Home Affairs Committee

Eighth Report: Policy options for future migration from the European Economic Area: Interim report

CORRIGENDUM

In Para 86, lines 1 to 4, should instead read:

The IPPR has suggested that jobseekers from the EU could no longer have the right to enter the UK unless they already have a job offer. However, they point out, “there would be little to prevent an EU national from entering the UK as a visitor, searching and applying for jobs, returning home, and then if successful coming back to the UK with the right to reside as a worker.”<sup>103</sup>
