At the PAC hearing regarding the interface between health and social care on 18 July 2018, a specific question was raised about the numbers of change management specialists in the NHS and across Local Authorities. Please find attached Annex A, which is a note from MHCLG that outlines the information we hold on this topic.

Annex A

Numbers of change management specialists in the NHS and across Local Authorities

The department does not hold information on the number of change management specialists employed on health and social care integration across the NHS or the 152 local authorities. We are aware that many local authorities have health and social care integration leads, under various titles. However, we do not collect any specific information about these roles.
