findings and apologised; the matter has therefore been dealt with by means of remedial action and is now closed.

3. We make this report for information.

ANNEX 1: REPORT FROM THE SUB-COMMITTEE ON LORDS’ CONDUCT

1. The Commissioner for Standards has submitted the attached report upholding a complaint made against Lord Elder.

2. The complainant alleged that Lord Elder (i) incorrectly registered his interests in the Al-Maktoum Institute for Arabic and Islamic Studies as a non-financial interest when it should have been registered as remunerated employment as he was in receipt of an honorarium; and (ii) improperly used a House of Lords envelope for non-parliamentary business.

3. The Commissioner found Lord Elder to have breached the Code of Conduct in respect of both elements of the complaint. Lord Elder accepted this finding and the Commissioner agreed with him remedial action in the form of a letter of formal apology to the chairman of the sub-committee (which is reprinted as an appendix to the Commissioner’s report).

4. We welcome Lord Elder’s acceptance that he breached the Code of Conduct and his apology for that breach. We do not consider that any further sanction is appropriate.

5. We recommend that the Committee for Privileges and Conduct should make a report to the House on this case.

ANNEX 2: REPORT FROM THE COMMISSIONER FOR STANDARDS

Summary of the complaint

1. Dr Malory Nye in a letter dated 10 May 2012 (appendix A) complained that Lord Elder had breached the Code of Conduct in two respects. First, that he had incorrectly registered his interest in the Al-Maktoum Institute for Arabic and Islamic Studies as a non-financial interest when it should have been registered as remunerated employment; and secondly that he improperly used an envelope bearing the emblem of the House of Lords when sending Dr Nye a letter of dismissal.

2. I advised Lord Elder in a letter dated 24 May 2012 (appendix B) of the complaint and invited him to supply me with a full and accurate account of the matters in question.
APPENDIX: Privileges and Conduct Committee - 6th Report 2012-13

Key facts
3. Lord Elder responded in a letter dated 14 June 2012 (appendix C) attaching letters from Blackadders solicitors and the Al-Maktoum College of Higher Education, providing additional information in relation to his position within the College and associated financial support arrangements.

4. I replied to Lord Elder on 27 June 2012 (appendix D) advising him of my initial thinking and we subsequently met on 5 July 2012.

5. Lord Elder was keen to ensure that he supplied me with accurate information and that his actions were fully in compliance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct and the relevant guidance. On 27 July 2012 he again wrote to me, forwarding a letter from the Director of Operations, Al-Maktoum College of Higher Education (appendix E). That letter set out the background to payments from the College to Lord Elder and stated that they should never have been described as an honorarium but rather as payments in respect of expenses. Lord Elder also submitted a letter to the chairman of the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct (appendix F), acknowledging and apologising for his incorrect entry in the Register of Lords’ Interests and his inappropriate use of an envelope bearing the emblem of the House of Lords.

Findings
Lord Elder did register his interest in the Al-Maktoum College of Higher Education in compliance with paragraph 10(a) of the Code of Conduct. However, he registered his interest under category 10 (“non-financial interests”). This was in my judgment incorrect but, given the specific references to the governing bodies of universities, colleges or schools in paragraph 79 of the Guide to the Code of Conduct, Lord Elder’s error is understandable.

Paragraph 49 of the Guide to the Code of Conduct, which offers guidance on registering category 2 (“remunerated employment”) interests, states: “All employment outside the House and any sources of remuneration which do not fall clearly within any other category should be registered here.” The payments made to Lord Elder were described in the Al-Maktoum College’s accounts as an “honorarium”. I believe that a reasonable member of the public would conclude from that that Lord Elder should have registered this interest as a category 2 (“remunerated employment”) interest. Lord Elder accepted this view.

The House Committee’s report Rules Governing the Use of Facilities (2nd report, session 2008–09, HL Paper 47) states that House of Lords envelopes should not be used for general correspondence (except that of an essentially parliamentary nature) or business letters. Lord Elder accepted without reservation that he should not have used a House of Lords envelope for the letter of dismissal that he sent.

In all the circumstances I decided that this matter was best dealt with by way of remedial action. Lord Elder was from the outset open and apologised for both his incorrect Register of Lords’ Interests entry and inappropriate use of a House of Lords envelope. He has written to the chairman of the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct apologising for his errors. I believe that no further action is required. Lord Elder breached the Code of Conduct but only in minor ways and his response to the complaint has been exemplary.

Appendix A: Letter from Dr Malory Nye to the Commissioner, 10 May 2012

I am writing to bring to your attention what appears to be a breach of the House of Lords’ Code of Conduct by one of its members.

I believe Lord Elder has been in breach of the Code of Conduct on two matters of concern, as detailed below.

The first concern is about an irregularity that I have recently discovered in Lord Elder’s entry on the Register of Interests in 2010.

On the Register of Lords’ Financial and Other Interests for the session 2009–2010, Lord Elder is shown on page 57 to have made the declaration that he held the office of Chancellor of the Al-Maktoum Institute for Arabic and Islamic Studies, in Dundee. This is correct. However, he is registered as having declared that this was a non-financial interest (category 10, e).

During the time I was Principal and Vice-Chancellor of the Institute (as it then was, it is now named ‘Al-Maktoum College of Higher Education’).

I am very aware that this was not a non-financial role and the declaration as it stands is not correct. Lord Elder’s position with the Al-Maktoum Institute at this time should have been considered as category 2 (remunerated employment) as he did in fact receive remuneration for this office.

From 1 January 2009 to 31 December 2010 he received an honorarium payment of £5,000 per year for the services that he provided to the Al-Maktoum Institute. This payment was made to him on the instruction of the Chairman of the Board of Directors, and the company’s account for 2010 registered this payment to him on page 15 (note 7).

My understanding is that on this basis Lord Elder has breached the Code of Conduct of the House of Lords, by failing to notify the change in his interests to the Registrar of Lords’ Interests within a month of the change, in January 2009 (as required by section 13 of the Code).

Lord Elder also received a payment of £5,000 for his position as Chancellor in 2009, whilst again also registering his interest in this matter as non-financial.

My second concern is that Lord Elder made use of House of Lords stationery in November 2011 for the sending of a business letter to myself related to the work of the Al-Maktoum College.

On 16 November 2011 he wrote to me in his capacity as Chancellor of the Al-Maktoum College. This was a letter of dismissal to me as Principal of the College. The letter was written on College headed paper, but was sent in an envelope bearing the emblem of the House of Lords. This of course made the letter misleading – giving the suggestion that my dismissal was in some way related to his position as a member of the House of Lords.

My understanding is that the sending of this letter in a House of Lords envelope is in breach of the requirement in the House of Lords Staff Handbook that ‘official stationery is provided solely for use on House of Lords business and must not be used for any other purpose’ (section 12.20, page 65). In doing so he has also breached section 10c of the Code of Conduct.

The particular circumstances of the sending of this letter are important here – it was a letter of dismissal related to an issue that (as far as I am aware) had nothing to do with the business of the House of Lords. Lord Elder sent the letter as Chancellor of a College to dismiss me, the Principal (chief executive) of the College. The sending of the letter in a House of Lords envelope – which was the first thing I saw when I received the letter – was extremely inappropriate. I would presume that this is a matter of concern to Commissioner of Standards.

I am enclosing relevant documents on these two matters, as follows:

- Extract of the House of Lords Register of Lords Interests for Lord Elder, 18 June 2010
- Registered company accounts for Al-Maktoum Institute, 2010, signed and approved by Lord Elder on 16 September 2011 (pages 1–2, 9–11, 15)¹
- Copy of the letter and envelope sent by Lord Elder to Prof Malory Nye on 16 November 2011 (enclosed are photocopies, and I can supply the originals should you require them)²

I look forward to hearing from you.

Annex 2: Letter from Lord Elder to Dr Malory Nye, 16 November 2011

I refer to our meeting on Friday 4 November 2011.

The purpose of that meeting was explained in my letter of 19 September 2011 where I expressed my concern that the relationship between you and some of the College’s stakeholders had broken down irretrievably. I also stated my belief that this might make it untenable for you to continue as Principal and indicated I was minded to terminate your appointment as Principal and your employment at the College.

The purpose of our meeting on 4 November was to afford you an opportunity to persuade me why your appointment/employment should not be terminated. While I understand your conviction that you have acted in the best interests of the College and that the current difficulties are the fault of others, particularly Mr Abubaker, I believe that responsibility for the major concerns within the College must lie at your door.

You have been serving as the College’s most senior manager and the effective operation of the senior management team is therefore ultimately your responsibility. I am satisfied that you have been giving insufficient attention to the College’s academic agenda and focusing too much time on administration matters. Of perhaps the greatest concern is that the relationship with the University of Aberdeen has broken down during your stewardship of the College.

On any view these are serious matters and I am driven to the conclusion that they make your continued appointment/employment untenable. It is therefore my decision that your appointment as Principal and employment as Chair of Multiculturalism should be terminated on three months’ notice effective from the date of this letter.

Towards the end of our meeting, you explained that, if you were to be dismissed from the role of Principal, you would be willing to remain employed as a Professor within the College. Since our meeting, I have reflected on this proposal and have come to the view that, regrettably, it would not be possible to allow you to remain within that role. Given the length of time which has passed since your suspension and the content and number of grievances which have been lodged against various members of the College, I do not believe that this is a viable option.

You have the right to appeal against my decision. If you wish to appeal you should do so in writing not later than 23 November 2011 setting out your grounds of appeal. Your letter of appeal should be addressed to me in the first instance.

Appendix B: Letter from to the Commissioner to Lord Elder, 24 May 2012

I am writing to you in my capacity as the Commissioner for Standards. I have to advise you that I have received a complaint against you. Namely, that you have breached the Code of Conduct by reason of your failure to properly register a remunerated office and through the improper use of House of Lords’ stationery, specifically an envelope.

I attach for your information a copy of the letter I have received from the complainant (Dr Malory Nye).

It appears on the basis of the complaint that you may have breached the following provisions of the 2010 Code of Conduct—

8. Members of the House:
   (a) must comply with the Code of Conduct;
   (b) should always act on their personal honour...

10. In order to assist in openness and accountability Members shall:
   (a) register in the Register of Lords’ Interests all relevant interests, in order to make clear what are the interests that might reasonably be thought to influence their parliamentary actions...
   (c) act in accordance with any rules agreed by the House in respect of financial support for Members or the facilities of the House.

The rules governing the use of stationery are set out in the House Committee’s 2nd report of 2009–10, appended to the Handbook on facilities and services for Members (May 2010).

I have conducted a preliminary assessment of the complaint and believe it is appropriate and in the interests of all concerned that I investigate it. Therefore, I now invite you to respond in writing with a full and accurate account of the matters in question. A response by 14 June 2012 would greatly assist me in investigating this matter in a timely fashion.

Appendix C: Letter from Lord Elder to the Commissioner, 14 June 2012

Thank you for your letter of 14 May, which as I explained to your office I had unfortunately left unopened in the office over the recess. I asked Blackadders, solicitors in Dundee to seek the necessary information from the college, and their letter, and the College’s reply is attached to this letter.

I should perhaps explain something of my role as Chancellor of the Al-Maktoum College of Higher Education. Initially it was almost entirely ceremonial – but over the last few years it has become much more managerial. The College, which offers taught Masters degrees and PhDs and is based in Dundee, has been linked with Aberdeen University for degree validation purposes.

Following increasing tensions between the College and Aberdeen over the last few years, and allied with increasingly difficult staffing problems within the College, that agreement has been ended by them as from September this year.

These difficulties within the College have demanded much more of my time than was originally envisaged. It has involved meetings in Dundee, and in London and a good number of meetings in Aberdeen. Effectively, the last four years has meant a much heavier commitment of my time and effort than was originally envisaged. Often the College is able to arrange these matters in advance: on other occasions I make the arrangements and pay for them myself.

In fulfilling my role for the college I have never been remunerated, but those in Dubai have been keen to ensure that I was not out of pocket in fulfilling my role on their behalf. The present system of an annual lump sum payment to cover out of pocket expense was introduced by and at the instigation of the College chairman, who is based in Dubai. I have never regarded these as either remuneration or taxable income.

I hope that this background is helpful to you.

I should say finally that I used a House of Lords envelope when I needed to get a letter in the post that night and had no other envelope to hand. I should not have done so, and apologise for so doing.

Letter from Simon Allison, partner of Blackadders LLP, to Mr A G Abubaker, Director of Operations, Al-Maktoum College of Higher Education, 13 June 2012

We have been contacted by Lord Elder in relation to a reference from the Commissioner for Standards in Parliament.

In order to respond to this, it would be helpful if the College could provide us with information in relation to the payments which were made to Lord Elder as Chancellor, the period during which such payments were made and the basis upon which such payments were made (i.e. what the payments were intended to represent).

Given the fact that Lord Elder requires to respond to the Commissioner for Standards by close of business tomorrow, we would appreciate an early response from you in respect of this matter.

Letter from Mr A G Abubaker, Director of Operations, Al-Maktoum College of Higher Education, to Simon Allison, partner of Blackadders LLP, 14 June 2012

I refer to your letter dated 13 June 2012.

Lord Elder was appointed as Chancellor of the Al-Maktoum College in 2004. He has never received any remuneration for this appointment but the College wished to cover any expenses incurred while carrying out work on behalf of the College. This was something he did not do very regularly. In 2008, Lord Elder’s appointment as Chancellor was renewed for a further period of 5 years from 1st August 2008. It was further decided to pay him an annual amount of £5000 to cover all his expenses in order to eliminate the need for him to make regular claims. Following his appointment to the College’s Board, the amount of the honorarium was treated as a reimbursement of expenses to better reflect the nature of the payment.
The following payments were made:
20 November 2008 £3000
19 November 2009 £2000
31 December 2010 £5000
9 March 2012 £4750

I trust you find the above in order.

Appendix D: Letter from the Commissioner to Lord Elder, 27 June 2012

I am grateful for your response to the complaint lodged by Dr Nye. I have carefully considered the information supplied by Al-Maktoum College, through Blackadders Solicitors, together with your explanation. I am also aware that Dr Nye is pursuing a claim for unfair dismissal against Al-Maktoum College.

In your letter you make it clear that Al-Maktoum College did support you, be it by arranging travel to facilitate college business, or later by way of an annual lump-sum payment. That lump-sum payment was designed to ensure you were not out of pocket in connection with your duties as Chancellor of the College. You state that you never regarded such payments as either remuneration or taxable income. I note that you registered your position as “Chancellor, Al-Maktoum Institute for Arabic and Islamic Studies” in the Register of Lords’ Interests as a “Category 10 non-financial interest”.

Paragraph 37 of the Guide to the Code of Conduct states—

Members are responsible for making a full disclosure of their interests, and if they have relevant financial interests which do not fall clearly into one or other of the specific categories, they are nevertheless expected to register them, if necessary under category 9 (Miscellaneous financial interests).

However, in this particular case it is my view that the honorarium should have been registered under “Category 2 Remunerated employment etc.”—

Employment, office, trade, profession or vocation which is remunerated or in which the Member has any pecuniary interest.

Category 2 (paragraph 49 of the Guide) states—

All employment outside the House and any source of remuneration which do not fall clearly within any other category should be registered here. When registering employment, Members should state the employing organisation, the nature of its business (where this is not self-evident) and the nature of the post that they hold in the organisation.

I am of the view that though you did register your interest in, and connection with, the Al-Maktoum College, you should have registered it under Category 2. I have been unable to find any record of your having sought advice from the Registrar in respect of how best to register this particular interest.

I am minded to suggest that this matter is best resolved by way of remedial action, as per paragraph 123 of the Guide. Specifically, can I suggest that you write to the chairman of the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct (via this office) and apologise for failing to register your financial interest in the Al-Maktoum College under the correct category, namely category 2? Your letter should also highlight that you have already altered your Register entry accordingly.
In respect of the complaint that you misused a House of Lords’ envelope, can I say that I accept your explanation that this was an oversight for which you apologise. I consider that particular complaint to be trivial given it was a one-off error and I believe no additional action is justified or required in relation to it.

I trust that my suggested course of action will commend itself to you. However, I stand ready to discuss this matter in person if you felt that would assist.

Lord Elder was appointed as Chancellor of the Al-Maktoum College in 2004. The appointment is non-remunerable, however, the College wished to cover any expenses incurred by the Chancellor while carrying out work on behalf of the College. It must be said that initially we struggled to convince Lord Elder to submit expenses claims even though he was making regular trips to attend events/functions in Dundee.

In 2008, Lord Elder’s appointment as Chancellor was renewed for a further period of 5 years from 1st August 2008. The Board of Directors decided to advance him an annual amount of up to £5000 as a contribution to his expenses, in order to eliminate the need for him to make regular claims. This was due to the fact that as the College grew and its activities increased, the Chancellor’s travel pattern to Dundee has become more and more demanding.

Unfortunately these payments were wrongly described in the College’s accounts as an honorarium. This has subsequently been changed and the payment to Lord Elder is now correctly reflected as contribution to expenses in the College’s audited accounts for year ending 31 December 2011.

I trust you find the above in order.

Appendix F: Letter from Lord Elder to the chairman of the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct, 27 July 2012

I am writing to you in connection with the complaint made about my entry in the register of interests by Professor Malory Nye. I have discussed these matters with the Commissioner for Standards, Mr Paul Kernaghan.

I am afraid that there was an inaccuracy in the way the matter was reported in the accounts. However I wish to make clear that I am well aware that that in no way excuses the inaccuracy of the way I recorded my entry in the Register of Interests, and I regret that I did not consider the matter more closely and carefully. The position has now been regularised to explain in the College’s accounts with complete accuracy the nature of their payments to me. However that does not excuse the fact that I allowed the inaccurate report to stand in the accounts, and more importantly in this context, in the register of interests. For this error I unreservedly apologise.

It was also the case that I did when trying to get a letter away one evening, use an un-franked House of Lords envelope to do so. That too was an error, and for that I also apologise.
APPENDIX

THE CONDUCT OF LORD FINK

1. Annexed to this report are reports by the Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct and the Commissioner for Standards relating to a complaint against Lord Fink.

2. The Commissioner has dismissed the complaint, and we therefore make this report for information.

ANNEX 1: REPORT FROM THE SUB-COMMITTEE ON LORDS’ CONDUCT

1. The Commissioner for Standards has submitted the attached report dismissing a complaint made against Lord Fink.

2. The complainant alleged that Lord Fink breached the rules on the use of facilities of the House in respect of a dinner planned to be held in the Attlee Room.

3. The Commissioner found Lord Fink not to have breached the Code of Conduct as he sought and followed the advice of the Director of Facilities, which satisfies fully the requirements of the Code.

4. In his report the Commissioner drew the sub-committee’s attention to an article in The Independent on 29 June 2010 which contained an extract of a letter from the Commissioner to the complainant, Jon Trickett MP, advising Mr Trickett that he would proceed to carry out a formal investigation of the complaint. In that letter the Commissioner drew Mr Trickett’s attention to paragraphs 107, 120 and 121 of the Guide to the Code of Conduct. These paragraphs make it clear that correspondence relating to an investigation should remain confidential until it has concluded. Mr Trickett acted in breach of those provisions. We think it important that the Commissioner is able to correspond with parties to an investigation without that correspondence being disclosed to the media. It is also not in the interests of natural justice for the complainant to reveal information about a case to the media during an investigation when the member concerned (and others involved in the case) is not entitled to. We regret that Mr Trickett acted with such disregard for the rules.

5. We recommend that the Committee for Privileges and Conduct should make a report to the House on this case.

ANNEX 2: REPORT FROM THE COMMISSIONER FOR STANDARDS

Summary of the complaint

1. Mr Jon Trickett MP wrote to me on 19 June 2012 (appendix A), asking me to investigate Lord Fink on the basis of an article in The Independent newspaper. Specifically, Mr Trickett invited me to establish whether or not Lord Fink had breached the Code of Conduct for Members of the House of Lords by reason of his seeking to host “a private corporate event”. Mr Trickett referred to “The Independent article published on 19 June 2012” (appendix B) which included the following paragraphs—
APPENDIX: Privileges and Conduct Committee - 7th Report 2012-13

The treasurer of the Conservative Party was accused last night of breaking parliamentary anti-sleaze rules after arranging to host a private dinner in the House of Lords for paying American Express card-holders.

Lord Fink arranged the event, which was part of a $10,000-per-head “Wimbledon Championships” package available to Amex Platinum and Centurion card-holders, an investigation by the Bureau of Investigative Journalism and The Independent has found.

2. I wrote to Lord Fink on 27 June 2012 (appendix C) advising him of the complaint made by Mr Trickett MP. I informed him that I was initiating an investigation and drew his attention to the relevant elements of the Code of Conduct—

8. Members of the House:
   (a) must comply with the Code of Conduct;
   (b) should always act on their personal honour...
10. In order to assist in openness and accountability Members shall:
   (c) act in accordance with any rules agreed by the House in respect of financial support for Members or the facilities of the House.

3. I also drew Lord Fink’s attention to the seven general principles of conduct identified by the Committee on Standards in Public Life and incorporated in to the Code of Conduct.

Key facts

4. In essence, the complaint is centred on a dinner planned to be held at the House of Lords in the Attlee Room on 25 June 2012.

5. On 14 June 2012 Lord Fink telephoned the Director of Facilities, who advised that he should cancel the booking, which he did that evening.

6. A further email exchange between the Director of Facilities and Lord Fink on 20 June 2012 records that Lord Fink had cancelled “all of the Stan Smith related events” and his intent to only hold strictly charitable events in the future.

7. Lord Fink responded to my letter of 27 June 2012 on 11 July 2012 (appendix D). In essence, his account of the planned dinner and his involvement with it suggests that he took over an event which had been held over several years at the House of Lords. He agreed to “sponsor” it for 2012 but emphasised his view that the event was an established one and he was “comfortable with this proposal because I was aware that the same dinner had been hosted for several years by Lord Taylor of Warwick (2005–2009) and by the Liberal Democrat Peer Lord Addington in 2011. I was not aware that they had encountered any issues of propriety in hosting these dinners and I had no reason to believe that I would either.”

8. Lord Fink then sets out the sequence of events leading up to his conversation with the Director of Facilities on 14 June 2012. It appears that various people contacted by, or on behalf of, Lord Fink raised no concerns about the appropriateness of the planned dinner. However, on checking with the Director of Facilities, Lord Fink was advised that the planned dinner was “not in accordance with rules on Refreshment Department functions”.

9. The rules governing the use of Refreshment Department functions are set out in the 3rd report of session 2008–09 of the House Committee (HL Paper 144). They state that “If Members are unsure whether a proposed function would comply with the guidance, they should consult the Director of Facilities. Members who proceed on the basis of his advice are deemed to have complied with the guidance.” (Explanatory note

A) This guidance is also contained in the Handbook on facilities and service for Members (May 2010), pages 71 and 72.

Findings

10. Lord Fink sought the advice of the Director of Facilities about the dinner on 25 June 2012 and followed that advice. Therefore, he did not in my judgement breach the Code of Conduct. I feel it is important that I not only explain that judgement but also examine the circumstances surrounding the complaint.

11. I accept Lord Fink’s evidence and believe he has sought to be open and honest in his response. He did not actually hold the dinner in question, thus he did not breach the rules agreed by the House in respect of the facilities of the House. I am also of the view that he actively sought to act on his personal honour.

12. This case does, though, highlight several issues which have wider application. It is important that members recognise that the obligations set out in the Code of Conduct are personal obligations and that it is not acceptable to rely on the advice of unqualified others, or on the fact that there is a precedent. The Handbook referred to above and the “Rules Governing the Use of Facilities” (2nd report of session 2009–10 of the House Committee (HL Paper 47)) are quite explicit and highlight the availability of authoritative advice from nominated officers of the House. Advice received from the Director of Facilities, Black Rod, the Director of Information Services and Librarian or the Clerk of the Printed Paper Office in their respective fields and acted on “satisfies fully the requirements of the Code of Conduct in that regard” (paragraph 101 of the Guide). This case illustrates the desirability of obtaining such advice when a member is unclear about an intended course of action. I am not questioning the good faith of others who provide advice but advice from the nominated officers ensures absolute security for the member. In this case Lord Fink might well have breached the Code of Conduct if he had relied on the advice provided by others. Fortunately, once he had spoken with the Director of Facilities and accepted his advice, then he was able to ensure compliance with the applicable rules.

13. I advised Mr Trickett MP in a letter dated 27 June 2012 (appendix E), that I was initiating an investigation on the basis of his complaint. I respectfully drew his attention to paragraphs 107, 120 and 121 of the Guide to the Code of Conduct. These provisions make it clear that a specific allegation should not be publicised until the complaint has been finalised. The complaint is covered by parliamentary privilege and must remain confidential unless and until it is published by the Committee for Privileges and Conduct. In this case Mr Trickett MP provided The Independent (appendix F) with an extract from my letter to him, despite my highlighting the relevant guidance. I acknowledge that a question from the media, asking whether or not I was conducting an investigation, would have received a factually accurate answer from my office. Nevertheless, I regret that Mr Trickett MP acted without any apparent regard for the guidance agreed by the House of Lords, of which he was made fully aware. However, I would welcome the Sub-Committee’s views on the scope and strength of the relevant paragraphs in the Guide.

14. I dismiss the complaint against Lord Fink for the reasons set out above. However, I reiterate my view that members must satisfy themselves as to their individual compliance with the Code of Conduct and should seek authoritative guidance, whenever appropriate.

Commissioner for Standards
Appendix A: Letter from Jon Trickett MP to the Commissioner, 19 June 2012

I am writing to ask you to investigate the conduct of Lord Fink in light of the recent allegations in the Independent newspaper and subsequent allegations across a range of media.

In particular, I am contacting you to ask you to investigate whether Lord Fink, in his position as both a Member of the House of Lords and as the Conservative Party Treasurer, breached the House of Lords Code of Conduct when he sought to use the access his position in the Lords gives him to taxpayer funded property to host a private corporate event.

The Independent reported yesterday that Lord Fink had arranged “to host a private dinner in the House of Lords for paying American Express card-holders”. The dinner was advertised on the Amex website as a “one-of-a-kind opportunity to advance your lifestyle”, and “the $9,391 (£6,000) package offered two full days of tennis, accommodation in the Dorchester, a drinks reception with John McEnroe – and the House of Lords dinner”.

These allegations are very worrying as it appears that Lord Fink may have been using his position to provide access to the House of Lords as part of a paid-for-corporate package, potentially giving the damaging impression that you can buy access to the House of Lords and bringing Parliament into disrepute as a result of his actions.

The House of Lords Code of Conduct, point 9(a) states:

> Selflessness: Holders of public office should not take decisions solely in terms of public interest. They should not do so in order to gain financial or other material benefits for themselves, their family, or their friends.

In addition, the room booking guidelines in the House of Lords state:

> With the exception of launches of books written by Members or books primarily about them, such rooms may not be used to promote Members’ outside interests.

It is clear that Lord Fink was promoting outside interests.

I hope that you will now examine these significant allegation and any subsequent disclosures to ensure that an investigation is carried out as fully as possible.

Appendix B: Article by Melanie Newman and Oliver Wright in The Independent, 19 June 2010

DAVID CAMERON’S FUNDRAISER CAUGHT IN £6,000 CORPORATE DEAL FOR HOUSE OF LORDS DINNER

The treasurer of the Conservative Party was accused last night of breaking parliamentary anti-sleaze rules after arranging to host a private dinner in the House of Lords for paying American Express card-holders.

Lord Fink arranged the event, which was part of a $10,000-per-head “Wimbledon Championships” package available to Amex Platinum and Centurion card-holders, an investigation by the Bureau of Investigative Journalism and The Independent has found.

Advertised on the Amex website as a “one-of-a-kind opportunity to advance your lifestyle”, the $9,391 (£6,000) package offered two full days of tennis, accommodation in the Dorchester, a drinks reception with John McEnroe – and the House of Lords dinner.

Yesterday, after being contacted, Lord Fink – who is David Cameron’s chief fundraiser, and described as “the Godfather” of the hedge fund industry – said he had cancelled the booking after being made aware that it could break the rules. He said he had no financial interest in Amex and had received no benefit from the booking. Lord Fink is one of a number of senior peers who have used their membership of the House of Lords to arrange events for private companies – some of whom do have a financial interest in the functions that are put on. They include:

- The former Metropolitan Police Commissioner Lord Stevens of Kirkwhelpington, who hosted a “customer event” for 140 people in the peers’ dining room for a private forensic science firm of which he is a non-executive director and shareholder.
- The Tory peer Lord Sheikh, who booked the House of Lords Terrace overlooking the Thames for the launch of his own insurance broking firm.

The revelations form the first part of an investigation by the Bureau and The Independent into the workings of the House of Lords.

Lords rules state that banqueting facilities “are not to be used for the purposes of direct or indirect financial or material gain by a sponsor ... or any other person or outside organisation”.

Lord Fink booked the event in the Attlee Room to coincide with this year’s Wimbledon tournament.

He was nominated to the House of Lords last year, is one of the Tories’ biggest donors and has been a guest of David and Samantha Cameron at Chequers. He became sole treasurer of the Conservative Party earlier this year when his predecessor, Peter Cruddas, was forced to resign after being secretly recorded “selling” dinner in Downing Street with David Cameron in return for donations to the party.

The revelation that Lord Fink was prepared to “sponsor” the luxury Amex package, which was marketed to wealthy Americans visiting London, will be embarrassing to the party.

A spokesman for the House of Lords said: “The House of Lords has clear rules on the use of banqueting facilities. A breach of the rules constitutes a breach of the House of Lords Code of Conduct. It is a Member’s own responsibility to ensure any event they sponsor does not contravene the rules in any way. There is also a robust mechanism in place for investigating alleged breaches of the Code of Conduct.”

Tim Farron, the Liberal Democrat president, said: “This is further evidence of the urgent need for radical reform of the House of Lords. It has become as much a House of Lobbyists as a House of Lords. Our upper chamber has become packed with unelected political appointees who get £300 a day just for turning up. In the light of yet more scandal in our discredited political system, it is high time we introduced a smidgen of democracy and accountability into the upper house.”

Labour said that the episode left “a very nasty taste” and called on Lord Fink to consider his position as Tory treasurer. “This is an attempt to breach the rules of Parliament,” said Jon Trickett, the shadow Cabinet Office minister. “It leaves a very nasty taste to suggest that you can buy access to the House of Lords, and it cheapens democracy. Lord Fink, who is a major donor to the Tories, should consider his position as treasurer of the Conservative Party.”

After being contacted, both Lord Fink and American Express said that they were cancelling the event which they said had been booked in good faith.

Lord Fink said: “This event has been held in the Lords on several occasions in the past and I agreed to sponsor it this year in return for a sizeable charitable donation to a major hospital. I have no commercial interest in Amex and there was never any question of me profiting from sponsoring it.” The donation to the hospital was £3,000.
A Conservative Party spokesman said: “Lord Fink cancelled his sponsorship of the event at the beginning of last week as soon as he received advice that there might be an issue with it.”

American Express said: “We have re-examined the current House of Lords event and hospitality guidelines and consulted again with Lord Fink. We agreed that some of these guidelines are open to interpretation. In particular, the guidelines state, ‘events may not be used for ... commercial business, although events related to charities are permitted’. Although the dinner planned for the House of Lords did have a charitable component it was not a fundraising event. We have therefore mutually agreed to hold the dinner at another location.”

American Express said it would still make its planned charitable donation to St Thomas’s Hospital, of £3,000.

Asked about Lord Stevens’s sponsorship of the LGC reception, a spokesman said: “This was not a promotional event. Those attending would have no responsibilities for procuring our services.”

Lord Sheikh said the launch of MacMillan Sheikh at the House of Lords was a social gathering which was “in no way intended as a source of business development in any shape or form” and that business was not discussed. He also denied that he had received payment from MacMillan Sheikh, despite being a director and chairman of the company.

THE RULES: NO ACCESS FOR PROFIT

House of Lords rules on the use of its premises and facilities for outside events are clear.

The rules say functions must not be used for the purposes of “direct or indirect financial or material gain by a sponsor ... or any other person or outside organisation”.

This means that members of the Lords should not receive payment or any other kind of benefit, such as an offer of employment based on the ability to provide access to House of Lords.

Companies or organisations must not use functions to drum up business or as a perk for existing clients or shareholders.

Members may not sponsor promotional functions for companies in which they have a direct financial interest, such as a paid directorship or a substantial shareholding.

But it is acceptable to sponsor social functions primarily aimed at the workforce of a company in which they have a direct pecuniary interest.

Appendix C: Letter from the Commissioner to Lord Fink, 27 June 2012

I am writing to you in my capacity as the Commissioner for Standards. I have to advise you that I have received a complaint against you. Namely, that you have breached the Code of Conduct by reason of your having contravened the rules agreed by the House in respect of the facilities of the House.

I attach for your information a copy of the letter I have received from the complainant (Mr Jon Trickett MP). I also attach a relevant copy press article from The Independent.

It appears on the basis of the complaint that you may have breached the following provisions of the 2010 Code of Conduct:
APPENDIX: Privileges and Conduct Committee - 7th Report 2012-13

8. Members of the House:
   (a) must comply with the Code of Conduct;
   (b) should always act on their personal honour ...

10. In order to assist in openness and accountability Members shall:
   (c) act in accordance with any rules agreed by the House in respect of financial support for Members or the facilities of the House.

I would also draw your attention to the seven general principles of conduct identified by the Committee on Standards in Public Life and incorporated into the Code of Conduct.

I have conducted a preliminary assessment of the complaint and believe it is appropriate and in the interests of all concerned that I investigate it. Therefore, I now invite you to respond in writing with a full and accurate account of the matters in question. A response by 18 July 2012 would greatly assist me in investigating this matter in a timely fashion.

Appendix D: Letter from Lord Fink to the Commissioner, 11 July 2012

Thank you for your letter dated 27 June with enclosures. Please accept this letter and its enclosure as the response you have requested. I hope my statement speaks for itself. However, if you have any questions, I shall be happy to meet you to answer them or to answer them in writing.

I do not consider I have breached either Article 8(a) or (b) of 10(c) of the code of Conduct. I have considered the seven principles of the conduct and, having-double checked the position with a specialist law firm, consider that I have not breached any of them.

Please remember that I have not hosted any dinner. There has been no dinner. I did agree to host one, on the basis that the same dinner had been hosted in the past by at least two Peers over several years and providing that my hosting it was compliant with the Code and the rules.

I would be mortified if I though nay action I had taken would breach the code. Indeed, when I was advised by the Director of Facilities that there was a risk that my hosting of the dinner could be interpreted as a breach, I withdrew that offer to host it immediately. Before I had been given the advice, I had been either led to believe or actually told that it was appropriate to host the dinner by those who had experience of it before. Of course, if I had carried on heedless of that advice by the director of Facilities, than that may have been different. But I did not.

For your information, I have for many years been engaged in a large number of philanthropic projects in the United Kingdom. While I maintain commercial interests and political ones, I now spend a great deal of time in philanthropic activity.

Because of a long career in the City (free from any blemish of reputation) and extensive experiences as a trustee of various charitable trusts, I am very familiar with the need for proper regulation and propriety and I have considerable experience of dealing with regulators. My wish to conduct myself properly as a member of the House of Lords is as great as my wish to behave properly in business and charitable work.

With this in mind, I have considered Article 17 of the Guide to the Code of conduct. My prime incentive for agreeing to host the dinner was to obtain for the Evelina Children’s Hospital a significant donation which otherwise it would not have received.
I certainly obtained no commercial or other benefit from the decision, and neither do I need or want one. I would be very disappointed if I were not able to further philanthropy in the country when properly using my position as a Peer, particularly at this difficult economic time.

As to acting with personal honour, I consider that I have done this. My provisional agreement to host the dinner was in the knowledge that other Peers had done so before me (no doubt on their personal honour), stretching back several years, without complaint. I checked the propriety of the occasions; initially, I was informed that it was acceptable for me to proceed; on the last, I was told it would be better if I did not proceed, and I acted on that advice.

I also believe that the letter of complaint, and even the highlighting of my case by The Independent, was because of my profile as Treasurer of the Conservative Party. Sadly, Labour and left wing journalists have in the past systematically attacked many of the Party’s donors and targeted previous Conservative Party Treasurers personally. It is perhaps informative that of the three cases listed in The Independent’s article that you have shown to me, my understanding is that mine is the only one that has given rise to any complaint, notwithstanding that the other two cases were alleged to have led to some personal benefit, whereas mine did not (even The Independent was prepared to accept that I had made no personal gain). I regret that the complaint against me has very probably been politically motivated and provoked by an inaccurate press article, rather than by any serious and credible belief, supported by reliable evidence, that I have misconducted myself.

If I can be of further assistance, please do not hesitate to ask.

Statement by Lord Fink

I, LORD FINK of the House of Lords, Westminster, WILL SAY:

1. I make this statement in response to a notification dated 27 June 2012 from the House of Lords Commissioner for Standards that he intends to investigate a complaint made against me brought by Jon Trickett MP. Mr Trickett has apparently read an article “in The Independent newspaper and subsequent allegations across a range of media”. I have been shown a copy of The Independent’s article but I have not been told what the “subsequent allegations” are, of the “range of media” they are meant to have been made in. As requested, I am responding “with a full and accurate account of the matters in question”. The “matters in question” I understand to be confined to the letter of complaint and its enclosure on which I have been shown by the Commissioner. I cannot, of course, comment on allegations of which I am unaware and I note that the Commissioner has not asked for details of those from Mr Trickett.

2. I took my seat in the House of Lords in February 2011. In September 2011, I was approached by an American sporting events company called Stan Smith Events to enquire whether I would host an event in the House of Lords to be held during Wimbledon fortnight (25 June–8 July 2012). In fact, the dinner was part of a corporate event package having as its theme Wimbledon Fortnight and, indeed, the main element was two days hosted at Wimbledon by Stan Smith (a former Wimbledon Champion) and also included John McEnroe. A dinner in the House of Lords was a small stand-alone feature of that event. It was to be accompanied by a tour of the House as well. Stan Smith Events’ client was American Express; the event I was asked to host was a dinner in one of the dining facilities of the House of Lords for some of its executives and some of its customers.
3. I believe I was approached because I know Stan Smith, although I do not know him very well; he is really a friend of a friend and I have played golf with him twice and met him at Wimbledon once in the company of some mutual friends. I was comfortable with his proposal because I was aware that the same dinner had been hosted for several years by Lord Taylor of Warwick (2005–2009) and by the Liberal Democrat Peer Lord Addington in 2011. I was not aware that they had encountered any issues of propriety in hosting these dinners and I had no reason to believe that I would either.

4. My core motive for agreeing to host the event, however, was the opportunity to obtain a charitable donation from American Express for the Evelina Children’s Hospital in London. I am the Honorary President of that hospital for which I receive no remuneration or financial benefit of any kind. This position allows me to raise charitable monies for that hospital which is channelled through the Guys’ and St Thomas’ Charitable Trust. American Express originally agreed to make a donation of £5,000 to the charity although it was later reduced to £3,000. However, this was better than nothing and was money for a charity which I could usefully enable by hosting the dinner. The dinner was not “a charity” dinner and was not “a charity event”.

5. I did not seek, or ever obtain, any financial gain or personal advantage by agreeing to host this dinner. I do not need or want to. I have no financial or corporate interests in American Express. (With thousands of other around the country, I have been an American Express cardholder for many years, on normal commercial terms and these were unaffected by my agreement to host the dinner.)

6. Having been approached, I contacted my Parliamentary PA in the House of Lords, Sheila Williamson. I “inherited” Sheila when I became a Peer and I knew her to be knowledgeable and experienced in the way the House functioned. She was also aware of the history of this dinner over the years and knew how it was run and organised. She informed me, based on her own experience, that it was in the ordinary course to host the dinner. She also contacted an official in the facilities booking office, who did the same. I was not relying on Sheila or an official to approve what I was doing, and I did not ask them to do so. My point is that I knew the dinner had been hosted by two different Peers for many years in the past without a problem, and nothing that Sheila or the official said when they began to make the 2012 booking gave me any warning or any reason to doubt that this year would be any different. It was business as usual.

7. Sheila wrote to Gary Neibur of Stan Smith on 30 September 2011, as follows: “with reference to a conversation we had, together with Lord Fink, you mentioned possibly wanting to do something extra next year. As you know, space books up very quickly, and because you normally like something for the first Monday of Wimbledon and the Atlee Room was free on the evening of 25 June 2010 [sic], I have held it provisionally in case. This puts us under no obligation at the current time. I have no idea what date you were looking at, if any, but just started with this one ... I have not spoken to Lord Fink’s office about it because there is no point at the moment in checking his availability in case you are not interested in that date.”

8. Stuart Makinson of Stan Smith replied to Sheila on 6 February 2010: “I saw from the email [referred to above, from Sheila] that you are holding Monday 25 June for our Amex group. We are coming back for sure! Could you please check with Lord Fink to see if he is available to host our group that evening?”

9. Sheila checked my availability and responded positively to Gary Neibur on 8 February. At this stage, I still had absolutely no reason whatsoever to believe that anything was remiss, and this dinner was anything other than annual routine business for the Lords’ refreshment outlets in Wimbledon fortnight. The booking went ahead and I agreed to provisionally host the dinner. The dinner was scheduled to take place on 25 June 2012.

10. As the event drew nearer, American Express advertised the event on its website, which, unusually to my mind (as it was uncontroversial in previous years), provoked some press interest. This press interest prompted American Express to want to issue a press statement; I was sent a draft for comment, via Stan Smith events. I read the draft and made some amendments and edits. I also asked that it not be issued to the press until I had had the opportunity to double-check the position with the House to ensure that the dinner could properly be held. However, American Express issued the press release before I had had the chance to do so because, I understand, they were under time-pressure of their own. I did, however, double-check the position with the House.

11. I was out of London on business at the time, and so called Flora Coleman, who is a Special Advisor to the Leader of the House, to double-check. She read the applicable rules and told me that she thought it was in order to proceed. However, we both agreed that it would be prudent to triple-check and she would speak to Carl Woodall, the Director of Facilities. Much to everyone’s surprise, and mine, Mr Woodall advised that the dinner and, by implication, previous similar dinners) was not in accordance with the rules on Refreshment Department functions.

12. I spoke to Mr Woodall on 14 June 2012, and he told me that he would prefer that the dinner did not take place.

13. In light of this, on 14 June 2010, I immediately cancelled my hosting of the dinner and arranged for Stan Smith events to be told.

14. About five days later, on 19 June 2012, The Independent published its article about which Mr Trickett bases his complaint.

15. Given that the only evidence supporting the complaint against me is an article in a newspaper, I think it would be helpful to comment on the facts of The Independent article specifically. Some of its facts are inaccurate and some of what is implied in the article is untrue. I note that the source of the information is from a highly political, University-based, journalistic source.

16. I am not aware of any accusations made against me on 18 June or at any other time “of breaking parliamentary anti-sleaze rules”. It is alleged that I arranged “to host a private dinner in the House of Lords for paying American Express card-holders”. I did not arrange to host the dinner. I agreed to host the dinner (as Peers had done in the past) and American Express would make a generous contribution to charity. The possible insinuation that I was somehow involved in the receipt of payments from the guests to the dinner is untrue.

17. It is alleged that I arranged the event which was part of a $10,000 per head Wimbledon Championship package. It is correct that the dinner was part of the package (albeit a small part) but it is untrue that I arranged the dinner (Stan smith Events did that); the clear insinuation that I arranged the Wimbledon event is also untrue. I understand from American Express that the alleged cost of the dinner was exaggerated in the article – the cost was less than $10,000 per head.

18. I am not “David Cameron’s chief fundraiser”. I do not raise funds for David Cameron personally. I am currently the Treasurer of the Conservative Party, a position I took up (again) on 26 March 2012 after I had originally retired from the post.

19. The article omits to state that this self-same dinner was hosted without complaint for many years by both Conservative and Liberal Democrat Peers and that until I had triple-checked the position I had either been led to believe or had been expressly told by administrative staff of the House of Lords or the Leader’s Office that the dinner was proper. It was only when, on my own initiative, I arranged for the position to be triple-checked that I was informed that it would be preferable for the dinner not to proceed. In the circumstances, I erred on the side of caution, acted upon that advice and cancelled the event at once.

20. The quotation on the first page of the article from the Third Report of Session 2008-2009 from the House Committee on “Refreshment Department Functions” is incomplete, misquoted and misleading as a result.

21. It is also worth commenting on the various inaccuracies contained in the complaint letter of Mr Trickett dated 19 June. Article 9(a) of the Code of Conduct, on which Mr Trickett relies, refers to the first general principle of selflessness which warns Members of the House gaining “financial or other material benefits for themselves, their family or their friends”. I have not gained, or tried to gain, any such benefit. I do not need to or wish to do that. Given that my sole intention was to benefit an NHS hospital charity and that I have no commercial connection with it or with American Express, I cannot see how that principle can be relevant.

22. Mr Trickett then (omitting its title), incorrectly and incompletely, I believe, quotes from rule 3 of the Second Report of Session 2009-2010 “Rules Governing the Use of Facilities”. Rule 3 is headed “Committee and meeting rooms” which applies to only those types of rooms. He then moves seamlessly to argue from this (inapplicable) rule stating that committee and meeting rooms “may not be used to promote Member’s outside interests” to conclude that “it is clear” that I was “promoting outside interests”. This is incoherent and plainly incorrect.

23. In fact, the applicable rules are those pertaining to Refreshment Department functions, as set out in the House Committee’s Third Report of 2008/2009 and approved by the House on 20 October 2009. As that report says, “Members who proceed on the basis of his [the Director of Facilities’] advice are deemed to have complied with the guidance.”

Conclusion

24. First, it is worth repeating that I never hosted the dinner. It did not take place. I had agreed to host the dinner provided it was proper for me to do so. I took advice to see whether it was.

25. Second, in any event, it would have been a dinner in which I had no commercial interest. I had tried to obtain a charitable donation from the company involved (not the actual people who would be attending the dinner itself). Even then, as an added precaution, I had already disclosed that charity in the Register of Members’ Interests.

26. Third, I took advice from the Director of Facilities (see paragraphs 11, 12 and 13) about hosting the dinner and I followed that advice. In accordance with the House Committee’s Third Report of 2008/2009, I am deemed to have complied with the Guidance, and thus the Code of Conduct.

27. For all these reasons, I disagree with not only with what Mr Trickett says, but the way he has said it.

Appendix E: Letter from the Commissioner to Jon Trickett MP, 27 June 2012

I am writing to acknowledge receipt of your letter of complaint dated 19 June 2012. I have now completed a preliminary assessment of your complaint and have decided that a formal investigation is appropriate. I will in due course submit a report to the House of Lords’ Sub-Committee on Lords’ Conduct. I will ensure that you are advised of the outcome of my investigation. I would respectfully draw your attention to paragraphs 107, 120 and 121 of the “Guide to the Code of Conduct”.

Appendix F: Article by Oliver Wright in The Independent, 29 June 2012

TORY FUNDRAISER LORD FINK FACES INQUIRY INTO LORDS DINNER FOR AMEX CLIENTS

The Conservative Party treasurer is to face a full Parliamentary inquiry into allegations that he broke anti-sleaze rules.

The Independent and the Bureau of Investigative Journalism revealed earlier this month that Lord Fink, who has given more than £2m to the Tories, sponsored a private dinner in the House of Lords for paying American Express cardholders.

Up to 60 paying guests were due to take part in the money-making dinner as part of the $10,000 Wimbledon Championships package available to Amex Platinum and Centurion card holders. Under House of Lords rules members cannot sponsor functions designed to make money for private enterprises.

The dinner was cancelled after Lord Fink was contacted by the Bureau.

Lord Fink admitted that he had offered to sponsor the American Express dinner, part of a money-making package for the company. But there was never any possibility of him profiting, he said, and American Express planned to make a charitable donation.

Lords rules state that banqueting facilities “are not to be used for the purposes of direct or indirect financial or material gain by a sponsor ... or any other person or outside organisation”. Yesterday House of Lords Commissioner for Standards Paul Kernaghan wrote to Labour’s shadow Cabinet Office Minister Jon Trickett to confirm that he was to carry out a full investigation into the breach.

He wrote: “I have now carried out a preliminary assessment of your complaint and have decided that a formal investigation is appropriate. I will in due course submit a report to the House of Lords Sub-committee on Lords conduct. I will ensure that you are advised of the outcome of my investigation.”

The House of Lords Committee for Privileges and Conduct, can censure members who are found to have broken the code. Penalties can include a formal reprimand or, in extreme cases, suspension from the House of Lords until the following election.

Mr Trickett said the decision was the right one. “It is vital that Lord Fink’s actions are fully investigated in order to uphold the credibility and reputation of Parliament and prevent any potential further breaches of the House of Lords Code of Conduct,” he said. “It is vital that this formal investigation provides answers to key questions, in particular whether Lord Fink used his position to provide access to the House of Lords as part of a paid-for corporate package and giving the damaging impression that you can buy access to the House of Lords.

“I hope the Commissioner will use this formal investigation as an opportunity to shine a light on to the hidden and often murky world of business interests in the House of Lords.”

The Liberal Democrat Peer Lord Oakeshott added: “There is only one way to stop us being a house of donors and cronies and that is election by the people.”

27 Reading Borough Council Bill The bill was read a third time. Then the bill was passed and returned to the Commons with amendments.

Public Business

28 Cumbria (Electoral Changes) Order 2012 Lord Liddle moved that this House regrets that the draft Cumbria (Electoral Changes) Order 2012 has been produced with inadequate consultation with the County Council and other interested parties; without a simultaneous review of the district council ward boundaries with the consequence that the electorate will be confused as to their local representation; and with serious flaws in the process conducted by the Local Government Boundary Commission for England (LGBCE) that specifically contravene the requirements of the Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Act 2009 that the LGBCE base their recommendations on population forecasts for five years after the Order comes into force, given that the LGBCE admit they do not have the legally required information for 2017. After debate, the motion was withdrawn.
29 Civil Legal Aid (Merits Criteria) Regulations 2012 Lord McNally moved that the draft Regulations laid before the House on 29 October be approved. Then Lord Pannick moved, as an amendment to the original motion, at end to insert “but that this House regrets that Regulation 53(b) will substantially reduce the availability of legal aid in public law cases because the word ‘reasonable’ has been omitted in relation to other means of challenging the relevant decision”. After debate, the amendment was withdrawn. Then the original motion was agreed to.

30 Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Act 2012 (Amendment of Schedule 1) Order 2012 Lord McNally moved that the draft Order laid before the House on 29 October be approved. Then Lord Bach moved, as an amendment to the original motion, to leave out from “that” to the end and insert “this House declines to approve the draft Order laid before the House on 29 October as it does not fulfil the undertaking given by Her Majesty’s Government on 17 April; and will mean claimants, including a disproportionate number of disabled people, will not receive legal help on a point of law in first-tier tribunals relating to welfare benefits thus denying them a fair hearing on point of law cases”. After debate, the amendment was agreed to (see division). Then the original motion, as amended, was agreed to.

31 Palestine: United Nations General Assembly Resolution A question was asked by Baroness Royall of Blaisdon and, after debate, answered by Baroness Warsi.

32 Legal profession: regulation A question was asked by Baroness Deech and, after debate, answered by Lord Ahmad of Wimbledon.

The House adjourned at 9.27pm until Tuesday 4 December at 2.30pm.

PROCEDURE COMMITTEE - 3RD REPORT 2012-13

Tabling oral questions

1. The Committee have considered the tabling of oral questions. At present the process is as follows:
   • Questions may be tabled four weeks before the sitting day on which they are to be asked.
   • Questions may be tabled from 2 pm on that day.
   • Priority in tabling questions is given to members who are personally present at the Table Office at the time questions become available.

2. As a result, queues often form outside the Table Office, sometimes an hour or more before questions become available. Members who come to the Table Office at or very soon after 2 pm frequently find that all the available questions have already been allocated; Members who find it difficult to come to the Palace of Westminster (including those who live at a distance from London, or who have outside jobs) may not be able to table oral questions at all. The prospect of queuing for an hour or more deters members who are less physically robust from seeking to table oral questions.

3. We therefore propose, on a trial basis, the introduction of a ballot for oral questions, to replace the current “first-come-first-served” system. The process will be as follows:

- Members will, as at present, be able to submit oral questions four weeks before the sitting day on which they are to be asked.
- Members will be able to submit an oral question to the Table Office, in person or by telephone, at any time between 10 am and 4 pm on that day. Questions will not be accepted by post, email, fax, or via third parties such as researchers, unless the text is also confirmed by the member in person or by telephone.
- At 4 pm a ballot will be drawn. If more questions have been submitted than there are slots available, the ballot will determine those questions which are tabled and their order. If fewer questions are submitted than there are slots available, the ballot will determine only the order in which they are tabled.
- As is already the case for balloted topical questions, no more than one question on a subject will be accepted for inclusion in the ballot.¹
- Once the ballot has been drawn the Table Office will contact members who have been successful.
- Members will not be able to “roll over” submitted questions from one day to the next: the requirement that questions be submitted in person will apply on each day on which questions become available.
- If, by 4 pm, fewer questions have been submitted than there are slots available, from that point the remaining slots will be allocated, as is currently the case, on a first-come-first-served basis.

4. A variant of this procedure will be required on the day of State Opening, when oral questions for several days become available at one time. The same underlying principles will apply; the details of the process will be advertised nearer the time by the Table Office.

5. Our expectation is that these changes will not only remove the requirement for members to spend time queuing outside the Table Office, but will also enable a greater range of members of the House, including those who live outside London or who have outside employment, to table oral questions. However, the introduction of a ballot is a major change, and this committee will therefore monitor its effect closely. We recommend that the new procedure, if agreed to by the House, should be introduced on a trial basis, from Tuesday 8 January (when questions to be asked on Tuesday 5 February will become available) until the start of the 2013 summer recess. We will review the trial in the early summer, taking into account the views of members. The new procedure will lapse unless a recommendation to make it permanent is agreed to at this point.

6. We recommend the adoption, on a trial basis from 8 January 2013 to the start of the 2013 summer recess, of the procedure for allocating oral questions by ballot described in paragraph 3 above.

Prayers

7. In June 2011 the Committee agreed in principle to a proposal of the Earl of Sandwich that a choice of collects should be included in the Prayers for the Parliament, in addition to the existing collect, which begins “Prevent us, O Lord”. We invited the Lords Spiritual to propose a number of seasonal collects; annexed to this report are the collects suggested by the Lords Spiritual, which would in future be available as alternatives to the existing collect. It would be for the duty Bishop on each sitting day to decide which of the collects to use.

8. We recommend that the collects annexed to this report be included in Appendix J of The Companion to the Standing Orders, as alternatives to the existing collect.

The Companion to the Standing Orders

9. We have approved a revised text of The Companion to the Standing Orders, for publication in early 2013. The final text will be subject to the House’s decisions on the recommendations contained in this report.

Scrutiny arrangements for draft Orders

10. In July 2012 the Delegated Powers and Regulatory Reform Committee (DPRRC) published a Special Report on Strengthened Statutory Procedures for the Scrutiny of Delegated Powers. The Committee drew attention to a number of strengthened scrutiny procedures in respect of which no committee of the Lords had been formally nominated as the scrutiny committee. The Leader of the House has now brought forward proposals to resolve this.

11. The relevant procedures are set out in the following statutory provisions:
   (a) section 85 of the Northern Ireland Act 1998
   (b) section 17 of the Local Government Act 1999
   (c) section 9 of the Local Government Act 2000
   (d) section 98 of the Local Government Act 2003
   (e) section 102 of the Local Transport Act 2008
   (f) section 19 of the Localism Act 2011.

12. The scrutiny process under each of these provisions is similar to that for orders already referred to the DPRRC, such as Legislative Reform Orders. We accordingly recommend that the DPRRC should scrutinise all draft orders laid under these provisions.

13. We further recommend that the DPRRC should undertake the Joint Committee on Statutory Instruments (JCSI)-type function of scrutiny of the legal drafting of orders under section 19 of the Localism Act 2011, but that the JCSI should retain its scrutiny role for the remaining orders.

14. These proposals have the agreement of both the Chairman of the DPRRC and the Chairman of the Secondary Legislation Scrutiny Committee; they also maintain parity with the House of Commons in relation to the JCSI’s functions. If the proposals are agreed, some modification of the terms of reference of the DPRRC and JCSI (contained in Standing Order 73) will be required. Proposed revisions of the DPRRC terms of reference and of Standing Order 73 are given in Appendix 2.

15. The proposed amendments to Standing Order 73 also reflect changes previously agreed by the House, whereby the DPRRC was given JSCI-type functions in respect of orders under section 7(2) of the Localism Act 2011 and section 5E(2) of the Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004.¹

Referral motions for affirmative instruments

16. The Leader of the House has invited us to simplify the process for debating affirmative instruments in Grand Committee, by removing the requirement for such instruments to be referred to the Grand Committee on motion. If this proposal is agreed to, affirmative instruments will in future be tabled for debate in Grand Committee, without the need for a referral motion, where there is agreement among the usual channels to this effect. This is already the practice in respect of some other types of business, including motions relating to negative instruments, and motions to take note of select committee reports. There will be no change to the statutory requirement that affirmative instruments are finally approved by the House as a whole on a separate motion.

17. We recommend that the current requirement that affirmative instruments be referred on motion for consideration by the Grand Committee should be discontinued.

Notice of en bloc motions

18. The Companion to the Standing Orders states that “A proposal to move motions en bloc requires two sitting days’ notice, except in the case of motions for the reappointment of select committees at the start of a session”. Such notice is given by means of an italic note in House of Lords Business. In the case of motions for the reappointment of select committees at the start of a session, notice must merely be “given on the order paper of the day”. In both cases “if a single member objects, the motions must be moved separately to the extent desired”.²

19. The taking of motions en bloc is now routine, and we believe that the requirement for two sitting days’ notice is no longer necessary. We therefore recommend that the requirement for two sitting days’ notice be discontinued. It will remain the case that, if a single member objects, the motions will be moved separately to the extent desired.

Additional collects proposed by the Lords Spiritual

Almighty God, give us grace that we may cast away the works of darkness, and put upon us the armour of light, now in the time of this mortal life, in which thy Son Jesus Christ came to visit us in great humility; that in the last day, when he shall come again in his glorious Majesty, to judge both the quick and the dead, we may rise to the life immortal; through him who liveth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Ghost, now and ever. Amen. (Advent)

Almighty God, who hast given us thy only-begotten Son to take our nature upon him, and as at this time to be born of a pure Virgin: Grant that we being regenerate, and made thy children by adoption and grace, may daily be renewed by thy Holy Spirit; through the same our Lord Jesus Christ, who liveth and reigneth with thee and the same Spirit, ever one God, world without end. Amen. (Christmas)

Almighty and everlasting God, who hateth nothing that thou hast made, and dost forgive the sins of all them that are penitent: Create and make in us new and contrite hearts, that we worthily lamenting our sins, and acknowledging our wretchedness, may obtain of thee, the God of all mercy, perfect remission and forgiveness; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen. (Lent)

Almighty God, who through thine only-begotten Son Jesus Christ hast overcome death, and opened unto us the gate of everlasting life: We humbly beseech thee, that as by thy special grace preventing us thou dost put into our minds good desires, so by thy continual help we may bring the same to good effect; through Jesus Christ our Lord, who liveth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Ghost, ever one God, world without end. Amen. (Easter)

God, who of old time didst teach the hearts of thy faithful people, by the sending to them the light of thy Holy Spirit; Grant us by the same Spirit to have a right judgement in all things, and evermore to rejoice in his holy comfort; through the merits of Christ Jesus our Saviour, who liveth and reigneth with thee, in the unity of the same Spirit, one God, world without end. Amen. (Pentecost and general)

APPENDIX 2

Proposed revised terms of reference for the Delegated Powers and Regulatory Reform Committee

The terms of reference have been reformatted; all text embodying substantive change is underlined:

The Committee is appointed:

(i) To report whether the provisions of any bill inappropriately delegate legislative power, or whether they subject the exercise of legislative power to an inappropriate degree of parliamentary scrutiny;

(ii) To report on documents and draft orders laid before Parliament under or by virtue of:

- sections 14 and 18 of the Legislative and Regulatory Reform Act 2006,
- section 7(2) or section 15 of the Localism Act 2011, or
- section 5E(2) of the Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004;

and to perform, in respect of such draft orders, and in respect of subordinate provisions orders made or proposed to be made under the Regulatory Reform Act 2001, the functions performed in respect of other instruments and draft instruments by the Joint Committee on Statutory Instruments; and

(iii) To report on documents and draft orders laid before Parliament under or by virtue of:

- section 85 of the Northern Ireland Act 1998,
- section 17 of the Local Government Act 1999,
- section 9 of the Local Government Act 2000,
- section 98 of the Local Government Act 2003, or Proposed amendments to Standing Order 73 (terms of reference of the Joint Committee on Statutory Instruments)

Standing Order 73(1) to read as follows (deleted text struck through, new text underlined):

73(1) … but excluding any remedial order or draft remedial order under Schedule 2 to the Human Rights Act 1998, and any draft order proposed to be made under Part 1 of the Legislative and Regulatory Reform Act 2006 and any subordinate provisions order made or proposed to be made under the Regulatory Reform Act 2001, any draft order laid under or by virtue of section 7 or section 19 of the Localism Act 2011, and any draft order laid under or by virtue of section 5E of the Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004; and …

Tuesday 4 December 2012

9 Public Service Pensions Bill The Explanatory Notes on the bill were ordered to be printed. (HL Bill 67–EN)

10 Financial Restrictions (Iran) Order 2012 Lord Newby moved that the Order be referred to a Grand Committee. The motion was agreed to.

11 Financial Services Bill The bill was read a third time. Amendments were agreed to. Then the bill was passed and returned to the Commons with amendments.

12 Autumn Statement Lord Sassoon answered questions on a ministerial statement made in the House of Commons.

13 Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 (Armed Forces) (Amendment) Order 2012 (SI 2012/2505) Lord Scott of Foscote moved that this House regrets that the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 (Armed Forces) (Amendment) Order 2012 (SI 2012/2505) fails to comply with the judgment given on 4 December 2008 in S and Marper v United Kingdom and further regrets that the failure of the Secretary of State to exercise the power under section 120(1) of the Protection of Freedoms Act 2012 to bring into force Chapter 1 of Part 1 of that Act perpetuates the likelihood of breaches of human rights under Article 8 of the European Convention on Human Rights. After debate, the motion was withdrawn.

The House adjourned at 7.45pm until Thursday 6 December at 11.00am.

Grand Committee Business

The Grand Committee met in the Moses Room at 3.45pm.

Enterprise and Regulatory Reform Bill The Grand Committee further considered the bill, beginning with amendment 16A. The Committee adjourned after clause 13 was agreed to.

The Committee adjourned at 6.39pm.

Crime and Courts Bill [HL]

Division No. 2
Lord Woolf moved amendment 9, in Schedule 15, page 268, line 6, at end to insert:

“Part 6A
Provision for female offenders

28A (1) Contracts made by the Secretary of State with probation trusts shall require each probation trust to make appropriate provision for the delivery of services to female offenders."
(2) Provision under sub-paragraph (1) shall include provision for women wherever appropriate to carry out unpaid work and participate in programmes designed to change offending behaviour with the particular needs of women in mind."

APPENDIX

ADMINISTRATION AND WORKS COMMITTEE - 1ST REPORT 2012-13

Introduction

1. On 16 March 2010, the House agreed a report from the House Committee on the rules governing the use of facilities in the House of Lords\(^1\). That report included a short section on the rules relating to press conferences, as follows:

   “Members may not hold press conferences in committee rooms on the Committee Corridor, but they may do so in Committee Room G and other meeting rooms with Black Rod’s permission.”

A breach of these rules constitutes a breach of the Code of Conduct and could lead to an investigation by the House of Lords Commissioner for Standards.

2. In the last few years, press conferences have usually been held either in Committee Room G or in 1 The Abbey Garden. As the House no longer leases 1 The Abbey Garden, earlier this year Black Rod invited this Committee to agree an alternative location. We agreed that press conferences should be allowed in the meeting room in Fielden House, and this arrangement has been in place since April 2012.

\(^1\) House Committee, 2nd Report (2009–10), Rules Governing the Use of Facilities (HL paper 47)
3. We have also considered the suitability of continuing to use Committee Room G for press conferences held by Members. Press conferences held by Members are, understandably, often about issues which are controversial and of significant public interest. Whilst it is right and proper that Members should be able to hold press conferences in Parliament as part of their Parliamentary work, the House as a whole may not wish to associate itself with the views given in such press conferences. However, the setting of Committee Room G, right within the heart of the Palace of Westminster, means that it is not always clear from a public perspective that the press conference is not an official event being held on behalf of the House.

4. Committee rooms are also in great demand, and we are aware that Members and committees sometimes struggle to book meeting rooms in the Palace for their meetings. Furthermore, press conferences can attract a large number of journalists and other guests, which can be difficult to manage from a security point of view.

5. For these reasons, we conclude that it would be better for Members’ press conferences to be held outside the main Palace. Instead, the meeting room in Fielden House should be used, which should be booked through Black Rod’s Office. This building has a single point of entry for external guests, which can be easily controlled in the event of any contentious media events. As the building is not part of the Palace of Westminster itself, it would also help to provide some distinction between the views of the House and the views being expressed in the particular press conferences.

6. We therefore recommend that the rules governing the use of facilities should be amended to read as follows:

   “Members may not hold press conferences in committee rooms in the Palace of Westminster, but they may do so in the meeting room in Fielden House, and bookings should be made through Black Rod’s Office.”

7. We do not suggest that these rules should apply to press conferences organised by select committees of the House. As official committees appointed by the House, we believe that it is appropriate for select committees to be able to continue to hold press conferences in Committee Room G and rooms on the Committee Corridor.

8. Whilst this is primarily a practical issue, the use of Committee Room G was originally included in the rules agreed by the House and so the House as a whole will need to decide whether this should be changed. We therefore invite the House to agree to the recommendation in paragraph 6.

Prayers were read by the Lord Bishop of Wakefield.

Public Business

1 Antarctic Bill Viscount Montgomery of Alamein moved that the bill be now read a second time. After debate, the motion was agreed to and the bill was committed to a Committee of the Whole House.

2 Presumption of Death Bill Baroness Kramer moved that the bill be now read a second time. After debate, the motion was agreed to and the bill was committed to a Committee of the Whole House.

3 Mobile Homes Bill Lord Best moved that the bill be now read a second time. After debate, the motion was agreed to and the bill was committed to a Committee of the Whole House.

4 Marine Navigation (No. 2) Bill Baroness Wilcox moved that the House do resolve itself into a Committee on the Bill. Then Lord Berkeley moved, as an amendment to the motion, to leave out from “House” to end and insert “declines to consider the bill in committee until Her Majesty’s Government have laid before both Houses of Parliament a report on the compatibility of the provisions of the bill (and in particular the provisions of Clause 2 and proposals to allow junior ratings to hold pilotage exemption certificates) with the International Maritime Organization’s International Convention on Standards of Training, Certification and Watchkeeping for Seafarers.” After debate, the amendment was withdrawn and the original motion was agreed to. The House resumed after amendment 1.

The House adjourned at 3.04pm until Monday 4 February at 2.30pm.

Select Committee Report

1 Secondary Legislation Scrutiny

The following Report from the Select Committee was made and ordered to be printed:

26th Report on the following instruments:

Draft Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Financial Services Compensation Scheme) Order 2013
Public Business

2 Taxation: tax collection A question was asked by Lord Harrison and answered by Lord Newby.

3 Ministerial Code A question was asked by Lord Campbell-Savours and answered by Lord Wallace of Saltaire.

4 Food banks A question was asked by Lord Dubs and answered by Lord De Mauley.

5 Forestry A question was asked by Lord Greaves and answered by Lord De Mauley.

6 Statutory Instruments The Chairman of Committees moved that Lord Walpole be appointed a member of the Joint Committee in place of Lord Rees-Mogg. The motion was agreed to.

7 Immigration and Nationality (Fees) (Amendment) Order 2013 Lord Taylor of Holbeach moved that the draft Order laid before the House on 19 December 2012 be approved. The motion was agreed to.

8 Control of Donations and Regulation of Loans etc. (Extension of the Prescribed Period) (Northern Ireland) Order 2013 Baroness Randerson moved that the draft Order laid before the House on 5 December 2012 be approved. The motion was agreed to.

9 Civil Enforcement of Road Traffic Contraventions (Representations and Appeals) (Wales) Regulations 2013 Baroness Randerson moved that the draft Regulations laid before the House on 19 December 2012 be approved. The motion was agreed to.

10 Scrap Metal Dealers Bill The report was received.

11 Defamation Bill The report was received. Amendments 1 and 2 were agreed to (see divisions 1 and 2). An amendment was agreed to. The report stage was adjourned.

12 NHS Bodies and Local Authorities (Partnership Arrangements, Care Trusts, Public Health and Local Healthwatch) Regulations 2012 (SI 2012/3094) Lord Collins of Highbury moved that this House regrets that the NHS Bodies and Local Authorities (Partnership Arrangements, Care Trusts, Public Health and Local Healthwatch) Regulations 2012 (SI 2012/3094) fail to guarantee sufficient representation of local patient interests and, despite Government assurances given to the House at Committee stage of the Health and Social Care Bill on 15 December 2011, have through restrictions on campaigning deliberately tied the hands of Local Healthwatch bodies from giving public voice to those patient interests. After debate, the motion was disagreed to (see division 3).

13 Defamation Bill The report stage was continued, beginning with amendment 11. Amendments were agreed to. The bill, as amended, was ordered to be printed. (HL Bill 84)

The House adjourned at 10.45pm until Wednesday 6 February at 3.00pm.

Lord Collins of Highbury moved that this House regrets that the NHS Bodies and Local Authorities (Partnership Arrangements, Care Trusts, Public Health and Local Healthwatch) Regulations 2012 (SI 2012/3094) fail to guarantee sufficient representation of local patient interests and, despite Government assurances given to the House at Committee stage of the Health and Social Care Bill on 15 December 2011, have through restrictions on campaigning deliberately tied the hands of Local Healthwatch bodies from giving public voice to those patient interests. Standing Order 72

1. The Committee recommends that the amendments to Standing Order 72 (Affirmative Instruments) set out below be agreed to. These technical amendments are consequential upon recent changes, already agreed by the House, to the scrutiny arrangements for secondary legislation.¹

2. The amendments are as follows (deleted text struck through, inserted text underlined):

72.—No Motion for a resolution of the House to approve an Affirmative Instrument shall be moved until:

(a) except in the case of a draft remedial order or remedial order laid under Schedule 2 to the Human Rights Act 1998, or a draft order proposed to be made under Part 1 of the Legislative and Regulatory Reform Act 2006, or a subordinate provisions order made or proposed to be made under the Regulatory Reform Act 2001, a draft order laid under or by virtue of section 7 or section 19 of the Localism Act 2011, or a draft order laid under or by virtue of section 5E of the Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004, there has been laid before the House the report thereon of the Joint Committee on Statutory Instruments;

(b) in the case of a draft order proposed to be made under Part 1 of the Legislative and Regulatory Reform Act 2006, or a subordinate provisions order made or proposed to be made under the Regulatory Reform Act 2001, a draft order laid under or by virtue of section 7 or section 19 of the Localism Act 2011, or a draft order laid under or by virtue of section 5E of the Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004, there has been laid before the House the report thereon of the Delegated Powers and Regulatory Reform Committee.

Wednesday 13 February 2013

23 Employment and Support Allowance Regulations 2013 Lord Freud moved that the draft Regulations laid before the House on 10 December 2012 be approved. After debate, the motion was agreed to.

24 Social Security (Personal Independence Payment) Regulations 2013 Lord Freud moved that the draft Regulations laid before the House on 13 December 2012 be approved. Then Lord McKenzie of Luton moved, as an amendment to the original motion, at end to insert “but that this House is concerned about the impact of the replacement of Disability Living Allowance with Personal Independence Payment; is concerned about the lack of a full impact assessment on carers; regrets the lack of a cumulative impact assessment of all the changes hitting disabled people; regrets the fact that vital safeguards have not been introduced to ensure that additional pressure is not put on carers, that people do not lose their freedom to work and that they are not driven to already stretched NHS or social care services; believes that while Disability Living Allowance needed reform it should have been started with the needs of disabled people and not with a budget cut; notes that some 600,000 fewer people will be in receipt of Personal Independence Payment by May 2018 compared to those who would have been entitled under Disability Living Allowance; and further notes that some 25,000 disabled people could be forced to give up their jobs because they can no longer afford the extra costs of getting to work”. After debate, the amendment was withdrawn. Then the original motion was agreed to.

25 Universal Credit, Personal Independence Payment, Jobseeker’s Allowance and Employment and Support Allowance (Decisions and Appeals) Regulations 2013 Lord Freud moved that the draft Regulations laid before the House on 10 December 2012 be approved. After debate, the motion was agreed to.

26 Social Security (Payments on Account of Benefit) Regulations 2013 Lord Freud moved that the draft Regulations laid before the House on 10 December 2012 be approved. After debate, the motion was agreed to.

27 Social Security (Loss of Benefit) (Amendment) Regulations 2013 Lord Freud moved that the draft Regulations laid before the House on 8 January be approved. The motion was agreed to.

LIAISON COMMITTEE - 1ST REPORT 2012-13

REVIEW OF SELECT COMMITTEE ACTIVITY

Introduction

1. Select Committee activity is highly regarded both within the House and outside, and continues to contribute greatly to the House of Lords’ reputation as a second Chamber. Last year, following the publication of the Report of the Leader’s Group’s on Working Practices,¹ we considered how to refocus the committee work of the House. Our aim was to refresh and rebalance the range of subjects that are scrutinised, and in doing so engage a wider range of members in the House’s work.

2. In our report of March 2012 we reviewed existing select committee activity and recommended an additional unit of committee activity. We also recommended a reduction in the resources available to the European Union and Science and Technology Committees to enable the redeployment of resources to support two new ad hoc select committees appointed for a fixed term of up to one Session to conduct a specific inquiry into a cross-cutting area of domestic policy. We further recommended the appointment of an ad hoc select committee to carry out post-legislative scrutiny of a specific set of Acts.²

3. In the present report we:
   - review the existing select committee activity of the House in the light of the changes made at the start of the present session;
   - consider a proposal to extend the orders of reference of the Joint Committee on the National Security Strategy to enable it to appoint a sub-committee;
   - review the activity of the three new ad hoc committees, in particular the first House of Lords post-legislative scrutiny committee;
   - recommend the appointment of three new ad hoc select committees and two post-legislative scrutiny committees in the 2013–14 session.

Existing scrutiny Committees
4. There are currently four major House of Lords investigative Select Committees:
   - the European Union Committee
   - the Communications Committee
   - the Economic Affairs Committee
   - the Science and Technology Committee
5. In addition, three important Committees focus on scrutiny of legislation. These are the Delegated Powers and Regulatory Reform Committee, the Merits of Statutory Instruments Committee and the Joint Committee on Statutory Instruments. The Joint Committee on Human Rights and the Constitution Committee also combine investigative and scrutiny functions. All five Committees contribute greatly to the scrutiny of legislation on and off the floor of the House. Like the Constitution Committee, the European Union, Science and Technology and Economic Affairs Committees are sessional committees, so called because under Standing Order 64 their orders of appointment remain in force from one Session to the next throughout a Parliament until the House orders otherwise. The Communications Committee has been appointed each Session; and in addition ad hoc committees are appointed to undertake a particular inquiry and to report thereon to the House.
6. A sessional Joint Committee on the National Security Strategy was first appointed in 2010.1

The Leader’s Group on Working Practices
7. In April 2011 the Leader’s Group on Working Practices, chaired by Lord Goodlad, reported. Recommendations 45 and 46 of the Leader’s Group report (paragraphs 236 and 237) were as follows:
   “45. We recommend that the House establish two additional sessional select committees, with the intention of enhancing its capacity to scrutinise Government policy. In determining the remit of these committees, we recommend that particular regard be paid to the need for Lords committees to:
   - Make best use of the knowledge and experience of Members of the House;
   - Complement the work of Commons departmental select committees;
   - Address areas of policy that cross departmental boundaries.

1 CJ (2009–10) 133; Lords Minutes of Proceedings, 1 February 2010.
46. We recommend that in future the work of all investigative select committees of the House should be subject to regular and systematic review, and that, following the appointment of the two additional committees recommended above, any further sessional committees should only be appointed to replace existing committees, without creating extra demands on resources.”

Our Review

8. This is our second review of existing committee activity in the light of the Leader's Group report. We conducted it in the light of our conclusions in our 1st report of this Session,¹ to which the House agreed, that the principles which we should apply in considering proposals for committee activity should be:

(a) House of Lords committees should generally seek to complement rather than duplicate the areas of scrutiny of House of Commons committees and other Lords committees;

(b) we will continue to support the appointment of one ad hoc committee at any one time, though there is a case for ad hoc committees with narrower and more topical remits conducting shorter inquiries;

(c) new committees should be appointed for a limited time only;

(d) we will continue to keep resource requirements closely under review to ensure that committee work provides value for money, and can be supported by members;

(e) in assessing proposed or existing committees we will consider whether the committee activity in question represents a productive use of the resources of the House and the administration and, where there is a need to prioritise between two or more alternatives, whether it represents a more productive use than the others in existence or proposed;

(f) we will continue to seek to evaluate potential impact when considering new proposals for committees, or reviewing existing activity.

9. We considered first the scope and activity of current committees, and discussed the work of the Communications Committee, the European Union Committee and the Science and Technology Committee with their respective Chairmen.

Communications Committee

10. We have already noted that the Communications Committee is not a sessional committee. In our 3rd report of last Session we recommended that it should be re-appointed on its then existing basis at the start of the 2012–13 Session. We undertook to review the question of its further re-appointment towards the end of that Session, and accordingly did so.

11. We discussed the work of the Committee with Lord Inglewood, its Chairman, whose letter to the Chairman is printed in Appendix 1. We concluded that the Committee should continue its work at this time, in the light of the current significant and fast-moving developments in the media and the creative industries, and that it should be appointed as a sessional committee at the start of the 2013–14 Session. We also discussed with Lord Inglewood a possible change of name for the Committee, as it was put to us that its current title might not describe the work of the Committee fully. As the Committee itself had been unable to agree on an alternative name, and as it has built up a reputation for its previous work, we concluded that it would be best to continue with its present name.

12. We recommend the appointment of the Communications Committee as a sessional committee at the start of the 2013–14 Session.

European Union Committee

13. Last year we recommended that from the start of the 2012–13 Session the number of sub-committees of the European Union Committee should be reduced from seven to six. We discussed the work of that Committee and its Sub-Committees with its Chairman, Lord Boswell of Aynho. He told us that the change had not yet fully bedded down, but his assessment so far was that the Committee was still managing to do the job that the House had appointed it to do, and was still scrutinising nearly 1,000 documents a year. The key impact had been that the remaining Sub-Committees had had to work harder.

14. We also discussed with Lord Boswell of Aynho the recent work of EU Sub-Committee C (External Affairs), in conjunction with the House of Commons Defence Select Committee, in relation to the UK-France defence treaty. This has entailed twice-yearly meetings, involving members of those two committees and two committees of the French Parliament. Lord Boswell suggested that whilst it was good that this treaty was being scrutinised and Sub-Committee C’s involvement was a pragmatic way of ensuring that the House of Lords was represented at the twice-yearly conferences, the activity was not unproblematic, because the UK-France defence treaty was not an EU treaty.

Joint Committee on the National Security Strategy

15. In December 2009 we recommended the appointment of a Joint Committee on the National Security Strategy (JCNSS). In so doing we said:

   “The Government’s intention is that the joint committee would act with a light touch ...

   The proposed joint committee is unlikely to need to meet with great frequency—perhaps 3 to 4 times a year. It is likely that this level of additional activity could be absorbed within existing staff resources. Other costs are not anticipated to be substantial.”

16. The Committee did not meet until January 2011. It agreed its first report in February 2012. In the present Session it has become more active than originally envisaged. It has met formally six times (and twice informally) and is expected to meet twice more before the end of the Session. The Committee has been well supported by Lords members.

17. The Chair of the Joint Committee on the National Security Strategy, the Rt Hon Dame Margaret Beckett MP, wrote to the Chairmen of the two Liaison Committees (see Appendix 2) to seek their support for a change in the Joint Committee’s orders of reference, to enable it to appoint a sub-committee, with a quorum of two from each House. A power to appoint a sub-committee with a lower quorum could enable the Committee to become more active. Mrs Beckett’s letter suggests that it “would enable in-depth work to be done on topics important to national security”. A more active Committee would almost certainly need increased staffing. Thus far the Lords Clerk has supported the Committee in addition to his main duties.

18. The House of Commons Liaison Committee considered the JCNSS’s proposal for a power to establish a sub-committee at its meeting on 27 February and declined to support it.

19. The Committee is not minded to recommend an extension to the Joint Committee on the National Security Strategy’s orders of reference to enable it to appoint a sub-committee, and would not support an increase in the Joint Committee’s resources. We suggest that further thought is given to the size and composition of the Committee’s membership.

Science and Technology Committee

20. In our 1st report of last session we said that in the event of further demands for committee work requiring redeployment of committee resources we would in the first instance look towards retrenchment of the Science and Technology Committee. Accordingly in our 3rd report we concluded that from the start of the 2012–13 Session the Science and Technology Committee should be allocated the resources of a single select committee. The Committee should retain the power to appoint a sub-committee, and the power to co-opt additional members for particular inquiries, but those powers should not be exercised in such a way as to increase the workload of the Committee beyond that of a single committee unit.

21. This decision caused considerable unhappiness, and we discussed its impact with the Chairman of that Committee, Lord Krebs. Lord Krebs also provided us with a helpful letter, printed in Appendix 3. Lord Krebs said that previously the Committee had had the resources to conduct two units of activity at once. The reduction in resource to three staff members had required the Committee to undertake one unit of activity, rather than two, and the Committee no longer had a sub-committee. In the past the Committee had typically alternated a long inquiry with a short one, and the Committee had been severely constrained in the present Session by having to drop the second simultaneous inquiry.

22. We recognise the important contribution which the Science and Technology Committee makes to the committee work of the House. We believe, however, that the restructuring of committee activity which took effect at the start of the present Session needs further time to bed down.

23. We recommend that the Science and Technology Committee should be re-appointed at the start of the 2013–14 Session with the resources of a single select committee.

The work of the three ad hoc committees

24. We discussed the work of the three ad hoc committees appointed in the present session with their Chairmen. Baroness Butler-Sloss, Chairman of the Select Committee on Adoption Legislation, Lord Cope of Berkeley, Chairman of the Select Committee on Small and Medium Sized Enterprises and Exports, and Lord Filkin, Chairman of the Select Committee on Public Service and Demographic Change, were unanimous in their enthusiasm for the work of their committees, the commitment of members and the support provided by committee staff. The advantages of ad hoc activity which they highlighted... included the commitment of the members to the subject matter for a comparatively limited period of time.

25. Lord Cope of Berkeley and Lord Filkin emphasised the importance of ad hoc committees starting work promptly in the new Session, so that a full programme of evidence could be arranged and any necessary visits planned in good time. Baroness Butler-Sloss drew our attention to the difficulties faced by the Adoption Legislation Committee in working on a subject area where the Government were planning extensive change (her letter to the Chairman is printed as Appendix 4). On the other hand, there was little point in conducting post-legislative scrutiny in an area where no further change was in prospect. We asked all three Chairmen whether, on balance, they would wish to work on similar committees in the future. They all agreed that they would.

26. We consider that the three new ad hoc Committees have worked well this session, conducting inquiries into topical issues of widespread importance and making good use of the experience and expertise of the House.

PROPOSALS FOR NEW COMMITTEE ACTIVITY

Appointment of new committees

27. We remain of the view that the best way of ensuring that committees reflect the changing priorities of the House and engage the full range of its membership is to appoint them on a time-limited basis, to conduct a specific inquiry with a membership tailored to that task. Regular turnover of members gives a wider range of members the opportunity to serve, and short, sharp inquiries should also make it easier for members with significant commitments outside the House to participate.

28. As we anticipated in our 3rd report of last Session, fixed terms also allow us to play a more active role in reviewing and adapting the select committee activity of the House in future, thereby addressing the Leader’s Group’s recommendation that the House’s select committee activity should be kept under regular review. The resources to support new select committee activity are released at the end of each Session, giving this Committee more room to facilitate proposals for new select committees submitted by members of the House in the course of the Session. We have also been able to consider proposals for re-appointment by existing committees, or an expansion of their activity, against this backdrop.

29. We remind members of the House that they may submit proposals for new ad hoc committees to the Chairman of the Liaison Committee at any time. We would particularly welcome proposals from members of the House towards the end of next Session, to inform our deliberations as we prepare to make recommendations to the House on the appointment of new ad hoc committees for the 2014–15 Session.

30. In our 1st report of last Session we estimated the additional marginal cost of a new unit of committee activity as £225,000. Clearly some committees are more expensive to run than others, for example those requiring substantial legal advice or overseas travel. In our 3rd report of last Session we recommended an additional unit of committee activity for the present session, and the House Committee approved this additional expenditure in principle. This increase in ad hoc committee activity has been very well received, and the House Committee has indicated to us that if we are persuaded by the case made to us it would ensure that funds are made available to support the work of a further additional unit of committee activity in the 2013/14 session, again costed at £225,000.

31. As is evident below, we have indeed been so persuaded of the case for a further modest expansion of committee activity, following the expansion of ad hoc committee activity in the 2012–13 Session. We accordingly recommend the appointment of a further additional unit of committee activity in the 2013–14 Session.

32. The scope for extra committees is not however without limit. The availability of committee rooms, for example, is a constraint. In addition, there is a necessary time-lag in securing staff to support new committee work—we understand that it is likely that this additional unit of committee activity will be unable to start its work until the autumn, to allow for the recruitment and training of its staff. We have therefore tried to accommodate as many of the proposals as possible, in some cases by combining more than one proposal. Two of our recommendations are for short inquiries, with the aim of maximising the number of inquiries which can be carried out in one session.

33. We recommend that two of the new ad hoc committees should last for only a few months each, to enable both to be accommodated within the 2013–14 Session.

Pre-legislative committees in Session 2013–14

34. We remain committed to supporting the work of pre-legislative committees. The experience of recent Sessions has demonstrated the important role such committees can play in engaging a wider audience in the scrutiny of legislation than is possible on the floor of the House, and in assisting policy formulation. The staff resource currently provided for supporting pre-legislative committees enables the House to administer one such unit of activity at any one time. This has proved adequate in the current Session, although by its nature pre-legislative scrutiny work is very intensive and typically involves the staff concerned working long hours to support it.

35. We expect the joint committee on the Draft Prisoner Voting Bill to start work shortly. We anticipate other draft legislation being presented for scrutiny during the course of the next Session.

Proposals for ad hoc Committees

36. In autumn 2012 the Chairman invited proposals from members of the House for ad hoc Committees in the 2013–14 Session, setting a deadline of 18 January to allow time for their proper evaluation. Although in some cases members proposed only a Committee title (indicated by an asterisk in the list below), others sent in letters or memoranda, all of which are printed as Appendices to this report. The following proposals were received, including some proposals for sessional committees.

Committee organisation

- General Affairs Committee, to conduct topical inquiries at short notice, co-opting members as required (Lord Grenfell)*
- More Joint Committees (Lord Ramsbotham)
Domestic affairs

- Church and state (Lord Harries of Pentregarth)
- Discrimination and intolerance in Britain (Baroness Young of Hornsey)
- Online issues (communications) (Baroness Kidron)*
- Oversight of policy and legislation implementation (Lord Mawhinney)
- Preventing religiously-based gender discrimination in arbitration and mediation services (Baroness Cox, with letters of support from Lord Eden of Winton and Lord Elton)
- The consequences of the use of personal service companies for tax collection (Lord Myners)*
- The response of voluntary organisations to a changing environment in order to better serve the communities they support (Baroness Andrews)
- Welfare and protection of children—the place and treatment of children within society (Lord Foulkes of Cumnock)*
- Social mobility (Baroness Tyler of Enfield)
- Inquiries (Lord Shutt of Greetland)

Foreign and international affairs

- General foreign affairs committee (Lord Forsyth of Drumlean, Lord Hannay of Chiswick, Lord Howell of Guildford, Lord Kerr of Kinlochard, Earl of Sandwich, Lord Luce*, Baroness Manningham-Buller*)
- Reviewing the post-2015 Millennium Development Goals (Baroness Nicholson of Winterbourne )
- Select Committee on the Commonwealth (Lord Foulkes of Cumnock)*
- The Arab Spring: consequences and prospects (Lord Davies of Stamford)*
- The future of UK in Europe and the consequences of detachment (Lord Christopher)*
- The support and promotion of the need for modern foreign language skills in the UK’s economy, education and international relations (Baroness Coussins)
- Britain’s influence abroad (Baroness O’Cathain)

Growth

- Financing of infrastructure (including energy, transport, flood defence and housing) (Lord Whitty)*
- Future land use (including planning, agriculture, forestry, housing and development) (Lord Whitty)*
- Joint Committee on growth and competitiveness (Lord Hennessy of Nympsfield)
- Overseas trade (Lord Ezra, Lord Stoddart of Swindon*)

Health and social care

- Review of the long term financial and clinical sustainability of the present configuration of health and social care systems (Lord Warner)
- The implementation of parity of esteem for mental and physical health in the NHS (Lord Layard, Baroness Hollins, Baroness Meacher, Lord Stevenson of Coddenham, Lord Bragg, Lord Patel of Bradford and Lord Tunnicliffe)
Olympic and Paralympic legacy

- Legacy of the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games (Baroness Billingham, Baroness Doocey, Lord Moynihan)
- Legacy of the United Nations Resolution declaring the 2012 Olympic truce (Lord Bates)

Science and technology

- Better regulation of risk based on robust scientific evidence (short inquiry) (Earl of Lindsay, Lord McKenzie of Luton and Lord Curry of Kirkharle)
- Disposal and potential re-use of nuclear waste, and the co-ordination of the UK’s nuclear industry in both respects (Viscount Hanworth)*

37. We were delighted by this response to our request, which demonstrates the enthusiasm of members of the House for ad hoc Committee activity. We considered the proposals received against the criteria set out in the Leader’s Group’s Report, quoted in paragraph 7 above.

38. We also took into account our helpful meeting with the Chairmen of the three ad hoc Committees appointed by the House in the present session. Our discussion with Baroness Butler-Sloss, Chairman of the Select Committee on Adoption Legislation, Lord Cope of Berkeley, Chairman of the Select Committee on Small and Medium sized Enterprises and Exports, and Lord Filkin, Chairman of the Select Committee on Public Service and Demographic Change, led us to conclude that it is important to ensure that the work of ad hoc Committees can be confined to a single session.

An ad hoc Committee with an international dimension

39. Several members proposed a Select Committee on Foreign Affairs, with others proposing subjects for an ad hoc committee with an international dimension. Taking into account recent Parliamentary activity, we considered that several of these ideas, including a proposal by Baroness O’Cathain on Britain’s interests abroad, could be developed to examine the coordination between Government departments in the use of ‘soft power’ in promoting the UK’s interests abroad.¹ This inquiry would, we believe, be sufficiently focused to enable the Committee to conclude its work within a single session.

40. There has been increasing emphasis on the value of soft power in recent years. Lord Carter of Coles conducted a review of ‘public diplomacy’ in 2005, which led to the creation of a Public Diplomacy Board.² This was replaced in 2009 by a Strategic Communication and Public Diplomacy Forum, but this has now been stood down. The 2010 Strategic Defence and Security Review (SDSR) and the National Security Strategy stressed the value of soft power in response to the challenges facing defence funding. The SDSR refers to a need for a “whole of government” approach to foreign and defence policy, and the value of British culture and language, and participation in international institutions, to Britain’s role in the world.

² Lord Carter of Coles, Public Diplomacy Review, December 2005
41. The Foreign Secretary argued for the importance of soft power as a “vital component” of the UK’s international influence in a 2010 speech.¹ To that end, the 2010 FCO Business Plan contained a commitment to “develop a long-term programme to enhance UK ‘soft power’, coordinated by the National Security Council”. A motion on the importance of soft power was debated in the House on 28 April 2011.²

42. An ad hoc select committee could examine the coordination between Government departments in the use of ‘soft power’ in promoting the UK’s interests abroad, and future priorities in this regard.

43. We recommend the appointment of an ad hoc committee on the use of soft power in promoting the UK’s interests abroad, to report by the end of the 2013–14 Session.

A short ad hoc Committee on the strategic issues for regeneration and sporting legacy from the Olympic and Paralympic Games

44. Several members, including Lord Moynihan, former Chairman of the British Olympic Association, proposed inquiries relating to the Olympic and Paralympic Games. Both the current and the previous Government are committed to achieving a lasting legacy from the London 2012 Games, in the successful delivery of which several members of the House played a leading role.

45. There is a large range of issues which could be covered by such an inquiry. We consider that at this stage it would be preferable for an inquiry to be focused on the regeneration legacy and the sports legacy—the two issues highlighted by Lord Moynihan. A short inquiry focused on these strategic issues would be particularly timely in the run up to the Glasgow Commonwealth Games in July and August 2014.

46. We recommend the appointment of an ad hoc committee on the strategic issues for regeneration and sporting legacy from the Olympic and Paralympic Games, to report by autumn 2013.

A short ad hoc Committee on the consequences of the use of personal service companies for tax collection income into dividend income to lessen their tax bill. These rules are still in place and go by the name IR35.

47. This proposal was put forward by Lord Myners. Personal service companies (PSCs) are owned, run by and employ one person. They are widely used by contractors and freelancers who often draw their income by way of a dividend from the PSC’s profits. Many employers insist on contractors/freelancers having personal service companies to avoid the hassles and costs of employment rights when hiring an employee for a short-term job. For contractors and freelancers PSCs reduce their tax bills. For genuine one-person businesses, where there are running costs incurred, these tax benefits are generally seen as acceptable. But the system encourages abuse where long-term employees are paid through a personal service company solely to pay less tax than they would have if their income had been subject to income tax like a regular employee. Numerous attempts have been made to tackle this abuse. In 2000 the Government introduced legislation to prevent the use of PSCs purely to convert employee...

48. In 2012 PSCs hit the headlines when a Treasury review found 2,400 ‘off-payroll’ engagements with staff earning more than £58,200 a year in central government departments and their arm’s length bodies. The House of Commons Public Accounts Committee held a brief inquiry and reported on this issue in September 2012. The Commons inquiry focused on the public sector and administration of the existing system.

49. A short House of Lords ad hoc inquiry could be carried out within 6–8 oral evidence sessions, and include examination of the use of PSCs both in the public and private sectors.

50. We recommend the appointment of an ad hoc committee on the consequences of the use of personal service companies for tax collection, to begin its work following the completion of the work of the committee on the Olympic and Paralympic Games and to report by the end of the 2013–14 Session.

Post-Legislative scrutiny

51. The Leader’s Group on Working Practices recommended that the House “appoint a Post-Legislate Scrutiny Committee, to manage the process of reviewing up to four selected Acts of Parliament each year.” The Government have committed to publish post-legislative assessments of almost all Acts passed since 2005 within 3–5 years of their passing. While a considerable number of post-legislative memoranda have been published, some are already being considered by House of Commons committees and others are not suitable for a significant post-legislative scrutiny inquiry.

52. In our 3rd report of last Session we supported a variant proposal from the Leader of the House, that it would make better use of the expertise of members to establish an ad hoc committee on a particular Act or Acts. We recommended the adoption of a post-legislative scrutiny Committee to examine the Children and Adoption Act 2006 and the Adoption and Children Act 2002. We agree with Baroness Butler-Sloss, the Chairman of the Adoption Legislation Committee, that the work of that Committee has been successful and is helping to inform current debates on Children and Families policy.

A post-legislative scrutiny committee on the Mental Capacity Act 2005

52. The Ministry of Justice published the post-legislative scrutiny memorandum for the Mental Capacity Act 2005 in October 2010. Following publication of the post-legislative memorandum the House of Commons Select Committee on Justice held an evidence session with the Public Guardian and the Director of the Royal Courts of Justice Group, and the House of Commons Health Select Committee has similarly heard a limited amount of evidence.

2 Paragraphs 134–141.
3 The Committee’s two reports are published as HL Paper 94, 1st report of Session 2012–13, Adoption: Pre-Legislative Scrutiny and HL Paper 127, 2nd report of Session 2012–13, Adoption: Post-Legislative Scrutiny.
53. The Act provides a legal framework for making decisions on behalf of adults whose mental capacity is impaired. It was substantially amended by the Mental Health Act 2007. The Mental Capacity Bill was subject to pre-legislative scrutiny. A post-legislative review of the Act would not only provide an important opportunity to consider the issues above but it could look at how the pre-legislative scrutiny process influenced the passage of the Bill, whether issues that were raised in pre-legislative scrutiny were ignored and whether any such issues have led to problems since the Act came into force.

54. The Government’s post-legislative memorandum suggested that the legislation was working well other than in a few “small and technical” areas. This view was broadly upheld in 2010 by the Public Guardian’s evidence to the Justice Committee. Since that date concerns have been expressed that the procedural safeguards in the Act may be inadequate to satisfy the requirements of the Human Rights Act 1998. The Mental Capacity Act was amended in the light of the Bournewood judgment which found the UK in breach of Article 5 of the ECHR. The recent findings about the treatment of residents at the Winterbourne View care home, together with a recent Mencap report highlighting deficiencies in the care of mentally disordered patients, suggest that the legislative regime for mentally incapacitated adults would merit scrutiny by a House of Lords post-legislative scrutiny committee. Such scrutiny could include consideration of external oversight of the decisions made on behalf of incapacitated individuals by medical professionals and guidelines on “best interests” decisions, where social workers and others have taken over decision-making in areas such as personal welfare, type of care or financial affairs on someone else’s behalf.

55. We recommend the appointment of an ad hoc post-legislative scrutiny committee to examine the Mental Capacity Act 2005, to report before the end of the 2013–14 Session.

A post-legislative scrutiny committee on the Inquiries Act 2005

56. The Inquiries Act 2005 replaced a number of older statutes with a single, unified scheme for the holding of public inquiries. According to the Ministry of Justice, the Act aimed: “to make inquiries swifter, more effective at finding facts and making practical recommendations, and less costly whilst still meeting the need to satisfy the public expectation for a thorough and wide ranging investigation. [It] also aimed to restore public confidence in the inquiry process particularly given the concerns and controversies generated by the conduct of inquiries such as the Bloody Sunday Inquiry and other earlier pre-2005 Act inquiries.” The Ministry of Justice published a post-legislative assessment of the Act in 2010. The House of Commons Justice Select Committee has not undertaken post-legislative scrutiny of the Act.

57. The Act granted ministers a significant range of powers in relation to inquiries, including powers:
  • To set up an inquiry;

---

To set the terms of reference;
To appoint the chairman and panel members;
To suspend an inquiry;
To terminate an inquiry;
To restrict public attendance at an inquiry or part of an inquiry;
To restrict publication of inquiry documents;
To vary or revoke restrictions on public access to the inquiry or its documents.

58. The Joint Committee on Human Rights has expressed concerns that inquiries held under the Act might be insufficiently independent to satisfy the requirements of article 2 of the European Convention of Human Rights (the right to life). Concerns have also been raised around the confidentiality of information provided to inquiries after the inquiry has concluded. Under the Act, once the inquiry record has been lawfully passed to, and held by, a public authority (such as a government department), the record ceases to be exempt from the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

59. A post-legislative committee could consider issues including the function of inquiries and the principles that should underlie their use, and the extent to which the Inquiries Act 2005 reflects those principles; the respective roles of Parliament, the Government, the courts and inquiry panels themselves in making decisions about inquiries; the success of the 2005 Act in securing public confidence in inquiries; and the extent to which the 2005 Act has enabled inquiries to be cheaper and quicker than those before 2005.

60. We recommend the appointment of an ad hoc post-legislative scrutiny committee to examine the Inquiries Act 2005, to report before the end of the 2013–14 Session.

SUMMARY OF RECOMMENDATIONS

61. We recommend the appointment of the Communications Committee as a sessional committee at the start of the 2013–14 Session.

62. The Committee is not minded to recommend an extension to the Joint Committee on the National Security Strategy’s orders of reference to enable it to appoint a sub-committee, and would not support an increase in the Joint Committee’s resources. We suggest that further thought is given to the size and composition of the Committee’s membership.

63. We recommend that the Science and Technology Committee should be re-appointed at the start of the 2013–14 Session with the resources of a single select committee.

64. Following the expansion of ad hoc committee activity in the 2012–13 Session we recommend the appointment of a further additional unit of committee activity in the 2013–14 Session.

65. We recommend that two of the new ad hoc committees should last for only a few months each, to enable both to be accommodated within the 2013–14 Session.

66. We expect the pre-legislative scrutiny joint committee on the Draft Prisoner Voting Bill to start work shortly. We anticipate other draft legislation being presented for scrutiny during the course of the next Session.

67. We recommend the appointment of an ad hoc committee on the use of soft power in promoting the UK’s interests abroad, to report by the end of the 2013–14 Session.
68. We recommend the appointment of an ad hoc committee on the strategic issues for regeneration and sporting legacy from the Olympic and Paralympic Games, to report by autumn 2013.

69. We recommend the appointment of an ad hoc committee on the consequences of the use of personal service companies for tax collection, to begin its work following the completion of the work of the committee on the Olympic and Paralympic Games and to report by the end of the 2013–14 Session.

70. We recommend the appointment of an ad hoc post-legislative scrutiny committee to examine the Mental Capacity Act 2005, to report before the end of the 2013–14 Session.

71. We recommend the appointment of an ad hoc post-legislative scrutiny committee to examine the Inquiries Act 2005, to report before the end of the 2013–14 Session.

APPENDIX 1: LETTER TO THE CHAIRMAN FROM LORD INGLEWOOD, CHAIRMAN OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON COMMUNICATIONS

First, congratulations on your appointment as Chairman of Committees.

I am writing to you, early in your period of office, to make one or two comments, I hope constructive, about the Liaison Committee’s consideration of select committee activity at the end of the last session. I am afraid that, as far as the Communications Committee was concerned, the process left something to be desired, and I hope that when the Liaison Committee comes to review select committee activity towards the end of this session, things might be done slightly differently.

In summary, the Communications Committee felt that decisions about its future were being made without appropriate consultation. The Committee respects the Liaison Committee’s reasons for regularly reviewing select committee activity but there was a strong feeling in the Committee that the Liaison Committee was not really aware of the work the Communications Committee was doing and yet did not seek to ask the Committee to explain its case and describe its recent activities. Eventually, after I wrote to your predecessor, I was invited to address the Liaison Committee, and, as you know, the Communications Committee was re-appointed for this session. While this was a satisfactory outcome in the short term, the point remains that the Committee did not feel that the process was sufficiently informed or transparent.

As you know, I have also been giving some thought as to whether the Committee might seek to change its name. It strikes me that the name Communications Committee is sometimes confusing externally; people think we are concerned with House of Lords corporate communications. I wonder if the Select Committee on Communications and Media or the Select Committee on Communications, Media and the Creative Industries, or some such title, might be more apt. This is very much a preliminary thought, and I have only discussed it briefly with the Committee, but I would, however, appreciate your thoughts about this.

I would be delighted to meet with you to discuss further. Once again, congratulations on your appointment.

APPENDIX 2: LETTER TO THE CHAIRMAN FROM THE RT HON DAME MARGARET BECKETT MP, CHAIRMAN OF THE JOINT COMMITTEE ON THE NATIONAL SECURITY STRATEGY

I am writing to you, in my capacity as Chair of the Joint Committee on the National Security Strategy, to seek the support of the two Liaison Committees to a change in the Joint Committee’s orders of reference.

The Joint Committee on the National Security Strategy is not currently empowered to appoint a sub-committee. Up until now, this has not been problematic. However, as the Committee’s work has progressed, a strong feeling has arisen in the Committee that it would be useful to have the power to appoint a sub-committee to enable a smaller group of Members to conduct discrete detailed pieces of work. The Joint Committee has a membership of 22, and it is not practicable for the whole Committee to be involved in the more detailed investigation that the Committee wishes to pursue. The appointment of a sub-committee—with a quorum of two from each House—would enable in-depth work to be done on topics important to national security, which fall across the responsibilities of Government Departments, on an ad hoc basis, which could then inform the whole Committee’s work. The power to appoint a sub-committee would give the Committee a little more flexibility in designing its work programme and making a positive contribution.

I should be very grateful for the support of the two Liaison Committees to this request, and for your advice on how best to proceed to secure the agreement of the two Houses. I should be delighted to discuss further if it would be helpful.

APPENDIX 3: LETTER TO THE CHAIRMAN FROM LORD KREBS
FRS, CHAIRMAN OF THE HOUSE OF LORDS SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY COMMITTEE

Resourcing of the Science and Technology Committee

Thank you for our productive meeting of 13 November regarding the resourcing of the Science and Technology Committee. In the light of our discussion, I would like to make a proposal for consideration at the next meeting of the Liaison Committee. I ask that the Liaison Committee reconsider its decision, subsequently endorsed by the House, to allocate the Science and Technology Select Committee “the resources of a single select committee”, as part of its review of activities of committee activities in the 2012–13 Session and to inform its deliberations on these activities in the 2013–14 Session. I would argue that it is of great importance that the Science and Technology Committee have the necessary staffing resources reinstated to allow it to undertake two units of activity at once. I offer the following reasons in support of this proposal:

Importance of Science and Technology to the UK economy

In a recent speech to the Royal Society, the Chancellor of the Exchequer emphasised what he referred to as “the economic benefits of scientific excellence”. The Government are committed to supporting science and innovation as a means to stimulate economic growth, and the Committee is similarly persuaded that science and technology are key to stimulating the UK economy. We are already considering one of the eight future technologies in which the Chancellor argued the UK could be world-leading and, with the resources of a Sub-Committee, could lend further support to achieving this aim. Furthermore, with these resources restored we could scrutinise the allocation of the £600 million for “research council infrastructure, and facilities for applied research and development” pledged in the Autumn Statement, to ensure that capital funding for research is used appropriately.

One of our primary considerations in choosing inquiry topics is whether they “cover areas of science and technology that Government are or should be involved in, are of public concern, or where action is required to stimulate the advancement and application of science”. The Committee has, historically, drawn attention to the need for appropriate development and support for key economic growth areas including nanotechnology, renewable and nuclear energies, and the computing market. In these difficult economic times, it is essential that the Committee has the resources to offer this continued support and, where necessary, challenge to Government to rethink how it can better use science to stimulate the economy. The House of Lords is well respected as a House of expertise and, given both the current drive for science to stimulate the economy and the significant experience of the Science and Technology Committee, it would seem entirely appropriate to restore to the Committee the staffing resources to undertake two units of activity at the same time.

Use of science in Government

Furthermore, both the previous and current Governments are committed to ensuring that science informs policy making in every department. The Committee supports this commendable aim by challenging Government on its use of science. For example, last year we published a report which made recommendations to enhance the system of departmental Chief Scientific Advisers who challenge the use of science in policy making by departments, and, in 2011, we considered how the Government could make better use of the behavioural sciences in our behaviour change report. The Committee needs the resources to support two units of activity if we are to ensure that Government policy making is adequately informed by science, whilst, at the same time, exploring new areas of science which the Government ought to consider.

Follow-up and responsive activities

The Committee regularly revisits previous inquiry topics to ensure that the areas considered are developing and to review whether further action is necessary. For example, we recently revisited a report into heritage science, and, over the past decade, have challenged Government to reconsider its position on radioactive waste management through several follow-up inquiries. This ability to follow-up on previous reports is one of our strengths as a sessional Committee. It is only with sufficient resources that this activity combined with new, substantive inquiries can be undertaken.

In addition, in the past, with further resources the Committee was able to undertake activities to respond to significant, time-sensitive developments in science policy, such as holding evidence sessions to clarify issues surrounding the “shaping capabilities” agenda of the Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council, and refocusing its follow-up activities to cover issues relevant to the swine flu pandemic in 2009, as this pandemic occurred. With reduced staffing resources the Committee is limited in its capacity to undertake this kind of work and important opportunities are missed to deal with certain timely issues.
Breadth of possible topics for consideration and the impact of reports
The Committee has a broad remit, “to consider science and technology”. We seek to ensure that inquiry topics are selected from across the broad spectrum of scientific and technological disciplines, including the biological, physical and social sciences. In the past year we have considered a variety of topics from Higher Education in Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics subjects, to sport science, to nuclear research and development, to heritage science. These reports have generated significant press coverage and have influenced the thinking of Government. For example, the Universities and Science Minister described how our “challenging report” into nuclear research and development capabilities raised the issue to “high on our [the Coalition Government’s] agenda”, and, in my capacity as Chairman, I am regularly invited to give interviews to major news outlets about our inquiries. Given the range of possible topic areas, the impact our reports have, and the importance of science and technology both to the economy and policy making, it would seem proper to reinstate the staff resources to allow the Committee to undertake two units of activity concurrently.

I would be most grateful for the opportunity to present this proposal to the Liaison Committee at a future meeting.

APPENDIX 4: LETTER TO THE CHAIRMAN FROM THE RT HON THE BARONESS BUTLER-SLOSS GBE, CHAIRMAN OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON ADOPTION LEGISLATION

Evaluation of post-legislative scrutiny committee: the Select Committee on Adoption legislation
The House of Lords Select Committee on Adoption Legislation was the first House of Lords Committee to be established specifically to conduct post-legislative scrutiny. In March 2012 the Liaison Committee stated that it would “be necessary to evaluate the outcome of the first post-legislative scrutiny committee. This will be a future task for this Committee.” This note aims to inform that evaluation.

Our approach
There are several ways that post-legislative scrutiny could be approached: one way would be to take an Act and look at it section by section considering how it was drafted, what parliament intended when it was debated, how it was implemented and how it has worked in practice. The other approach, which we chose to take, is to use the legislation as the basis for a broader and more topical inquiry. We looked at both the legislation already on the statute book and the Government’s current plans for policy changes. To do anything else would not have made sense given the amount of government activity in the area of adoption policy. We comment on this under ‘timing’ below.

The timing of our inquiry
Throughout our inquiry the Government developed its policy on adoption at a rapid rate. We understand that before recommending we be appointed the Liaison Committee was aware that the Prime Minister had stated that speeding up the adoption process was a Government priority, but we are not sure whether the Government members of the Committee made clear how much policy was going to develop before we were tasked with reporting. To summarise: on 14 March 2012 the Government published An Action Plan for Adoption: Tackling Delay. We were appointed on 21 May 2012, with a remit to report by the end of February 2013. We heard evidence from 26 June to 4 December 2012. On 7 November 2012 draft clauses on adoption were published and our terms of reference were amended to include pre-legislative scrutiny. We published our report on the draft clauses on 19 December 2012. On 24 December the Government published its plans to provide greater support for adopters, and on 24 January 2013 the Government published a wide-ranging package of reforms to improve adopter recruitment. We considered our first draft of the report on 29 January. On 5 February the Children and Families Bill was published, containing provisions on ethnic matching, fostering for adoption, adopter recruitment, the adoption register, adopter support services and post-adoption contact.

While we welcome the energy the Government has put into this area it is questionable whether areas of fast-moving policy change are best suited to a post-legislative scrutiny review. Our witnesses naturally wanted to focus on current government announcements rather than pure post-legislative scrutiny. Our report has inevitably focused on these changes too. We found it particularly frustrating towards the very end of our inquiry, when we were agreeing the text of our recommendations, that the Government published the Children and Families Bill with very little notice (the Chairman and secretariat were given less than 24 hours’ advanced sight, and only after repeated requests; the remaining Committee members did not see the Bill until after it was published, by which time the Committee had already spent two meetings considering the first draft of the report). Publishing the Bill before we published our report not only necessitated several last minute rewrites of the draft report but also meant that the legislation could not be informed by our recommendations and the expertise which we have developed.

Our terms of reference

The Liaison Committee initially suggested we be established to examine the Children and Adoption Act 2006 and the Adoption and Children Act 2002. However, initial scoping of the topic led to the House giving us the terms of reference “to consider the statute law on adoption” [HL Deb 21 May 2012 col 636]. This wider scope allowed us to consider the full gambit of adoption legislation without having to pause at artificial barriers created by the history of different pieces of legislation governing the same policy area. It also allowed us to look at the relevant secondary legislation.

Government memoranda

The Government has committed to publishing post-legislative scrutiny memoranda for all Acts passed since 2005. This meant that there was already a post-leg memorandum on the Children and Adoption Act 2006 but not on the Adoption and Children Act 2002. This was not a problem as the Government’s written evidence covered the 2002 Act. We see no reason for future decisions about post-legislative scrutiny to be restricted to those Acts for which post-leg memoranda are available.
Letter to the Chairman from Baroness Andrews OBE

I attach a proposal which has the support of Lord Boateng, Baroness Sherlock, Baroness Pitkeathley, Baroness Massey of Darwen, Lord Best, Baroness Tyler of Enfield, Baroness Barker, Baroness Fookes and Baroness Eaton. In brief: it is that one of the new Select Committees should ask the following question:

How can voluntary organisations best respond to the changing environment in order to better serve the communities they support?

The topic would, I believe, meet the fundamental criteria of the new Select Committees, and indeed, exemplify the present gap in the Select Committee system. In terms of cross cutting policy there is nothing more universal in its relationships and impact than the voluntary sector which affects the work of most government departments and influences policy—not least in terms of its delivery—from international affairs, to health and social policy, and education and welfare.

Given the breadth of the sector, I have refined the question so that it can be answered usefully. It focuses on the future and will give the Committee an opportunity to learn from the sector how it sees the challenges facing it (e.g. a changed landscape and new demands upon it), and how it is responding to that. While it will involve a little ‘stock taking’ it would also, I believe, generate new information about the choices facing the sector, its capacity in terms of human and financial resources and how it is managing that, future configurations (mergers etc) and governance issues.

The topic is evidently timely in several ways. The sector is dealing on every front with changing funding, political and legal landscapes; and demand for new services in a competitive framework. At the same time, there are questions over the future shape and nature of philanthropy, relationships and partnerships, and new forms of funding.

The sector is both spacious and diverse but the enquiry could be structured so that it did produce a clear analysis. Witnesses could be drawn from ‘umbrella’ organisations; and chosen sectors; alongside academics and think tanks.

The new Committee, by its ability to ask dispassionate and forensic questions will also be able to cut through areas which are sometimes very emotive, and would be very well placed to establish baseline information which will allow judgements to be made about the way the whole might look in 5–10 years time, and what it will be capable of. I think this is a question which would command widespread interest across and beyond the House of Lords.

I hope you think this is a positive and salient suggestion. I would, however, of course, welcome any advice from you, or Philippa Tudor.

17 DECEMBER 2012

Letter to the Chairman from Lord Bates

I would be most grateful if consideration could be given to the establishment of an ad hoc Select Committee to take evidence and make recommendations on the United Nations General Assembly resolution (A/66/862) declaring the period of truce to transcend both the Olympic and Paralympic Games in London.

Traditionally the truce resolution has been symbolic however there were significant efforts led by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office to seek to give the Olympic truce a more meaningful role in the London 2012 Games. The UK had a significant mandate as the 2012 Olympic truce resolution was not only signed but co-sponsored by all 193 member states of the UN General Assembly, but how was the mandate delivered on the ground in conflict affected areas? What tangible results were delivered as a result of the 2012 Olympic truce and what steps are being taken by whom to ensure that they are built upon in Sochi 2014 and Rio 2016?

It is of course for the Committee to determine who might be invited to submit evidence but amongst the key actors to be considered would be: Rt Hon William Hague MP, Rt Hon Philip Hammond MP, Rt Hon Teresa May MP, Rt Hon Justine Greening MP, Lord Coe, Lord Moynihan, Baroness Grey-Thomson, Dame Tessa Jowell MP, Richard Ottaway MP, Mayor Boris Johnson, Dr Jacques Rogge (IOC), Sir Philip Craven MP (IPC), Dr Wilfried Lemke (UN Special Advisor of Peace and Development through Sport), H E Roberto Jaguaribe, Ambassador of Brazil to the United Kingdom; HE Alexander Yakovenko, Ambassador of the Russian Federation to the United Kingdom, Justin Forsyth (Save the Children)

The UN Secretary General Ban Ki-moon has recognised that the Olympic truce 2012 took a major step forward and he has invited ideas as to how this progress could be built upon; I would envisage a report and recommendations feeding into that process with the UN and International Olympic Committee.

15 OCTOBER 2012

Letter to the Chairman from Baroness Billingham

Please find enclosed my suggestion for the setting up of a Select Committee to review the legacy from the 2012 Olympic Games.

I believe this is a crucial issue and one which engages the general public. They demand we keep the government to fulfil its promises and create a generation of athletics, sportsmen and women not forgetting to extend the legacy promised at the time of the bid.

18 NOVEMBER 2012

Letter to the Chairman from Baroness Billingham

I am writing following our brief conversation last week on my proposal to set up a Select Committee to review the legacy from the 2012 Olympic Games.

This is an issue of interest to the general public, not least because of the wonderful success of the games, but also the demand that we can create a new generation of young people with access to both sport and the arts. In other words, we must fulfil our promise made at the time of the original bid and keep faith with our promise.

I understand there is a similar proposal already on your table; I hope therefore this letter will add weight to that suggestion.

18 NOVEMBER 2012

Letter to the Chairman from Baroness Coussins

When you spoke to the meeting of Crossbenchers recently, you asked for ideas for ad hoc committees for the next session.
I should like to propose an ad hoc committee to consider how HMG supports and promotes the need for modern foreign language skills in the UK’s economy, education and international relations, and to make recommendations.

This work would be of great importance, given the increasing body of evidence from a variety of sources which now suggests that the UK’s economic competitiveness being significantly undermined by a lack of language skills in the workforce, driving recruitment practices and research contracts overseas. It is also very much a cross-departmental issue, involving the DfE, BIS, the Treasury, the F&CO, the MOJ, the Home Office, Health and DFID—and probably others too. This makes it particularly difficult to address the issues in conventional ways and an ad hoc committee would be an excellent mechanism to bring the issues together in a coherent way, identifying common concerns and solutions.

I declare an interest as Chair of the All Party Parliamentary Group on Modern Languages, but this role has shown me that there is a great deal of interest on all sides of the House for this topic, as well as great deal of scope for practical, realistic and achievable recommendations on to government.

If it would be helpful to meet to discuss or clarify this proposal, I should of course be happy to do so.

10 DECEMBER 2012

COUSSINS

Letter to the Chairman from Baroness Cox

I am writing to request consideration of the establishment of an ‘Ad Hoc’ Committee to address two interrelated issues which are currently causes of deep concern for many members of this House and of the general public.

I refer to problems experienced by many women in this country caused by religiously sanctioned gender discrimination associated with the rulings of quasi-legal systems which threaten to undermine the fundamental principle of ‘One Law For All’.

There are many well-documented cases of the suffering of women caused by discriminatory policies such as unequal access to divorce; polygamy; discrimination with regard to child custody and inheritance; sanctioning of domestic violence and treating a woman’s testimony as worth only half that of a man’s.

There is also deep concern over certain quasi-legal bodies which are perceived as having the authority of the official legal system. Although these are clearly not operating on an official ‘de jure’ basis they are often seen as having genuine legal authority, thereby violating, de facto, the principle of ‘One Law For All’.

Another problem relates to decisions of religious tribunals which are enforceable under UK law if they operate under the provisions of the Arbitration Act. Decisions which are discriminatory (for example men receiving double the inheritance awarded to women or child custody being automatically awarded to the husband) could apply to matters which are currently under the jurisdiction of the family courts. We also understand that some tribunals are straying into judging criminal matters, which raises the prospect of “offenders” escaping a criminal record. Moreover, while the Arbitration Act in its present form is suitable for freely agreed arbitrations it needs reconsideration in its application to tribunals whose jurisdiction has not been freely accepted and this is something best explored in such a Committee.

There is abundant evidence demonstrating the validity of these concerns which needs serious analysis in a context which would address sensitive and potentially controversial issues in a responsible, authoritative way and consider appropriate responses. A booklet documenting some of this evidence (in support of the Arbitration and Mediation Services (Equality) Bill) is available, highlighting the urgent need for such an Enquiry in order to promote remedies to alleviate the unacceptable suffering of many women in this country today. I attach a short paper with a summary of some of the main causes of concern; I would naturally be willing to make further information available. Perhaps I should mention that Lord Mackay of Clashfern, Lord Carlile of Berriew and Lord Dholakia are all in agreement with this letter.

Application for Consideration of an Ad Hoc Committee

Public Concern

There is widespread concern about two interrelated issues the development of quasi-legal systems which violate the fundamental principle of ‘One Law For All’; and religiously sanctionedgender discrimination which is causing severe suffering for many women in this country.

While the fundamental right of freedom of belief is to be cherished, there are well-reported cases of women who suffer from discrimination inherent in religiously sanctioned rulings who accept these rulings on the basis of lack of adequate information about their legal and civil rights available in this country or because of intimidation by families and/or communities.

There are many well-documented cases of suffering, often intense and sustained, of women caused by discriminatory policies associated with unequal access to divorce; polygamy; discrimination with regard to child custody and inheritance; sanctioning of domestic violence and the practice which regards a woman’s testimony as worth half that of a man’s.

Examples of women who suffer on account of gender discrimination include those affected by rulings applied in sharia ‘courts’ or ‘councils’ or in the Beth Din of the orthodox Jewish community.

The existence of quasi-legal bodies in ways which may be perceived as having the authority of the official legal system is cause for concern: although they are clearly not operating in an official ‘de jure’ capacity, they are often perceived as having genuine legal authority, thereby violating, de facto, the principle of ‘One Law For All’.

Another problem relates to decisions of religious tribunals which are enforceable under UK law if they operate under the provisions of the Arbitration Act. Such decisions which are discriminatory (for example men receiving double the inheritance women or child custody being determined on arbitrary ages rather than the best interests of the child) could apply to matters which are currently under the jurisdiction of the family courts. We also understand that some tribunals are straying into judging criminal matters, which raises the prospect of “offenders” escaping a criminal record. Also, while the Arbitration Act in its present form is suitable for freely agreed arbitrations, it needs reconsideration in its application to tribunals whose jurisdiction has not been freely accepted and this is something best explored in such a Committee.

Parliamentary Concern

Over 70 Peers from across the House have given their support to the request for a Committee to consider the issues identified above. There is abundant evidence which needs to be made available for serious analysis in a context which would address sensitive and potentially controversial issues in a responsible, authoritative way so that steps can be taken to alleviate the unacceptable suffering of many women in this country today.

12 Peers gave overwhelming support to The Arbitration and Mediation Services (Equality) Bill in the Second Reading Debate; many others, who were unable to speak on that day, have promised strong support for the Bill in its attempt to address the issues which would be addressed by a Committee. Lord Mackay of Clashfern, Lord Dholakia and Lord Carlile of Berriew, inter alia, are in support of this application.

Sources of Evidence would include:

(a) Organisations which support women suffering from such discrimination, such as Karma Nirvana and the Iranian and Kurdish Women’s Rights Organisation.

(b) Organisations concerned with the need to protect the principle of ‘One Law for All’, including ‘One Law For All’ and British Muslims For a Secular Democracy.

(c) Individual women who have the courage to give their personal testimonies of suffering from this gender discrimination.

(d) Legal experts who have expressed concern over and interest in these issues, including those directly involved with women’s rights, family law and associated religious issues.

(e) Theological and academic scholars, including those from relevant faith traditions.

(f) Professional personnel involved with domestic violence, child custody and related matters.

(g) Visits to a representative sample of relevant religious quasi-judicial bodies.

(h) A booklet of evidence prepared in support of the Arbitration and Mediation Services (Equality) Bill.

22 NOVEMBER 2012 COX

Letter to the Chairman from Baroness Doocey OBE

Further to our brief discussion earlier this week, I am writing to suggest we set up an Olympic Legacy Select Committee to try to ensure a lasting legacy from the 2012
Olympic and Paralympic Games.

You may be aware that I chaired both the London Assembly and Metropolitan Police Authority’s Olympics Committees which monitored the delivery of the Games and also served as a member of the Home Office Olympic Security Board.

The work I did on these Committees over the past 5 years has left me in no doubt that it is essential that a Select Committee operating looking at the legacy be set up now when it can have some influence into the decisions being made. The Games cost £9 billion plus, so it is crucial that this money provides a lasting legacy rather than just six weeks of sport.

14 DECEMBER 2012 DOOCEY

Letter to the Chairman from Lord Ezra MBE

I am writing to you in response to your request in the Red Benches newsletter No 34 for proposals for select committees for the next Session.
I wish to propose an ad hoc committee on Overseas Trade. This would be a follow-up to the Overseas Trade Committee which reported on 30 July 1985 and met under the chairmanship of Lord Aldington, on which I served, having recommended that such a committee be set up in an earlier debate.

My reason for proposing this is the recent publication of details of the trade gap of £28bn for the quarter ended October 2012, which was said to be the worst ever recorded. The Times had a leading article on this on 7 December.

The Overseas Trade Committee of 1985 drew attention to the adverse trade balance in manufactured goods which had then occurred and warned of serious consequences if major remedial action was not taken.

The government of the day criticised the report as being too alarmist. The fears of the Committee turned out to be justified and the trade gap has progressively widened since then.

I consider that it would be timely for a new Overseas Trade Committee to take up the thread from where the old committee left off, analyse the present and prospective situation and make recommendations.

I am sending a copy of this letter to the Viscount Falkland, Lord Selsdon and Lord Stoddart of Swindon who also served on the original committee.

13 DECEMBER 2012

Letter to the Chairman from Rt Hon the Lord Forsyth of Drumlean

I understand you are looking for suggestions of select committees. I really do think we should have an International Committee of the House to reflect the global interests of members. We are very well served on Europe but less so on the rest of the world probably in relation to trade and other matters.

19 DECEMBER 2012

Letter to the Chairman from Lord Hannay of Chiswick GCMG CH

I understand that it would be in order for me to write to you as Chair of the Liaison Committee to make a proposal for a new Committee to be established in the next session of this Parliament.

The proposal I would like to make is that a Committee, which could either be called “Foreign Affairs” or “International Affairs”, should be established. I feel that there are many international issues which would merit study by a Committee before being brought to the floor of the House for debate. There would seem to me to be a plethora of talent in our House to provide members of such a Committee—former Foreign and Defence Secretaries, former civil servants and diplomats, former military men, and many who have worked in the NGO sector on international questions. And the lack of any such Committee does seem to me a glaring lacuna in our Committee structure.

I understand that there is a strong, and legitimate, desire to avoid duplicating the work of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Commons. It should not be too difficult to establish either a set of guidelines or even a binding limitation which would avoid that trap.

I am naturally aware that Lord Howell of Guildford has been canvassing a proposal of this kind. I totally support his proposal; but have been told that it is not sufficient for him to simply quote my name as a supporter. It is in that spirit that I am submitting the present proposal which I hope will receive sympathetic attention.

12 DECEMBER 2012

HANNAY OF CHISWICK

Letter to the Chairman from Rt Rev the Lord Harries of Pentregarth

I write to suggest that there might be an ad hoc committee to examine the relationship of Church and State. I believe there would be good support for this in the House, and it is backed by all those I have spoken to, who include Lord Mackay, Lord Plant, Lord Griffiths of Burry Port (who is a Methodist Minister), Rabbi Baroness Julia Neuberger and Lord Ahmed of Rotherham.

There are a number of issues floating around at the moment which concern this relationship and it would be good to undertake the kind of sober and rational examination that a House of Lords Committee does so well. You might think it appropriate for such a committee to be chaired by a senior retired judge, for example.

19 DECEMBER 2012

HARRIES OF PENTREGARTH

Letter to the Chairman from Rt Rev the Lord Harries of Pentregarth

I said I would write further to expand a little on why I think this is the right time to have a committee on the relation of church and state.

(1) Those who argue for the disestablishment on the grounds that the country is becoming increasingly secular in its outlook have been very active in recent years, and are likely to become more so.

(2) Other faith communities, especially Muslims and Jewish leaders, have said that they very much appreciate the value of establishment, as it provides “an umbrella”, in the words of Lord Sacks, under which other faith communities can feel confident in making their contributions to the formation of public policy. It would be good to have this view recognised and taken into account at a time when other faith communities play such a significant role in our society.

(3) Legislative changes such as that making it possible for an heir to the throne to marry a Roman Catholic raise questions about their implication for the establishment of the Church of England.

(4) Looking ahead to the next coronation service, our society will be a very different one from the time when the present Queen was crowned. It would be a good to have a House of Lords view about how this might be reflected in the service.

(5) The appointment of a new Archbishop of Canterbury, who has an important role in the life of the nation, sees the beginning of a new phase in the life of the Church of England and this presents an opportune moment to reflect seriously on the relationship of the church and state.

(6) The last commission, which was set up by the Church of England, to study this relationship was that under Professor Sir Owen Chadwick which reported in 1970. Much has changed in the intervening years.

HARRIES OF PENTREGARTH
APPENDIX: Liaison Committee - 1st Report 2012-13

Letter to the Chairman from Lord Hennessy of Nympsfield

May I offer a suggestion for a short-life ad hoc Select Committee on Growth and Competitiveness following the publication of Michael Heseltine’s NO STONE UNTURNED IN PURSUIT OF GROWTH last month?

I have discussed the idea with Michael, Andrew Adonis, Ken Baker and Digby Jones. All four have expressed enthusiasm. It strikes me as the kind of timely subject of interest to all parties and the cross benches that might merit the creation of a Joint Committee drawn from both Houses.

I attach a snatch of Lords Hansard for 9 October 2012 in which I floated the idea plus a follow-up column in The Tablet (not printed).

22 NOVEMBER 2012

HENNESSY OF NYMPSFIELD

Letter to the Chairman from Rt Hon the Lord Howell of Guildford

I understand that you are asking Peers to put forward some suggestions for new committees of the House, for consideration by the Liaison Committee in the New Year.

I would like to join many other Peers in arguing strongly for a new International Affairs Committee in the House of Lords.

I understand very well the concern about duplication with the House of Commons Foreign Affairs Committee and, indeed, can speak with some experience on this matter, having myself been chairman of the FAC for a period of almost ten years.

Duplication can and must be avoided but I have reason to believe that investigations and reports by their Lordships which followed up on FAC Reports, and brought to bear the depth of experience in the Lords in ensuring that recommendations in FAC reports were followed through and developed, would find favour in the Commons. Indeed this would be their Lordships acting on their proper advisory and supportive role to the work of the Commons.

(I attach at the end of this letter a preliminary list of the areas where FAC reports in recent years would clearly benefit from Lords’ attention and reinforcement, greatly to the public benefit).

Another concern is expense, which should clearly be at the forefront. I believe that the Lords input to the examination of international affairs, and the fast-changing world scene, can be delivered to great effect and at very modest additional cost. I need hardly add that with many newcomers to the House in recent years the pool of individuals with both experience and available time to serve on such a committee is probably now very large.

A further relevant observation is that while we already have a distinguished committee that can look at the world through EU eyes the shift of both power and economic significance to the rising nations of Asia, Africa and Latin America is now accelerating, giving rise to entirely new concerns about the positioning of the UK specifically in this new milieu.

In all of this it is increasingly important that Parliament as a whole should have a voice. The combination of Commons work and the Lords’ unique and, I believe unrivalled capacity for in-depth analysis is needed to deliver this.

Finally, having just completed two and a half years as a Minister inside the Foreign and Commonwealth Office—a department which has made great efforts to develop a continuing and informed dialogue with Parliament on world affairs I can affirm my impression that an International Affairs Committee drawn from the highly experienced members of this House would be seen as a positive development.

As to issues for inquiry, the ones crying out for follow-up from the FAC are:

1. those concerned with the network of relations with the other 53 Commonwealth countries, where the FAC has made a number of recommendations all of which require pursuing and enhancing

2. Follow-up work on the FAC report on Turkey and the rise of the new Middle East powers

3. Growing importance of the African voice in all international issues, alongside the prospect of transformed economic outlooks in several key African states

4. Chinese presence and activity outside China, especially round the Indian Ocean and in Africa

5. The rise and significance of new 21st century regional organisations both in Pacific Asia and in Central (Caspian) Asia, and British interests in these regions

6. Prospects for UK commercial, political and security cooperation with new allies, such as Korea, China, Japan, Mexico, Turkey, Brazil.

7. Changing Maghreb issues and British interests

8. Changing relations with Australia and Canada (overlaps with (1) above)

9. Seabed issues and changing seabed activity and regimes

10. The impact of digital fabrication on international relations

11. Modernisation of global energy governance and the UK’s role and interests in this field.

Many more areas could be added, given the large number of valuable reports which the FAC have produced over past years which could benefit from re-visiting and follow up.

I hope therefore that the Committee will be able to look favourably at this proposal, given its very extensive support in all parts of the House, its clear need and the new international circumstances which increasingly demand precisely the sort of attention that a committee of this House is well-placed to provide.

18 DECEMBER 2012
HOWELL OF GUILDFORD

Letter to the Clerk from Lord Kerr of Kinlochard GCMG

I have seen Lord Sewel’s note about proposals for Committee Activity in 2013/14, and would like to take this opportunity to say, not for the first time, that the absence of a Foreign Affairs Committee in this House continues to baffle and disappoint me. The External Affairs Sub-Committee of the EU Select Committee continues to stretch its mandate manfully and constructively; but it is intrinsically unsatisfactory that this House should address world issues through the prism of embryonic EU relationships and structures. The result is that most of the key future foreign policy issues for this country are not addressed by any Committee in this House, although this long-term nature—and our expertise—means that they might be more appropriately be tackled here than in the Commons.

10 DECEMBER 2012
KERR OF KINLOCHARD
Letter from Lord Bragg, Baroness Hollins, Lord Layard, Baroness Meacher, Lord Patel of Bradford, Lord Stevenson of Coddenham, and Lord Tunnicliffe

The House has recently passed a historic amendment establishing parity of esteem for mental health with physical health as a principle for the NHS. How to achieve this is now one of the most pressing issues for the NHS. We therefore propose an ad-hoc select committee on ‘The implementation of parity of esteem for mental health with physical health in the NHS’.

There is great expertise on these issues in the House and no shortage of potential advisors.

19 DECEMBER 2012

BRAGG, HOLLINS, LAYARD, MEACHER, PATEL, STEVENSON, TUNNICLIFFE

Letter to the Chairman from the Earl of Lindsay, Lord McKenzie of Luton and Lord Curry of Kirkharle

We would like to make the following proposal for an Ad Hoc Select Committee to make a short inquiry into how risk can be better regulated based on robust scientific evidence.

In his report Reclaiming health and safety for all: an independent review of health and safety legislation, Professor Ragnar Löfstedt said that “I believe there needs to be a shared understanding of risk and how it should be regulated and that a mechanism is needed to bring together Parliament, policy makers, academics, and the public to achieve this. This should be broader than just health and safety and encompass other areas such as health and environmental issues as well”.

He recommended that “the House of Lords be invited to set up a Select Committee on risk or establish a sub-committee of the Science and Technology Committee to examine this issue and consider how to engage society in a discussion about risk”. In parallel, he recommended that “the Government asks the Chief Scientific Adviser to convene an expert group aimed at addressing this challenge. The outcomes of such work need to be disseminated widely across Parliament, policy makers, academics and the public”.

This topic has been considered by various bodies but continues to be an area where more needs to be done. We note that, in his October 2012 Bernal lecture on science, risk and regulation, the Minister of State for Universities and Science, the Rt Hon David Willetts MP said that “We really can remain at the cutting edge of the world’s science and technology. But I have also identified a real threat to it—an approach to regulation so far removed from any rational appraisal of risk that it threatens to exclude Europe from many of the key technologies of the twenty first century”.

Unfortunately, a number of case studies illustrate what happens when decisions are made based on an assessment of the hazard rather than the risk. An example is the banning by the EU of the use of Bisphenol A (BPA) in babies’ bottles in 2010 even though the view of independent experts (who advise the European Food Safety Authority) is that exposure to BPA does not represent a risk to consumers (including infants and pregnant women).

We believe that regulation, regardless of its origin, should be risk-based and evidence-based. It is important not only for economic growth but also so that everyone can benefit from technological advances. To achieve this both we in Parliament and policy makers need to do more to engage with society in a debate about the risks and benefits of new technologies and the advantages (and limitations) of a risk-based and science-based approach.
To address the second of Professor Lofstedt’s recommendations, the Government Chief Scientific Adviser convened a workshop in November of policy makers, businesses and academics. A report on the outcome of this event is expected in January 2013. It is possible that the report will highlight further issues that could also be examined further by an Ad Hoc Select Committee inquiry.

12 DECEMBER 2012        LINDSAY, MCKENZIE OF LUTON,
                          CURRY OF KIRKCHARLE

Letter to the Chairman from Rt Hon the Lord Mawhinney
Further to our conversation, I would like to suggest, for your consideration, a new committee to “oversee” the implementation of policy and legislation, with similar activities in the devolved administrations, with a view to encouraging a more coherent application of Parliaments’ wishes nationwide.

8 JANUARY 2013           MAWHINNEY

Letter to the Chairman from Lord Moynihan
Further to the decision of the Liaison Committee to recommend the appointment of the two new cross cutting ad hoc committees during the current session I would be grateful if consideration could be given at the December meeting of the Liaison Committee to the establishment of an ad hoc committee on ‘London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Legacy’.

Following the success of the of the Games the House held a well attended debate on November 8—unusually extended due to speaker demand. It was comprehensive in its coverage of a wide range of legacy issues. The genesis of many of the speeches was the undertaking made both by the current and previous Governments for a regeneration and a sporting legacy from the Games. Currently Parliament has no forum to examine the cross-departmental issues, policy implications and opportunities which flow from this objective and the question as to how best such legacies can be realised.

Should this initiative find favour it might be helpful if the remit of the Committee worked to the two principal areas of the Regeneration Legacy and the Sports Legacy. There will be many other issues Members will no doubt want to cover the need to transform the landscape for those with disabilities, the role of women in sport, the Olympic Arts and Cultural Festivals, the Olympic Truce, Inter-faith Dialogue through sport and the many other issues also raised during the time limited debate.

If you would like to talk through these ideas please do not hesitate to let me know, particularly since I have now handed the baton of the Chairmanship of the British Olympic Association to Lord Coe and I would be happy to devote time and resource to this idea. As you may know I have always held the belief that as important as hosting a successful Olympic and Paralympic Games is the need to leave a Legacy from the Games commensurate with the investment made to ensure their success in 2012. The House has always provided all party support, expertise and input to assist with the delivery of a successful Games. I have no doubt that in a constructive approach an ad hoc Select Committee would add significant value to the delivery of an impressive Legacy from London 2012.

9 NOVEMBER 2012           MOYNIHAN
Letter to the Chairman from Baroness Nicholson of Winterbourne

As I am sure you noticed in Hansard, I had the opportunity to lead a debate on the post-2015 Millennium Development Goals last Thursday. The debate was particularly well attended with a lengthy and strong list of speakers who each made valuable contributions.

Since then, I have been approached by many colleagues who either spoke in the debate or read it in Hansard asking me about what are the next steps to take this forward. During the debate two mechanisms were suggested by colleagues. The first was to request the government to produce a Green or White Paper on the subject, which obviously is not something that I would raise with you. The second, however, was the establishment of an ad hoc committee in the Lords for the purpose of reviewing the post-2015 development goals. I am thus responding to your kind suggestion to all Peers that we write to you about possible ad hoc committees.

I am aware that the Commons’ International Development Select Committee is currently pursuing an inquiry into the post-2015 development goals and I expect that this would mean that the establishment of an ad hoc committee would be ruled against on the grounds that we would be duplicating the effort of the Commons. Although, I do not agree that would be the case I wish to put forward a second proposal just in case. Many of those who have approached since the debate have highlighted the comment I made about the need to redefine what we mean by ‘development’. I and other colleagues stressed a wide range of topics that included conflict, human rights, disability, mental health, manufacturing, migration, trade, education, security, exports, and the political economy to just mention some. This underlines that the subject is one that does not fit a particular government department, agency or sponsored organisation but includes DFID, the FCO, UKTI, Export Finance, CDC, UKBA, the Home Office, Department of Health, MoD, the BBC World Service, the British Council and so on. It thus requires a whole-of-government, or if you prefer a joined-up government, perspective, which by the very departmental nature of Commons Select Committees they cannot provide but which the Lords would with its depth of expertise and experience on these issues would be ideally suited to deliver. It would also be doubly timely considering the recent National Audit Office and Independent Commission for Aid Impact reports on the Conflict Pool, which is jointly managed by MoD, DFID and the FCO, which have both heavily criticised the lack of coordination between departments in providing a coherent and effective government strategy and implementation on the ground.

I would, of course, be more than happy to come and see you to discuss this further and look forward to hearing from you.

NICHOLSON OF WINTERBOURNE

Letter to the Chairman from Baroness O’Cathain OBE

I am writing to suggest that the Liaison Committee considers recommending the appointment of an ad-hoc Select Committee on the effective exercise of British influence abroad, to consider whether Government departments with an overseas presence (the Foreign & Commonwealth Office, the Department for International Development, the Ministry of Defence and the Department for Business, innovation and Skills) are sufficiently joined-up in pursuing UK interests abroad.

I am aware that there have been several proposals for a Foreign Affairs or International Relations Committee considered and rejected by the Liaison Committee in previous sessions, but I hope that this more limited proposal for a Committee reporting within the session might find favour, especially as its cross-departmental remit would allow the Committee to avoid duplicating the work of either the Foreign Affairs Committee in the House of Commons, or the foreign affairs Sub-Committee of the European Union Committee in the Lords.

O’CATHAIN

Letter to the Chairman from Lord Ramsbotham GCB CBE
I am responding to your call for select committee proposals, fully realising that what I am proposing is not for a purely House of Lords Committee, but an extension of the number of Joint Committees, and that I may not be submitting correctly.

It is quite clear that the Joint Select Committee on Human Rights has fulfilled its expectations, not least because its reports and recommendations affect both Houses. Looking at the list of House of Lords Committees, Justice and the Criminal Justice System are not represented. But, now that there is a Ministry of Justice as well as a Home Office, there are House of Commons Justice and Home Affairs Select Committees.

Based on experience of imperfectly scrutinised legislation, having read a number of the reports produced by the two Committees and bearing in mind the particular expertise that rests in the House of Lords, I wonder whether there is not a good case for either or both these Committees to be made joint? I know that Lords membership would strengthen each, and could result in wider examination and better scrutiny of issues. I have had recent experience of where, for example, I might have been able to help the Home Affairs Select Committee. Chairing an inquiry into Enforced Removals of failed asylum seekers, I have found that a recent report by the HASC on the governance of such removals had taken remarkably little evidence and so failed to identify a number of faults that need urgent rectification.

Anyway, I put it forward for your consideration, as I did in a recent debate.

9 DECEMBER 2012
RAMSBOTHAM

Letter to the Chairman from the Earl of Sandwich
I am writing to support a proposal for a new International Affairs Committee of this House. This proposal was put forward on two previous occasions by Lord Howell, Lord Blaker, myself and others and I believe the case is stronger now than it was in 2004 because of the numbers of foreign affairs and development specialists in the House I am not, however, with those who would like to add defence and security.

The stumbling block in the Liaison Committee has always been duplication with the Commons and we agree that the Foreign Affairs and International Development Committees must have precedence, not least in the choice of subjects. The Lords being a revising chamber, it also makes sense that a Lords committee on international affairs should keep a close watch on the subjects followed by the FAC and IDC and should both complement and follow up what those committees are doing. Follow-up reports would provide continuity and strengthen the authority of Parliament as a whole.

A new committee must also, of course, be aware of the EU Select Committee and in particular the work of Sub-Committee C. The EU Committees have recently begun to produce shorter updates and follow-up reports and are arguably better than the FAC at staying with particular issues.

But there is a wealth of knowledge and experience here that is not being used sufficiently, and there are many, perhaps less topical or controversial, issues that the Commons select committees have not taken up. The EU Committees cannot cover non-EU countries adequately (examples are the UK and Nepal, problems of smaller/island states, African diplomacy and issues in many Commonwealth countries).

SANDWICH

Letter to the Chairman from Rt Hon the Lord Shutt of Greetland OBE

I would like to propose an ad hoc committee on Inquiries for consideration by the Liaison Committee for the next session.

The Inquiries Act 2005 provides the statutory framework which may be used by ministers wishing to establish an enquiry with full powers to call for witnesses and evidence. Since the Act was passed a number of inquiries have been set up under its remit, such as investigating the deaths of Bernard Lodge (a prisoner who committed suicide in HMP Manchester), Baha Mousa (an Iraqi civilian who died in British military custody), Azelle Rodney (who died following an operation by the Metropolitan Police), Billy Wright (who died in the Maze Prison in Northern Ireland), and other events of public concern such as the recent Leveson Inquiry into the phone-hacking scandal and the failings in patient care at Mid-Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust.

We have also seen reviews of events being carried out that have not formally been public inquiries, such as the review by Sir Desmond de Silva QC into the death of Patrick Finucane, and the Hillsborough Independent Panel to oversee the release of documents related to the 1989 Hillsborough football disaster.

Whilst the events that all of these inquiries and reviews have investigated have necessarily been a cause of public concern, on some occasions the very establishment of an investigation has itself been controversial the family of Patrick Finucane, for example, are still pressing for a full public inquiry into his death.

There was concern when the bill (as it then was) was being scrutinised by Parliament that, given Ministers’ various powers under the Act, there is the potential for the independence of inquiries to be compromised, particularly in relation to restricting public access and the absence of any requirement for victims to be involved or consulted on the process of setting up an enquiry or formulating the terms of reference. The JCHR has expressed concerns about whether a 2005 Act inquiry can comply with Article 2 of the European Convention on Human Rights, particularly in respect of inquiries in Northern Ireland.

Given the number of reviews and inquiries which have recently reported, I believe that a Lords ad hoc committee on Inquiries would be timely. Such a committee could review whether the current system of statutory and non-statutory inquiries and reviews operate in a way which are effective, cost-efficient and command full public confidence.

SHUTT OF GREETLAND
Letter to the Chairman from Baroness Tyler of Enfield

Conscious that I may have missed your formal deadline (for which many apologies) and also that I have already attached my name to a proposal co-ordinated by Baroness Andrews regarding the voluntary sector, I wondered if I could in addition submit a proposal for ad hoc Select Committee inquiry relating to Social Mobility.

In short it is that the one of the new Committees should look into why social mobility has remained stubbornly low in the UK compared to other countries and is currently regressing, and what in public policy terms should be done about it. The essential task would be twofold: identify the key barriers are that are preventing social mobility from increasing; and propose policy responses that would ensure that people’s life chances were determined by their own efforts and achievement rather than circumstances of their birth.

Such an inquiry would be very cross cutting, drawing together the work of many different external agencies and government departments and range across all the different life stages of an individual i.e. early years, school, work and beyond. As well as highlighting the importance of early years services, schools, higher education, vocational education and training, employment practices and career progression, it also touches on key issues of family support and external contacts and social networks. These issues are not currently being picked up in a joined up way by the Departmental based Select Committees in the Commons. The Committee would be able to take a long term perspective and draw on international evidence from other countries that enjoy higher rates of social mobility than the UK.

Although a lot has been written on the subject by academics and others, it has so far failed to translate through into effective action in the UK context. An analytical inquiry by a cross party Committee would be able to identify both the root causes of the problem as well as pinpoint effective approaches in the UK that could be scaled up or international experience that was capable of being replicated in this country.

The nub of my proposal is set out above. Should you wish to see the Context for this suggestion, more detail is set out below.

Appendix: Social mobility in the UK is stubbornly low compared with other OECD countries and has started to move backwards in recent years. All too often where a person ends up in life in terms of income and social class is still pre-determined by the circumstances of their birth. The roots of the problem start a long time before university and the world of work. Children on free school meals are only half as likely as to get good GCSEs as the average, ruling them out of the race for a university place long before A levels. More children from some private schools go to Oxbridge than the entire cohort of children on free school meals. This lead to a big and inequitable skewing of opportunities to those from better off homes.

Last May, the All-Party Parliamentary Group on social mobility put forward what it called the ‘seven key truths about social mobility’ about the unequal opportunities that start in the earliest years of life, and persist and often widen later on.

These are:

(a) The point of greatest leverage for social mobility is what happens between ages 0 and 3, primarily in the home

(b) You can also break the cycle through education…
(c) …the most important controllable factor being the quality of your teaching
(d) But it’s also about what happens after the school bell rings, particularly extra-curricular activities and outside opportunities
(e) Going to University is the top determinant of later opportunities—so what happens at school, particularly A level 18 attainment, is key
(f) But later pathways to mobility such as apprenticeships and other forms of workplace education and training are possible, given the will and proper support including effective careers advice
(g) Personal resilience, character and emotional wellbeing are crucial to success and have been the missing link in the chain, overlooked in debates about social mobility. Character and resilience are a shorthand for the ability to make the most of the opportunities that present themselves, to stick at things to complete the task in hand and the tenacity to bounce back from the knocks that life inevitably brings.

The Group also found the social mobility is really three subjects not one, namely.

- Breaking out from poverty of aspiration or a troubled background;
- Moving up to ensure that all can achieve their full potential;
- Allowing “stars to shine” i.e. nurturing outstanding talent.

Each of these areas requires different policy responses relating to the different life stages of early years, school years and later life in the workplace.

I hope the above is helpful and of interest.

22 JANUARY 2012

TYLER OF ENFIELD

Letter to the Chairman from Rt Hon the Lord Warner

If it is not too late can I suggest a topic for the next round of these Select Committees. This would be “to review the long term financial and clinical sustainability of the current health and social care systems in their current forms.” I recognise that this has some connection with Geoff Filkin’s current committee’s work to whom I gave evidence recently. However there are a wider set of issues for consideration, particularly given the iconic status of the NHS. There is growing informed concern that a combination of living longer, worsening morbidity, rising public expectations and the limits of taxability are likely to make our current arrangements unsustainable. But the elected political class—across the parties are reluctant to discuss the issue. This would in my view be a good topic for some dispassionate analysis by their Lordships House.

WARNER

Letter to the Chairman from Baroness Young of Hornsey OBE

Please find below a brief proposal for the establishment of a Select Committee. I hope this is enough information to be going on with but if you require any further information, please do not hesitate to let me know.

Select Committee on Discrimination and Intolerance Britain can point to a proud tradition of progress in the fight against practices and attitudes that adversely affect people with disabilities, women, black and ethnic minorities and other, disadvantaged groups as they attempt to go about their everyday life. Nonetheless, many people—including those both directly and indirectly affected, policy makers and politicians etc—will acknowledge that we still have a long way to go. Whether its religious intolerance, hate crimes against people with disabilities, racism on the football pitch, violent assaults against women or homophobic bullying, there is ample evidence to indicate that too many people in our society experience anxiety and are made to feel vulnerable by these actions.

Taking advantage of the wide range of knowledge and expertise in the Lords across all parties and groupings, the aim of this Select Committee would be to bring together social policymakers, those who’ve worked in the criminal justice system, politicians, psychiatrists and psychologists, economists, programme makers—indeed as wide a selection as possible of peers with knowledge of and experience in addressing the consequences and effects of homophobia, racism, and other forms of discrimination. The Select Committee would seek to examine the impact of legislation and policy, changes in society’s attitudes, differences across generations and the role of the media. If there is an opportunity to do so, we should also seek to examine examples from beyond the UK via video conferencing and inviting witnesses from overseas to submit evidence.

The breadth of subject is deliberately ambitious, although the remit could be scaled down if thought necessary.

Why this subject is important

(1) A quick search through House of Lords Select Committees suggests that this vital subject area is yet to be tackled in a way that fully exploits the range of expertise in the House;

(2) It is a subject which will connect with a very wide range of people outside the ‘Westminster Village’ and will enable witnesses and testimonies to be drawn from the general public, third sector organisations, private and public sectors, community groups, politicians with a range of views and from a variety of government departments, and so on;

(3) The Select Committee will provide an opportunity for sharing examples of projects and programmes that addressed this issue, showing what has worked and what hasn’t;

(4) The Select Committee’s report and the debate that follows should be of interest and use to politicians from both Houses and to the media;

(5) The subject is timely given the changes imminent at the Equalities and Human Rights Commission.

Starting with an open mind and with the input of a diverse range of contributors, it should be possible to come to a better understanding of how discrimination and intolerance are fostered and how the causes and manifestations of these destructive attitudes and actions might be addressed.

Enterprise and Regulatory Reform Bill

Division No. 3

Lord Whitty moved amendment 83A, as an amendment to amendment 83, to leave out lines 3 to 6 and insert:

“(1) Every agricultural wages committee for an area in England is abolished.

(2) Every agricultural dwelling-house advisory committee for an area in England is abolished and the services formerly provided by such a committee shall instead be provided by the Agricultural Wages Board for England and Wales.

(3) Without prejudice to section 3 of the Agricultural Wages Act 1948, any minimum rate of pay contained, or to be contained, in an Order of the Agricultural Wages Board may, where the Agricultural Wages Board considers it convenient to do so, be fixed by reference to any periods during the currency of employment.”

Papers

All statutory instruments laid before the House are accompanied by an Explanatory Memorandum presented by command of Her Majesty, unless otherwise indicated.

Command Papers

The following papers were presented to the House by command of Her Majesty on the dates shown:

1 Post-Legislative Scrutiny—Post-Legislative Assessment of the European Communities (Finance) Act 2008. (18 March) (8581)
3 Social Security—Draft Guardian’s Allowance Up-rating Regulations 2013. (15 March) (—)

Statutory Instruments (Standing Order 70)

The following negative instruments were laid before the House on 15 March:

1 (1) Copyright and Performances (Application to Other Countries) Order 2013 (536)
   (2) Energy Performance of Buildings (England and Wales) (Amendment) (Fees) Regulations 2013 (603) laid under the European Communities Act 1972.
4 Civil Aviation Act 2012 (Regulation of Operators of Dominant Airports) (Consequential Amendments) Regulations 2013, laid under the Civil Aviation Act 2012. (610)
5 Immigration and Nationality (Cost Recovery Fees) Regulations 2013, laid under the Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Act 2006. (617)
7 (1) Social Security (Contributions) (Re-rating) Consequential Amendment Regulations 2013 (619)
   (2) Social Security (Contributions) (Amendment and Application of Schedule 38 to the Finance Act 2012) Regulations 2013 (622)
8 Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Act 2012 (Consequential, Transitional and Saving Provisions) (Amendment) Regulations 2013, laid under the Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Act 2012. (621)

Negative Instruments

The following instruments were laid before the House:

   (2) Crime and Disorder Act 1998 (Youth Conditional Cautions: Code of Practice) Order 2013 (613) laid under the Crime and Disorder Act 1998.
2 Fines, Council Tax and Community Charges (Deductions from Universal Credit and Other Benefits) Regulations 2013, laid under the Criminal Justice Act 1991. (612)
Private Notice Questions

1. In 2010 the House agreed that the decision of the Lord Speaker on an application for a private notice question should be final. The Committee has now considered a proposal by Lord Trefgarne that a procedure be put in place for appealing against the Lord Speaker’s decision; as an alternative, he proposes that the House could revert to the pre-2006 procedure, where the initial decision was taken by the Leader of the House, subject to “the general sense of the House.”

2. The Committee believes that the current procedure works well, and that it would not be appropriate to introduce a right of appeal against the Lord Speaker’s decision. We therefore recommend no change to the current procedure for dealing with applications for private notice questions.

Tabling oral questions

3. In our 3rd Report of the current session we recommended the adoption, on a trial basis, of a procedure for allocating oral questions by means of a ballot. After a long debate on 9 January, the House agreed an amendment, tabled by Lord Grenfell, which instructed us “to consider and report again on the procedure for tabling oral questions before the Easter recess”. Following that debate, the Chairman wrote to all members of the Procedure Committee, requesting them to consult colleagues and in light of this consultation to bring forward proposals for further consideration.

---

4. The consultation suggests that there is general agreement across the House that more members should be enabled to participate in oral questions; but there is less agreement on how to achieve this. We have considered several options, including:

- Moving fully to a ballot, as recommended in our 3rd Report;
- A ballot either for one or two questions each day, or for one whole day each week;
- Increasing the number of questions each day from four to five, and the time allowed from 30 to 40 minutes;
- Introducing a cap on the number of questions each member may table in a given period.

5. The only one of these options for which there appears to be broad support is the introduction of a cap. We accordingly recommend that, with effect from the current year, members should be entitled to table no more than seven oral questions in each calendar year.

6. We have also taken this opportunity to discuss both the distribution and length of supplementary questions. We remind all members of the House of the existing rules, set out in paragraph 6.29 of the Companion to the Standing Orders:

   “Supplementary questions may be asked but they should be short and confined to not more than two points. If a supplementary question exceeds these guidelines, the minister need only answer the two main points. Supplementary questions should be confined to the subject of the original question, and ministers should not answer irrelevant questions. The essential purpose of supplementaries is to elicit information, and they should not incorporate statements of opinion. They should not be read.”

7. We further remind members that “giving way accords with the traditions and customary courtesy of the House.” It is essential, in a self-regulating House, that all members behave with courtesy and self-restraint, particularly during question time, so as to allow as many members as possible to participate.

Repeal of Standing Orders

8. In April 2012 the Government published a Green Paper on Parliamentary Privilege (Cm 8318). The Government also announced that the Green Paper would be referred to a Joint Committee for scrutiny. This Joint Committee was duly established, after some delay, in January.

9. Chapter 9 of the Green Paper covers a number of miscellaneous issues relating to parliamentary privilege, including three House of Lords Standing Orders, which the Green Paper suggests no longer have any continuing purpose. In June 2012 the Leader of the House agreed, in correspondence with the Clerk of the Parliaments, that it would not be appropriate for the Joint Committee to consider House of Lords Standing Orders, and the Clerk of the Parliaments accordingly brought a paper before the Procedure Committee.

1  If such a rule had been in force in 2012, it would have affected five members of the House, each of whom tabled nine or ten questions in the course of the year.
2  Companion to the Standing Orders, paragraph 4.31.
10. Standing Order 16, which dates from 1699, is as follows:

   16. The printing or publishing of anything relating to the proceedings of the House is subject to the privilege of the House.

11. Standing Order 16 dates from a period when both Houses actively sought to prevent publication of reports of their proceedings—Cobbett’s Parliamentary Debates did not appear until 1800. Its original purpose was to limit unauthorised and scurrilous reporting of proceedings of the House. Following the development of parliamentary reporting in the early nineteenth century the protection afforded to documents printed by order of the House, and to extracts or abstracts of such documents, was put on a statutory basis in the Parliamentary Papers Act 1840.

12. Standing Order 84, which dates from 1678, is as follows:

   84. In all cases wherein it is necessary to examine witnesses in perpetuum rei memoriam, it shall not be taken to be a breach of privilege of Parliament to file a Bill against a Peer in time of Parliament, and take out usual process for that purpose only.

13. Standing Order 84 relates to a now obsolete legal process whereby testimony could be taken before the main trial—for instance, if the witness were terminally ill. Such cases are now handled by different means, and the Standing Order serves no continuing purpose.

14. Standing Order 85, which dates from 1675, is as follows:

   85. No oath shall be imposed by any Bill or otherwise upon Peers with a penalty in case of refusal to lose their places and votes in Parliament or liberty of debate therein.

15. Standing Order 85 is a product of its time: the Test Act 1673 had provided that all persons filling any public office were obliged to take oaths of supremacy and allegiance and subscribe to a declaration against transubstantiation. The 1673 Act did not apply to Peers, and in the next few years the House resisted attempts by the Commons to extend its provisions to Peers, which would have excluded those who were Roman Catholics. This resistance (embodied in part in Standing Order 85) was unsuccessful: the second Test Act, of 1678, extended to Peers, so excluding the “five Popish Lords” who had been accused of treason by Titus Oates.

16. Thus Standing Order 85, while it represented an important and historic statement of principle, was over-ridden by statute as early as 1678, and has therefore had no effect for more than 300 years. Although the Test Acts were repealed in the 1820s, the Standing Order continues to contradict the Parliamentary Oaths Act 1866, under which it is unlawful for members of the House of Lords to sit or vote unless they have sworn the oath of allegiance.

17. We therefore conclude that Standing Orders 16, 84 and 85 are obsolete, and recommend that they be repealed.

Repetition of answers to House of Commons urgent questions

18. On 22 November 2012 the House agreed the following recommendation, contained in the Committee’s 2nd Report of 2012–13:

   “We recommend that the following procedure for repeating answers to House of Commons urgent questions be adopted, on a trial basis, until the end of the 2012–13 session:
• The answer given in the Commons will be repeated in full, as a statement;
• It will then be followed by ten minutes of question and answer (as for a private notice question);
• The existing rules on the conduct of PNQs, set out in paragraph 6.35 of the Companion, will apply;
• The first question will normally be asked by the Opposition front bench, unless the usual channels have agreed otherwise.”

19. We undertook to review the trial in spring 2013. This report sets out the results of that review.

20. Since January the new procedure has been used 11 times. We believe that it has generally worked well, with proceedings lasting between 13 and 16 minutes in total. In most cases answers have been repeated immediately after oral questions, when attendance is highest, without unduly delaying the main business of the day.

21. One problem has been encountered: on some occasions the initial question from the Opposition front bench, and the answer to that question, have been too long, with the result that the time allowed for backbench questions has been squeezed. On 13 February this led to some discussion in the House; Lord Martin of Springburn later wrote to our Chairman proposing that the time taken by the front benches should be discounted in calculating the ten minutes allowed for question and answer.

22. We acknowledge the concern expressed by Lord Martin, and agree that backbench contributions should not be curtailed. But the fault lies not with the procedure (which is the same as for a PNQ), but with the failure of those on both front benches to observe that procedure. The procedure is clearly set out in paragraph 6.37 of the Companion to the Standing Orders:

[PNQs] should not be made the occasion for immediate debate. Proceedings on PNQs follow the rules for oral questions. In particular, supplementary questions should be short and confined to not more than two points.

23. Thus the ten minutes following the repetition of the answer to a House of Commons urgent question should be devoted to questions and answers, in accordance with the clear rules set out in the Companion, not to statements or speech-making. These rules apply to those on the front benches as well as to back-benchers, and it therefore follows that we endorse the principle that the bulk of the time allocated to questions and answers under the new procedure should be available by backbenchers.

24. The Leaders of the main parties have undertaken to remind their colleagues on both front benches of these rules, and in light of these undertakings we recommend that the procedure for repeating answers to House of Commons urgent questions, adopted on a trial basis in November 2012, be made permanent. We will keep the procedure under review, and if the problems encountered on 13 February recur, we will look again at whether the time allocated to backbenchers should be formally protected.

Backbench Debates

Background

1. In 2011 the Leader’s Group on Working Practices, chaired by Lord Goodlad, recommended that the House establish a Backbench Debates Committee to select specific types of backbench debates.\(^1\) The Leader’s Group’s recommendations are set out in Appendix 1 to this report.

2. Although the Leader’s Group’s report has been fully debated, the House has not been invited to decide on these specific recommendations. The former Leader of the House, Lord Strathclyde, told the Procedure Committee in July 2012 that he would not seek to take forward any further recommendations arising out of the report of the Leader’s Group; at the same time the Chairman of Committees confirmed that it would be open to other members of the House to bring forward such proposals.\(^2\)

Time for backbench and general debates

3. On 12 February 2013 we considered a memorandum, brought forward by eight backbench members of the House,\(^3\) urging us to adopt, in slightly modified form, the recommendations of the Leader’s Group. The memorandum proposed in particular that the Backbench Debates Committee be tasked with selecting backbench debates, on the basis of published criteria, for the following segments of time:

- The time allocated to Thursday balloted debates, which is already reserved for backbench and Crossbench members.\(^4\)
- One hour each sitting week in the Chamber for a topical Question for Short Debate (QSD). This would be a new type of QSD, but the time would have been taken from that currently allocated to other business.
- Around 10 days per session for backbench debates in Grand Committee. These would be additional days.\(^5\)

4. Shortly before our meeting on 12 February the new Leader of the House, Lord Hill of Oareford, circulated a memorandum, in which he said that he was keen to improve the arrangements for the tabling of debates, while also making clear his reservations about the principle of a Backbench Debates Committee. He offered to bring forward proposals which would create more opportunities for members of the House to initiate and participate in debates.

\(^1\) Report of the Leader’s Group on Working Practices, Session 2010–12 (HL Paper 136). The Leader’s Group called the committee a “Backbench Business Committee”, but as its remit would be limited to scheduling debates it is referred to in this report as a “Backbench Debates Committee”.

\(^2\) Minutes of the Procedure Committee meeting held on 2 July 2012.

\(^3\) The signatories to this paper were Lord Butler of Brockwell, Lord Cormack, Baroness Hamwee, Lord Higgins, Lord Luce, Lord Rooker, Lord Tomlinson and Baroness Tyler of Enfield.

\(^4\) See The Companion to the Standing Orders, paragraph 6.58; typically around six Thursdays are set aside for balloted debates each session, from the start of the session until the end of December.

\(^5\) The paper noted that in 2012 the Grand Committee sat on 60 days, out of a total of 138 sitting days.
5. We accordingly agreed that both the Leader and the supporters of a Backbench Debates Committee should bring back further proposals in time for our next meeting, on 18 March.

6. At the March meeting the Leader of the House provided a further memorandum, identifying, in addition to those Thursdays already reserved for backbench debates, the following segments of time in which further backbench debates could be scheduled:
   - At least one Grand Committee day for every six sitting weeks in the session. In a typical session this would represent around six days in Grand Committee. These six days would be additional to those days in Grand Committee on which the Government Whips’ Office already schedules general debates.
   - An additional one-hour slot on Thursdays, which would be allocated, from the start of the session to the end of January, to a topical QSD. This QSD would normally be taken between the two time-limited debates.

7. The supporters of a Backbench Debates Committee, in their response to the Leader’s paper, welcomed his proposal to allocate these segments of time either in the House or in Grand Committee to backbench debates; they accordingly withdrew the proposal described in paragraph 3 above.

8. The Committee agrees that the times described in paragraph 6, whether disposed of by a Backbench Debates Committee or by other means, represent a welcome increase in the time available for backbenchers to initiate debates.

9. The remainder of this Report summarises in general terms the two proposals we have received for allocating the time available for backbench debates, that is to say the existing Thursdays set aside for balloted debates, and the new segments of time detailed in paragraph 6 above. We have not considered the procedural implications of either proposal in detail: the choice between them raises, first and foremost, an issue of principle, and the purpose of this report is to establish a means whereby the House can decide on this issue of principle. The implementation of whatever the House decides will require further consideration by the Procedure Committee.

Option 1: a Backbench Debates Committee

10. The Leader’s Group on Working Practices argued that a Backbench Debates Committee would:
   “Bring greater transparency and accountability to the tabling of backbench business;
   Establish a non-partisan forum for selecting subjects for debate which are varied and timely, addressing issues that are either topical or of long-term national importance;
   Identify subjects for debate that make best use of the knowledge and experience of Members of the House.”

1 Leader’s Group report, paragraph 176.
11. The supporters of the present proposal echoed these arguments, and drew particular attention to the part currently played by chance in the allocation of backbench debates. They noted that in early November 2012 there were 32 motions for balloted debate listed in House of Lords Business, most of them tabled early in the session, and that the chances of securing a balloted debate were therefore remote; they also noted that the order in which QSDs tabled on the first day of the session are listed in House of Lords Business is now determined by ballot. They accepted that chance was fair to all, but argued that it was undiscriminating and militated against the scheduling of timely debates upon important subjects.

12. They accordingly proposed the establishment of a Backbench Debates Committee, which, for a trial period of one session in the first instance, would schedule backbench debates on those Thursdays set aside for balloted debates, as well as the additional times described in paragraph 6 above. The Backbench Debates Committee would agree and publish criteria, including factors such as importance, topicality, and the level of interest and expertise around the House. On the basis of these criteria it would consider applications from backbench members for debates. The existing arrangements for tabling party or group debates on Thursdays would remain in place, as would the tabling of QSDs by the Government Whips Office, as and when opportunity arises.

13. The supporters of this proposal suggested that the Backbench Debates Committee should be 11-strong, with no Government majority, and that the parties and groups might elect members. However, the exact composition of the Backbench Debates Committee and its mode of appointment would be matters for further consideration.

Option 2: the Leader of the House’s proposal

14. The Leader of the House, and other members of the Committee who supported his proposals, argued that a Backbench Debates Committee would introduce a new hurdle for backbenchers, namely the need to persuade the Committee of the merit of their chosen topic in order to secure a debate. They noted that currently all backbench members have an equal chance of securing time to debate issues of concern to them, without having to secure the approval of their peers, and argued that this “direct, unmediated access to the Order Paper” should be preserved.¹

15. The supporters of the Leader’s proposal also expressed concern at the level of transparency and accountability of a Backbench Debates Committee, and suggested that members with the support of an external interest group might find it easier to make a persuasive case for their debate than those without such outside support.

16. As an alternative to a Backbench Debates Committee, the Leader of the House proposed a range of measures. These are summarised below, though all would be subject to further consideration by this Committee:

- He proposed that the new weekly topical QSD be selected by ballot (as is already the case for topical oral questions). In order to ensure cross-party interest in the subject of debate, he proposed that the ballot be open only to QSDs that had the support of a minimum number of backbench members, including at least one from each main party and the Cross Benches, in addition to the member tabling the QSD.
- The Leader proposed that it should no longer be possible automatically to “roll over” motions for balloted debate from one ballot to the next, and suggested also that there might be a requirement that a minimum number of members indicate their interest in the subject of the motion as a pre-condition for entering the ballot. He also recommended that in future members no longer be allowed to have a motion for balloted debate and a QSD on the same subject in House of Lords Business at any given time.
- The Leader proposed that the additional days in Grand Committee be set aside for QSDs, and suggested that the duration of these Grand Committee days be increased to five hours, allowing five QSDs to be debated.

Conclusion

17. This Report has briefly summarised the proposals advanced by the supporters of a Backbench Debates Committee and by the Leader of the House to provide more opportunities to take part in debates. There are strong views both for and against a Backbench Debates Committee, across the House and within the Procedure Committee; there may also be those who oppose both options that have been put before us. The decision on this issue is one for the House as a whole. We have therefore not made a recommendation to the House.

18. Instead, and in accordance with the procedure adopted by this Committee in November 2011, we make this report for information. We expect the report to be debated on a “take note” motion; once the debate has been concluded, a proposal that the House do establish a Backbench Debates Committee will be put to the House as a free-standing motion for resolution. It will be open to members either to table amendments to the proposal or to seek to reject it outright.

19. This will lead to one of three possible outcomes:

- The proposal to establish a Backbench Debates Committee is agreed to, in which case we will bring forward detailed recommendations for its implementation, with a view to establishing a Backbench Debates Committee early in the new session.
- The proposal is disagreed to, in which case we will bring forward detailed recommendations for implementing the suggestions put to us by the Leader of the House early in the new session.
- An amendment is agreed to, setting out a different way forward. In this case, we will act on the instructions given to us by the House and bring forward any detailed recommendations that are required in order to implement the House’s decision at the earliest opportunity.

1 See Procedure Committee, 8th Report, 2010–12 (HL Paper 213).
Appendix 2: Procedure Committee 6th Report 2012-13

20. We therefore put the following proposal before the House for decision:

“That the House establish, for the duration of the 2013-14 session of Parliament, a Backbench Debates Committee;

That the Committee be appointed to schedule debates, to be moved by backbench and Crossbench members, or by Lords Spiritual—

- During the time currently set aside for balloted debates;
- On at least one day in Grand Committee for every six sitting weeks in the session;

That the Committee schedule a one-hour topical Question for Short Debate each week, from the start of the session until the end of January, to be taken on Thursday between the two time-limited debates;

That the Procedure Committee review and report on the work of the Backbench Debates Committee before the end of the 2013–14 session, with a view to recommending whether or not the Backbench Debates Committee should be established as a sessional select committee.”

The tabling and scheduling of debates

We recommend the establishment of a House of Lords Backbench Business Committee. We recommend that the committee be charged with selecting specific types of backbench business, which are set out in detail below. [Paragraph 178]

We recommend that the Committee be made up of 12 Members, all sitting on the backbenches. It would be for the parties and the Crossbenchers to determine the mode of appointment, though we see merit in parties and groups electing representatives, as they have done to the House Committee. Membership should be subject to regular rotation (or re-election). [Paragraph 179]

We believe that the Committee will strengthen self-regulation, by bringing greater transparency and accountability to the process whereby backbench business is scheduled. The aim of the Committee would be to take account of the views of all Members, as well as the concerns of the public, in selecting topical or important subjects for debate. In so doing, it would consider applications from any Member or Members of the House, and might invite those Members to present their applications in person. [Paragraph 180]

In particular, we recommend that the Backbench Business Committee should, initially, be tasked with selecting:

- Subjects for debate on those Thursdays (from autumn 2011, one each calendar month up until the end of January in any given session) currently set aside for balloted debates.
- A one hour topical Question for Short Debate each week. We suggest that the Committee should select the Question for Short Debate on Thursday, from a list of suggestions submitted to the Committee by Members in the course of that week. The question would be asked the following Tuesday or Wednesday.
- Questions for Short Debate to be taken in Grand Committee on a predictable day set aside for such debates (for instance, the first Monday each month). [Paragraph 181]
APPENDIX 2: THE PROCESS FOR SCHEDULING BALLOTED DEBATES AND QUESTIONS FOR SHORT DEBATE

Balloted Debates

One Thursday in each month from the start of the session to the end of December is set aside for two balloted debates, each limited to 2½ hours. Only bishops, backbench and Crossbench members may table motions for balloted debate. The ballot is drawn by the Clerk of the Parliaments two or three weeks before the debates are due to take place, and the successful motions are subsequently entered directly on the Order Paper for the named Thursday. Neither the Government Chief Whip nor the Usual Channels has any role in the scheduling of balloted debates, which were first introduced in the early 1970s as a vehicle for members to secure debates on “cherished projects” that might not attract party interest.

Tabling and scheduling Questions for Short Debate

Any member may table a Question for Short Debate (QSD) in House of Lords Business. The member is then referred to the office of the Government Chief Whip to “agree upon a suitable date when the question can be asked” (Companion to the Standing Orders, Para. 6.44). The office of the Government Chief Whip offers time to members for their Questions for Short Debate in the order in which they were tabled (first-come-first-served), subject to a practice—pre-dating the General Election—that members who have not yet asked a Question for Short Debate in the current session are given priority (i.e. members who are waiting for their first QSD of the session leapfrog those waiting for their second one). This practice helps to explain the length of the list of QSDs late in the session: those QSDs listed which are the second QSD tabled by a particular member in that session are unlikely to be offered time. Offers of time are also conditional on the availability of an Opposition spokesperson.

Up to four slots are usually available each week on the floor of the House: the dinner break on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and either last business or a lunch break on Thursday, dependent on the point in the session. QSDs compete with other items of non-Government business: e.g. motions against statutory instruments and (especially on Thursdays) Select Committee reports.

Questions for Short Debate are regularly tabled “out of sequence” for a variety of reasons: a member might for example turn down a slot because of an overseas trip, or because they wish to time their debate to coincide with the publication of a report; the Opposition spokesperson may not be available; or it may not be possible to table certain QSDs on certain days because they would require Front Bench spokespersons to be in two places at once (e.g. a Home Office QSD in Grand Committee when a Home Office bill is being considered in the Chamber) or not allow Front Bench spokespersons a break (e.g. a dinner-break QSD about Scotland when a Scotland Bill is being considered in Committee of the Whole House).

In conclusion, by the end of the session only a relatively small proportion of those members who have tabled QSDs are still awaiting offers of time. The majority of QSDs listed at this stage are:

- second QSDs from an individual member;
- QSDs tabled by a member who has been offered time, but who has turned down the time offered or has not responded; or
- QSDs tabled shortly before a party or balloted debate on the same subject but the member has not removed the QSD.

Welfare Benefits Up-rating Bill

Division No. 4

Lord Kirkwood of Kirkhope moved amendment 4, in clause 1, page 2, line 2, at end to insert:

“( ) Subsection (1) does not apply in relation to a tax year if, on the review in that tax year under section 150(1) of the Social Security Administration Act 1992, the Secretary of State determines that the general level of prices, measured by the Consumer Price Index, for Great Britain has increased by 3% or more over the period under review.”

Prayers were read by the Lord Bishop of Bristol.

1 Leave of Absence Leave of absence was granted to Lord Blyth of Rowington for the remainder of this Parliament.

Public Business

2 Probation services: outsourcing A question was asked by Baroness Howe of Idlicote and answered by Lord Ahmad of Wimbledon.

3 House of Lords: oral questions A question was asked by Lord Campbell-Savours and answered by Lord Hill of Oareford.

4 Food: fast food A question was asked by Lord Sharkey and answered by Earl Howe.

5 Human trafficking A question was asked by Baroness Doocey and answered by Baroness Stowell of Beeston.

6 Business of the House Baroness Anelay of St Johns, on behalf of Lord Hill of Oareford, moved that the motion in the name of Lord Deighton set down for today shall be limited to 3 hours and that the motion in the name of Lord Nash set down for 26 March in Grand Committee shall be limited to 2 hours. The motion was agreed to.
7 Liaison The Chairman of Committees moved that the 1st Report from the Select Committee (HL Paper 135) be agreed to. After debate, the motion was agreed to.

8 Supply and Appropriation (Anticipation and Adjustments) Bill Lord Deighton moved that the bill be now read a second time. The motion was agreed to and the Committee was negatived. Then, Standing Order 46 having been dispensed with, the bill was read a third time and passed.

9 Budget statement (3-hour debate) Lord Deighton moved that this House takes note of the Budget Statement and the economy of the United Kingdom. After debate, the motion was agreed to.

10 Jobseekers (Back to Work Schemes) Bill Lord Freud moved that the bill be now read a second time. Then Lord McKenzie of Luton moved, as an amendment to the original motion, at end to insert “but that this House deplores the Government’s incompetence in failing to provide sufficient information about its back to work schemes, which led to the need to introduce legislation with retrospective effect; deplores the need to introduce fast-track legislation when it took the Government four weeks to introduce the Jobseekers (Back to Work Schemes) Bill into Parliament and in spite of the Constitution Committee’s ongoing concerns about the fast-tracking of legislation; seeks assurances that the appeals process will be robust, speedy and efficient, and that the criteria of the independent report to be prepared under clause 2 will be strengthened to include greater details regarding the number of sanctions, the nature of those affected, the appeals process, the support available to those affected and the effectiveness of the hardship and mitigation provisions; and further seeks assurances that adequate legal advice will be provided to those affected by the introduction of this legislation.” After debate, the amendment was disagreed to (see division). Then the original motion was agreed to and the bill was committed to a Committee of the Whole House.

11 Higher Education: STEM subjects (S&T Report) Lord Willis of Knaresborough moved that this House takes note of the Report of the Science and Technology Committee on Higher Education in Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics subjects (2nd Report, HL Paper 37). After debate, the motion was agreed to.

The House adjourned at 7.17pm until Monday 25 March at 2.30pm.

Jobseekers (Back to Work Schemes) Bill

Division No. 2

Lord Bach moved amendment 2, in clause 1, page 3, line 14, at end to insert:

“( ) The Secretary of State will, within a month of this Act coming into force, lay a report before Parliament outlining whether in his view claimants affected by the introduction of this Act have access to adequate legal advice and support, taking into account the availability of legal aid for claimants appealing a sanction imposed under the 2011 Regulations or the Mandatory Work Activity Scheme Regulations after the coming into force of this Act.”

1 House of Lords Journals The 244th volume of the Journals (Session 2010–12), with an index, was laid on the Table by the Clerk of the Parliaments.

Public Business

2 Banking: quantitative easing A question was asked by Lord Barnett and answered by Lord Newby.

3 Energy: biofuels A question was asked by Baroness Worthington and answered by Earl Attlee.

4 Homelessness: Polish rough sleepers A question was asked by Lord Roberts of Llandudno and answered by Baroness Hanham.

5 Afghanistan: interpreters A question was asked by Baroness Coussins and answered by Lord Astor of Hever.

6 Parliamentary Privilege Lord Hill of Oareford moved that the orders of appointment of the committee appointed to join with the committee of the Commons as the Joint Committee on Parliamentary Privilege shall remain in force and effect in the next session, notwithstanding the prorogation of Parliament; and that the committee should report by 28 June 2013. The motion was agreed to and a message was sent to the Commons.

7 Armed Forces and Reserve Forces (Compensation Scheme) (Consequential Provisions: Primary Legislation) Order 2013 Lord Astor of Hever moved that the draft Order laid before the House on 14 February be approved. The motion was agreed to.

8 Renewable Heat Incentive Scheme (Amendment) Regulations 2013 Lord Gardiner of Kimble, on behalf of Baroness Verma, moved that the draft Regulations laid before the House on 4 March be approved. The motion was agreed to.

9 CRC Energy Efficiency Scheme Order 2013 Lord Gardiner of Kimble, on behalf of Baroness Verma, moved that the draft Order laid before the House on 4 March be approved. The motion was agreed to.

10 Companies Act 2006 (Amendment of Part 18) Regulations 2013 Viscount Younger of Leckie moved that the draft Regulations laid before the House on 6 March be approved. The motion was agreed to.

11 Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Act 2012 (Amendment of Schedule 1) Order 2013 Lord McNally moved that the draft Order laid before the House on 4 February be approved. Then Lord Bach moved, as an amendment to the original motion, at end to insert, “but this House regrets that Her Majesty’s Government have responded to the opinion of this House, as expressed in a vote on 3 December 2012 on a fatal motion in respect of the Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Act 2012 (Amendment of Schedule 1) Order 2012 on inadequate provision for legal aid in first tier tribunal cases, by bringing forward this Order which excludes even that limited provision.” After debate, the amendment was agreed to (see division 1). Then the original motion, as amended, was agreed to.

12 Civil Legal Aid (Merits Criteria) (Amendment) Regulations 2013 Lord McNally moved that the draft Order laid before the House on 4 February be approved. The motion was agreed to.

13 Civil Legal Aid (Procedure) Regulations 2012 Baroness Grey-Thompson moved that this House regrets that the Civil Legal Aid (Procedure) Regulations 2012 (SI 2012/3098) fail to deliver sufficiently wide access to legal aid services for disabled persons; and that the category of “exempted person” is defined too narrowly. After debate, the motion was agreed to (see division 2).

14 Civil Legal Aid (Procedure) Regulations 2012 Baroness Scotland of Asthal moved that this House regrets that the Civil Legal Aid (Procedure) Regulations 2012 (SI 2012/3098) fail to deliver on Her Majesty’s Government’s expressed promise to provide adequate legal aid provision for victims of domestic violence; that significant numbers of victims will not be able to satisfy the evidential criteria, contrary to Her Majesty’s Government’s expressed intent, resulting in a diminution of access to justice; and that, as a result, domestic violence victims will be exposed to an increased risk of injury and death. The motion was agreed to (see division 3).

15 Marine Navigation (No. 2) Bill The bill was further considered in Committee. The bill was reported without amendment. Then the report was received.

16 Rights of the Sovereign and the Duchy of Cornwall Bill [HL] The Explanatory Notes on the bill were ordered to be printed. (HL Bill 93–EN)

The House adjourned at 2.43pm until Monday 22 April at 2.30pm.

Divisions

Division No. 1
Lord Bach moved, as an amendment to the motion that the draft Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Act 2012 (Amendment of Schedule 1) Order 2013 be approved, at the end to insert “but this House regrets that Her Majesty’s Government have responded to the opinion of this House, as expressed in a vote on 3 December 2012 on a fatal motion in respect of the Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Act 2012 (Amendment of Schedule 1) Order 2012 on inadequate provision for legal aid in first tier tribunal cases, by bringing forward this Order which excludes even that limited provision.” The House divided:

Civil Legal Aid (Procedure) Regulations 2012

Division No. 2
Baroness Grey-Thompson moved that this House regrets that the Civil Legal Aid (Procedure) Regulations 2012 (SI 2012/3098) fail to deliver sufficiently wide access to legal aid services for disabled persons; and that the category of “exempted person” is defined too narrowly. The House divided:

Civil Legal Aid (Procedure) Regulations 2012

Division No. 3

Baroness Scotland of Asthal moved that this House regrets that the Civil Legal Aid (Procedure) Regulations 2012 (SI 2012/3098) fail to deliver on Her Majesty’s Government’s expressed promise to provide adequate legal aid provision for victims of domestic violence; that significant numbers of victims will not be able to satisfy the evidential criteria, contrary to Her Majesty’s Government’s expressed intent, resulting in a diminution of access to justice; and that, as a result, domestic violence victims will be exposed to an increased risk of injury and death. Prayers were read by the Lord Bishop of Exeter.

1 The Lord Bishop of Truro Timothy Martin Lord Bishop of Truro was introduced between the Lord Bishop of Exeter and the Lord Bishop of Worcester, took and subscribed the oath and signed an undertaking to abide by the Code of Conduct.

Select Committee Report

2 European Union The following Report from the Select Committee was made and ordered to be printed:

EU police and criminal justice measures: The UK’s 2014 opt-out decision. (13th Report, HL Paper 159)

Public Business

3 Iraq: Chilcot Inquiry A question was asked by Lord Dykes and answered by Lord Hill of Oareford.

4 Female genital mutilation A question was asked by Baroness Cox and answered by Lord Taylor of Holbeach.

5 National Health Service: ECMO machines A question was asked by Baroness Gardner of Parkes and answered by Earl Howe.

6 United Kingdom industry: competitiveness A question was asked by Lord Peston, on behalf of Lord Haskel, and answered by Lord Popat.
7 Defamation Bill The bill was returned from the Commons on 16 April with reasons. The reasons were printed under Standing Order 50(2). (HL Bill 96)

8 Groceries Code Adjudicator Bill [HL] The bill was returned from the Commons with the amendment agreed to.

9 Succession to the Crown Bill The bill was read a third time. Amendments were considered. Then the bill was passed.

10 Growth and Infrastructure Bill The bill having been returned from the Commons on 16 April with reasons, and the reasons having been printed in accordance with Standing Order 50(2) (HL Bill 94), the reasons were considered.

Motion A Lords amendment 7 was not insisted on and amendments 7B and 7C in lieu were agreed to.

Motion B Lords amendment 25 was insisted on (see division 1).

A Committee was appointed to propose a reason. The following Lords were members of the Committee:

- Lord Adonis
- Lord Pannick
- Viscount Younger of Leckie

The Committee proposed the following reason for insisting on Lords Amendment 25:

“Because it is inappropriate for employees to be exempted from statutory employment rights in this manner.”

The reason was agreed to.

The bill was returned to the Commons with a reason.

11 Enterprise and Regulatory Reform Bill The bill having been returned from the Commons on 16 April with reasons and amendments, and the reasons and amendments having been printed under Standing Order 50(2) (HL Bill 95), the reasons and amendments were considered.

Motion A Lords amendment 35 was insisted on (see division 2).

A Committee was appointed to propose a reason. The following Lords were members of the Committee:

- Baroness Campbell of Surbiton
- Baroness Northover
- Lord Tunnicliiffe

The Committee proposed the following reason for insisting on Lords Amendment 35:

“Because repealing section 3 would undermine the EHRC’s duty to promote social change through its human rights and equality duties; compromise its independence as an accredited national human rights body; and prevent it from complying with its monitoring requirements in that capacity and as Britain’s national equality body.”

The reason was agreed to.

Motion B Lords amendment 36 was insisted on.

A Committee was appointed to propose a reason. The following Lords were members of the Committee:

- Baroness Campbell of Surbiton
- Baroness Northover
- Lord Tunnicliiffe

The Committee proposed the following reason for insisting on Lords Amendment 36:
“Because monitoring progress by reference to the EHRC’s duties under sections 8 and 9, rather than section 3, would prevent the Commission from complying with the monitoring requirements relating to equality and human rights bodies, and would jeopardise the EHRC’s accredited status.”

The reason was agreed to.

Motion C Lords amendment 37 was insisted on (see division 3).

A Committee was appointed to propose a reason. The following Lords were members of the Committee:

Lord Avebury
Lord Harries of Pentregarth
Baroness Northover

The Committee proposed the following reason for insisting on Lords Amendment 37:

“Because it is appropriate to provide for caste to be an aspect of race for the purposes of the Equality Act 2010.”

The reason was agreed to.

Motion D Lords amendment 38 was not insisted on (see division 4) and Commons amendments 38A and 38B were agreed to.

Motion E Lords amendment 40 was not insisted on and Commons amendments 40A to 40H in lieu were agreed to.

The bill was returned to the Commons with reasons.

12 Partnerships (Prosecution) (Scotland) Bill [HL] The bill was returned from the Commons agreed to.

13 Crime and Courts Bill [HL] The bill was returned from the Commons with amendments. It was ordered that the Commons amendments be printed. (HL Bill 98)

14 Public Service Pensions Bill The bill was returned from the Commons with reasons. It was ordered that the Commons reasons be printed. (HL Bill 97)

15 Prisoner Voting A message was brought from the Commons that they concur that it is expedient that a Joint Committee of Lords and Commons be appointed to consider the draft Voting Eligibility (Prisoners) Bill presented to both Houses on 22 November 2012, and have ordered:

- that a Select Committee of six Members be appointed to join with the Committee appointed by the Lords to consider the draft Voting Eligibility (Prisoners) Bill;
- that the Committee should report by 31 October 2013;
- that the Committee shall have power:
  - (i) to send for persons, papers and records;
  - (ii) to sit notwithstanding any adjournment of the House;
  - (iii) to report from time to time;
  - (iv) to appoint specialist advisers; and
  - (v) to adjourn from place to place within the United Kingdom; and
- that Mr Crispin Blunt, Steve Brine, Lorely Burt, Mr Nick Gibb, Sir Alan Meale, and Derek Twigg be members of the Committee.

_The House adjourned at 11.33pm until Tuesday 23 April at 2.30pm._

8 Transport for London Bill [HL] The Chairman of Committees moved that this House resolves that the promoters of the Transport for London Bill [HL] which was originally introduced in this House on 24 January 2011 should have leave to suspend any further proceedings on the bill in order to proceed with it, if they think fit, in the next session of Parliament according to the provisions of Private Business Standing Order 150A (Suspension of bills). The motion was agreed to and a message was sent to the Commons.
9 Hertfordshire County Council (Filming on Highways) Bill [HL] The Chairman of Committees moved that this House resolves that the promoters of the Hertfordshire County Council (Filming on Highways) Bill [HL] which was originally introduced in this House on 22 January 2013 should have leave to suspend any further proceedings on the bill in order to proceed with it, if they think fit, in the next session of Parliament according to the provisions of Private Business Standing Order 150A (Suspension of bills). The motion was agreed to and a message was sent to the Commons.
The Commons reasons were considered.

Motion A Lords amendment 78 was not insisted on and amendment 78B in lieu was agreed to.

Motion B Lords amendment 79 was not insisted on. The Bill was returned to the Commons with an amendment.

Defamation Bill The Commons reasons were considered.

Motion A Lords amendments 1, 15 and 16 were not insisted on.

Motion B Lords amendment 2 was not insisted on, amendment 2B in lieu was agreed to, and amendment 2C in lieu was disagreed to (see division). The Bill was returned to the Commons with an amendment.

Growth and Infrastructure Bill The bill was returned from the Commons with a Lords amendment disagreed to but with amendments proposed to the words so restored to the bill. It was ordered that the Commons amendments be printed. (HL Bill 99)

Enterprise and Regulatory Reform Bill The bill was returned from the Commons with a Commons disagreement to a Lords amendment insisted on and a Commons disagreement to a Lords amendment not insisted on but with consequential amendments, and with amendments in lieu of a Lords amendment to which the Commons insisted on their disagreement. It was ordered that the Commons amendments be printed. (HL Bill 100)

London Local Authorities and Transport for London (No. 2) Bill [HL] A message was brought from the Commons that they have made the following Order:

That the promoters of the London Local Authorities and Transport for London (No. 2) Bill [HL], which was originally introduced in the House of Lords in Session 2007–08 on 22 January 2008, should have leave to suspend any further proceedings on the Bill in order to proceed with it, if they think fit, in the next session of Parliament, according to the provisions of Private Business Standing Order 188A (Suspension of bills).

City of London (Various Powers) Bill [HL] A message was brought from the Commons that they have made the following Order:

That the promoters of the City of London (Various Powers) Bill [HL], which was originally introduced in the House of Lords in Session 2010–12 on 24 January 2011, should have leave to suspend any further proceedings on the Bill in order to proceed with it, if they think fit, in the next session of Parliament, according to the provisions of Private Business Standing Order 188A (Suspension of bills).

Humber Bridge Bill A message was brought from the Commons that they have made the following Order to which they desire the concurrence of this House:

That the promoters of the Humber Bridge Bill, which was originally introduced in this House on 22 January 2013, should have leave to suspend any further proceedings on the Bill in order to proceed with it, if they think fit, in the next session of Parliament, according to the provisions of Private Business Standing Order 188A (Suspension of bills).

Crime and Courts Bill [HL] The Commons amendments were considered.

Motion A Lords amendment 131A was not insisted on and Commons amendments 18A and 131B in lieu were agreed to.

Children’s Hearings (Scotland) Act 2011 (Consequential and Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2013 The Grand Committee reported that it had considered the draft order.

The House adjourned at 5.39pm until Wednesday 24 April at 3.00pm.

Draft Police Act 1997 (Criminal Record Certificates: Relevant Matters) (Amendment) (England and Wales) Order 2013
Draft Public Bodies (Merger of the Gambling Commission and the National Lottery Commission) Order 2013

2 Constitution
The following Report from the Select Committee was made and ordered to be printed:
The pre-emption of Parliament. (13th Report, HL Paper 165)
Public Business

3 Retail Prices Index A question was asked by Lord Naseby and answered by Lord Wallace of Saltaire.

4 Air quality A question was asked by Lord Dubs and answered by Lord De Mauley.

5 Health: tuberculosis A question was asked by Lord Maginnis of Drumglass and answered by Earl Howe.

6 Police: convicted officers A question was asked by Lord Trefgarne and answered by Lord Taylor of Holbeach.

7 Procedure The Chairman of Committees moved that the 5th Report from the Select Committee (Private notice questions; tabling oral questions; repeal of Standing Orders; repetition of answers to House of Commons urgent questions) be agreed to (HL Paper 150). Then Lord Trefgarne moved, as an amendment to the original motion, at end to insert “, with the exception of paragraphs 1 and 2 on Private Notice Questions which should be referred back to the Committee for further consideration”. After debate, the amendment was withdrawn. Then the original motion was agreed to.

8 Procedure The Chairman of Committees moved that this House takes note of the 6th Report from the Select Committee (Backbench Debates) (HL Paper 151). After debate, the motion was agreed to.

9 Procedure The Chairman of Committees moved to resolve that this House establish, for the duration of the 2013–14 session of Parliament, a Backbench Debates Committee;

That the Committee be appointed to schedule debates, to be moved by backbench and Crossbench members, or by Lords Spiritual:

• During the time currently set aside for balloted debates;

• On at least one day in Grand Committee for every six sitting weeks in the session;

That the Committee schedule a one-hour topical Question for Short Debate each week, from the start of the session until the end of January, to be taken on Thursday between the two time-limited debates;

That the Procedure Committee review and report on the work of the Backbench Debates Committee before the end of the 2013–14 session, with a view to recommending whether or not the Backbench Debates Committee should be established as a sessional select committee.

The motion was disagreed to (see division 1).

10 Marine Navigation (No. 2) Bill The bill was read a third time and passed.

11 Growth and Infrastructure Bill The Commons amendments were considered.

Motion A Lords amendment 25 was not insisted on (see division 2) and Commons amendments 25C, 25D, 25F and 25G to the words restored to the bill by the Commons disagreement to Lords amendment 25 were agreed to, and Commons amendment 25E to the words so restored was disagreed to and amendments 25H(rev) and 25J were agreed to in lieu.

The bill was returned to the Commons with amendments.

12 Enterprise and Regulatory Reform Bill The Commons amendments were considered.

Motion A Lords amendment 36 was not insisted on and Commons consequential amendments 36C to 36E were agreed to.

Motion B Lords amendment 37 was not insisted on and Commons amendments 37C to 37F in lieu were agreed to.
13 Public Service Pensions Bill The bill was returned from the Commons with a Lords amendment disagreed to and with an amendment in lieu. The Commons amendment was considered forthwith.

Motion A Lords amendment 78B was not insisted on and Commons amendment 78C in lieu was agreed to.

14 Defamation Bill The bill was returned from the Commons with the Lords amendment agreed to.

15 Banking Standards A message was brought from the Commons that they have made the following order:

That the Commons Order of 16 July 2012 relating to the establishment of the Parliamentary Commission on Banking Standards shall have effect in the next session until the day on which the Commission makes its report on standards and culture of the United Kingdom banking sector.

16 National Health Service (Procurement, Patient Choice and Competition) (No. 2) Regulations 2013 Lord Hunt of Kings Heath moved that a humble address be presented to Her Majesty praying that the National Health Service (Procurement, Patient Choice and Competition) (No. 2) Regulations 2013, laid before the House on 11 March, be annulled on the grounds that they do not implement the assurances given by Ministers to Parliament during the passage of the Health and Social Care Act 2012 that NHS commissioners would be free to commission services in the way they consider in the best interests of NHS patients (SI 2013/500). After debate, the motion was disagreed to (see division 3).

The House adjourned at 10.40pm until Thursday 25 April at 11.00am.

Grand Committee Business

The Grand Committee met in the Moses Room at 3.45pm.

Education: Personal, Social and Health Education A question was asked by Baroness Massey of Darwen and, after debate, answered by Lord Nash.

Tourism A question was asked by Lord Lee of Trafford and, after debate, answered by Lord Gardiner of Kimble.

Herbal medicines A question was asked by Lord Pearson of Rannoch and, after debate, answered by Baroness Northover.

The Committee adjourned at 7.02pm.

Papers

All statutory instruments laid before the House are accompanied by an Explanatory Memorandum presented by command of Her Majesty, unless otherwise indicated.

National Health Service (Procurement, Patient Choice and Competition) (No. 2) Regulations 2013

Division No. 3

Lord Hunt of Kings Heath moved that a humble address be presented to Her Majesty praying that the National Health Service (Procurement, Patient Choice and Competition) (No. 2) Regulations 2013, laid before the House on 11 March, be annulled on the grounds that they do not implement the assurances given by Ministers to Parliament during the passage of the Health and Social Care Act 2012 that NHS commissioners would be free to commission services in the way they consider in the best interests of NHS patients (SI 2013/500). 6 London Local Authorities and Transport for London (No. 2) Bill [HL] The Chairman of Committees moved that the Commons message of 23 April be now considered; and that the promoters of the London Local Authorities and Transport for London (No. 2) Bill [HL], which was originally introduced in this House in Session 2007–08 on 22 January 2008, should have leave to suspend any further proceedings on the bill in order to proceed with it, if they think fit, in the next session of Parliament according to the provisions of Private Business Standing Order 150A (Suspension of bills). The motion was agreed to and a message was sent to the Commons.

7 City of London (Various Powers) Bill [HL] The Chairman of Committees moved that the Commons message of 23 April be now considered; and that the promoters of the City of London (Various Powers) Bill [HL], which was originally introduced in this House in Session 2010–12 on 24 January 2011 should have leave to suspend any further proceedings on the bill in order to proceed with it, if they think fit, in the next session of Parliament according to the provisions of Private Business Standing Order 150A (Suspension of bills). The motion was agreed to and a message was sent to the Commons.

8 Humber Bridge Bill The Chairman of Committees moved that this House do agree with the order made by the Commons set out in their message of 23 April. The motion was agreed to and a message was sent to the Commons.

9 Banking Standards The Leader of the House (Lord Hill of Oareford) moved that the Commons message of 24 April be considered and that the orders of appointment of the committee appointed to join with the committee of the Commons as the Parliamentary Commission on Banking Standards shall remain in force and effect in the next session notwithstanding the Resolution of this House of 17 July 2012 and the prorogation of Parliament, until the day on which the Commission makes its report on standards and culture of the UK banking sector. The motion was agreed to and a message was sent to the Commons.

10 Children’s Hearings (Scotland) Act 2011 (Consequential and Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2013 Earl Attlee moved that the draft Order laid before the House on 11 March be approved. The motion was agreed to.

11 European Union: United Kingdom Convergence Programme Lord Newby moved that this House approves, for the purposes of section 5 of the European Communities (Amendment) Act 1993, the Government’s assessment as set out in the Budget Report, combined with the Office for Budget Responsibility’s Economic and Fiscal Outlook, which forms the basis of the United Kingdom’s Convergence Programme. After debate, the motion was agreed to.

12 European Union: Annual Growth Survey 2013 Lord Newby moved that this House takes note of European Union Documents No. 16669/12 relating to the Annual Growth Survey 2013, and No. 16671/12 relating to the Alert Mechanism Report 2013; supports the five key priorities of the 2013 Annual Growth Survey which are in line with the Government’s domestic growth agenda; supports the Government’s view that it is important to focus on implementation of existing reform commitments; agrees that European Union Member States should continue on the path of growth-friendly fiscal consolidation and increasing competitiveness to support growth and jobs; supports the Alert Mechanism Report and the Macroeconomic Imbalances Procedure as a means of strengthening European economic governance, particularly in the euro area; and supports the Government’s view that it is right for euro area countries to be subject to more binding surveillance of macro-economic imbalances, with the prospect of sanctions for failing to take corrective action. The motion was agreed to.

13 Growth and Infrastructure Bill The bill was returned from the Commons with the Lords amendments agreed to.

14 Transport for London Bill [HL] A message was brought from the Commons that they concur with the resolution of this House of 23 April.

15 Hertfordshire County Council (Filming on Highways) Bill [HL] A message was brought from the Commons that they concur with the resolution of this House of 23 April.

The House adjourned. The House resumed.

16 Royal Commission The Lords Commissioners being seated, Lord Hill of Oareford in the middle with the Lord Speaker (Baroness D’Souza) and Lord Williamson of Horton on his right hand and Lord McNally on his left and the Commons being present at the Bar with their Speaker, the Commission for Royal Assent and Prorogation dated this day was read.

17 Royal Assent The following Acts, passed by both Houses of Parliament, received Royal Assent:

- Justice and Security Act c 18
- Groceries Code Adjudicator Act c 19
- Succession to the Crown Act c 20
- Partnerships (Prosecution) (Scotland) Act c 21
- Crime and Courts Act c 22
- Marine Navigation Act c 23
- Enterprise and Regulatory Reform Act c 24
- Public Service Pensions Act c 25
- Defamation Act c 26
- Growth and Infrastructure Act c 27

18 Queen’s Speech The Queen’s Speech was delivered by Lord Hill of Oareford.

19 Prorogation Parliament was prorogued at 3.42pm to Wednesday 8 May.

GENERAL INDEX

See also Membership of the House at back of volume

Items of business are normally indexed alphabetically under the title given in the relevant Journal entry. In the case of “Business of the House” motions, the index entries are further broken down by reference to the type of motion. For ease of reference, certain items are also brought together under generic headings (see “List entries” below).

Entries relating to members of the House are listed in the separate “Membership of the House” index.

— Affirmative instruments, Public Bodies Orders and Legislative Reform Orders are indexed alphabetically by title.
— Negative instruments and papers not subject to parliamentary proceedings are indexed under the enabling Act, Regulations, Order or Measure.
— Command Papers are indexed by subject matter.
